Leaders Eye Big Highway Bond Issue

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie Davis' legislative leaders are thinking about asking the fiscal session to okay a new multi-million-dollar highway bond issue, an administration source said.

The House starts the second week of the 30-day session at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, while the Senate returns at 7 p.m. Monday.

BOOSTS BUDGET

Davis has asked a record $344 million budget - boosting spending for the coming fiscal year $49 million — after James S. Reily, his fiscal chief, forecast prosperity around the corner.

Reily's optimism apparently has been supported by two developments:

Louisiana April sales tax collections showing a gain over a year earlier, the first time this year the big tax collection has showed such an upturn.

The Federal Reserve Board reporting national industrial production climbed 2.5 per cent in April, strongest advance since December, 1959.

Under former Gov. Earl K. Long, the $60 million long range highway bonding authority was used up. Four cents of the state's seven-cent gasoline tax is dedicated to highways, paying off that bond debt and an older highway bond issue of $28 million.

The older issue requires about

JFK Appoints Crowley Judge U.S. Emissary

CROWLEY, La. (AP) — President John Kennedy has appointed city Judge Edmund M. Reggie as a special emissary to the Near East, it was announced here Saturday.

Reggie, 34, will leave June 5 for a six-week tour of the Near East, visiting heads of state in Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Jordan and Saudi Arabia as American specialist with the U.S. State Department and the U.S. Information Agency.

His mission will be to discuss American political institutions and the American judicial system with government leaders, members of the high courts, university students and political groups.

Reggie has been briefed in Washington on the trip. When it is completed July 25, he will report to the President and the State Department.

He said: "The President realizes that the area I will visit plays an increasingly important role in world affairs. We are certainly interested in explaining American ideas of international co-operation to them."

Reggie, city judge more than 10 years, was a principle figure in the battle that pledged Louisiana Democratic electors to President Kennedy.

Mayor Harper Runoff Winner

COLLINSTON, La. (AP) —Mayor H. A. Harper won another term in office Saturday by beating Jack Langston in a runoff.

Harper received 71 votes, Langston 59. They were the top two in last month's first primary.

LOSES BATTLE

Film Star Gary Cooper, 60, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gary Cooper died Saturday of cancer after a deathbed fight that rivaled in courage the heroic roles he played in 35 years in motion pictures.

The tall, silent screen hero was 60 a few days ago.

He died at 12:27 p.m. EDT.

Strangely, the actor's three dogs—two French poodles and a mongrel—started barking and howling moments after Cooper died. Newsmen and photographers waiting outside the modern, one-story home heard the animals but did not learn of Cooper's death until half an hour later.

A spokesman said the actor had been "near the brink of death for days."

WIFE AT SIDE

"Any other man would have died 48 hours ago," Cooper's doctor said.

The end came at his Bel-Air home. Only his wife, Rocky, his daughter, Maria, and his doctor were at his side.

His last days were spent under heavy sedation, to ease the intense pain which wracked his once-robust frame. The cancer had spread to many parts of his body.

Paris Bomb Blasts Hurt Six Persons

PARIS (AP) — Two plastic bombs—apparently set by anti-Gaullist rightwingers — shattered the afternoon calm in Paris Saturday, while in Algiers security forces bristled for trouble which never came.

The two bomb blasts in Paris hurt at least six persons, including an American tourist, and heavily damaged areas in the office buildings where they were set.

FIND ANOTHER

As police swarmed into the downtown area where the bombs burst within 90 minutes of each other, another plastic charge was discovered in a Left Bank apartment building. It was neutralized before it exploded.

The bombings occurred on the third anniversary of the 1958 coup d'etat in Algiers which crumbled the Fourth French Republic and led to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's return to power.

About 23,000 troops, riot police and gendarmes were mobilized to cope with an expected rising by European extremists who want to keep rebelling Algeria French at all costs.

The authorities had acted after word flashed through Algiers that the "secret army organization," the settlers' main resistance group opposing Algeria's independence, would attempt a new show of force. But as the day wore on there was no sign of trouble.

UNUSUAL WEDDING

Skindivers Trade Underwater Vows

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two skindivers who met underwater—thanks to a shark—were married under water Saturday by a judge who had to surface once during the ceremony because his mask leaked.

They held hands while Judge Charles Wofford of Fulton Criminal Court performed the ceremony on the bottom of a 16-foot-deep Atlanta motel pool.

It was the first ceremony of its kind for the judge. About halfway through his mask began to fill with water. He was forced to surface, empty out the water and resubmerge to complete the ceremony.

After the underwater rites the two were married again in a private, old-fashioned, dry land ceremony by the Rev. David Powell.

Krasle said he first met Miss Martin underwater last year in the Bahamas just after he had speared a 5-foot shark. She was skindiving with friends from Gadsden.

The insurance man asked somebody to hold his underwater gun while he retrieved the shark and Miss Martin volunteered. That was the start of their romance, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Krasle plan to live in suburban Doraville after a Bermuda skindiving honeymoon.

Rusk Brands Communist Charges Lie

GENEVA (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday night branded as a lie Communist charges that the United States was attempting to sabotage the still-stalled foreign ministers conference on Laos.

The foreign ministers failed for the second day to get the conference under way when Rusk rejected Soviet demands for full government status of the Communist-led Pathet Lao at the table.

TAKES STAND

Rusks position is that Pathet Lao cannot be admitted on an equal basis with the pro-Western royal government of Premier Prince Boun Oum because it is not even recognized as a government by the Communist bloc.

His stand brought the charge from Red China's foreign minister, Marshal Chen Yi, that the United States was obstructing the conference. Similar charges have been made by other Communists.

"The notion that we are sabotaging this conference is ridiculous," Rusk told newsmen.

"We came to attend, as we had been invited by the cochairman (the Soviet Union and Britain).

"After arriving we found the Soviet Union had injected a new element by insisting on the representation of the Pathet Lao.

"It is absurd for them — the Communists — to suppose that anyone not accepting their thesis is dragging his feet.

"It is utterly false to say that we are interfering in the internal affairs of Laos.

The American secretary described as a fiction the claim that the Pathet Lao rebels controlled two-thirds of Laos. He added that the Pathet Lao had sent troops down two roads "but there is an awful lot of territory not under their control."

A Chinese Communist spokesman claimed Prince Souvanna Phouma, a former premier who claims to be a neutralist, heads the only legal government in Laos. The spokesman said the Cabinet of Boun Oum, supported by the United States, has no legitimate basis.

Three Injured In Collision; One Is Serious

Three persons were hurt, one seriously, Saturday afternoon in a rear end collision on Louisiana Highway 165 and driver of one of the vehicles was booked for hit and run driving and two other charges.

Mrs. Addie McBroom, 51-year-old driver of a north-bound car that was knocked off the highway, is in serious condition at the St. Francis hospital where she was rushed for treatment. Her husband, R. C. McBroom, 58, of 307 Bell Ave., Monroe, was hospitalized with various injuries that include a broken leg.

Their 12 - year - old son, Benny, another passenger in the car, was also hospitalized but his injuries were not serious. Thirteen-year - old Sue McBroom escaped injuries.

Mattox Gets Life Term In Slaying Case

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP)—A 12-man jury Saturday for the second time convicted 21-year-old Jon Mattox of murdering his pretty Columbus neighbor after she broke off an affair with him.

Judge John Greene of Lowndes County Circuit Court, as instructed by the all-male jury, sent Mattox to the state penitentiary for life.

PLAN APPEAL

Mattox was charged with the Jan. 31, 1960 coat hanger strangulation of 31-year-old Mrs. Gene Cain Tate, socialite and mother of four children, in her garage.

Chief defense counsel Hugh Cunningham said he would appeal the conviction Monday to the Mississippi Supreme Court at Jackson.

Immediately after the verdict, Cunningham moved for a new trial, saying the jury "permitted certain action which the defense believes influenced the decision."

Judge Greene allowed the defense about four hours to secure witnesses to back up its claim of outside interference while the jury was deliberating in its hotel room.

When the court reconvened, Judge Greene overruled the motion for a new trial because Cunningham failed to produce the witnesses.

Special prosecutor Bill Burgin said Cunningham's inference of Police said that entrance to the building was gained by breaking a window in the back and climbing through. An undetermined amount of money was taken from the pinball and cigarette machines.

Also booked was John Body, 17-year-old Negro of 201 S. 10th St. Body was arrested at Henderson's Curb Market at Eight and Orange streets where he admitted stealing a watermelon.

Two men have been identified by employees as the armed bandits that robbed Weingarten's Supermarket May 6 of $9,800, Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

One man, a Texan identified as Charles Augustus Davis, 26, of 2603 Windsor Lane, Pasadena, Tex., is wanted in both Texas and Louisiana, Kelly said.

The second suspect in the armed robbery was identified as Glenn W. Dunlap, 33, of Vick, which is located near Marksville and Alexandria. He is wanted by Marksville authorities.

Kelly said his department is seeking any information relating to the whereabouts of these two. Persons having seen them or knowing anything about the pair are requested to contact the nearest law enforcement office by Monroe authorities.

Employment Up In April For Ouachita Parish

Employment in Ouachita Parish moved up in April with a total of 27,025 listed on payrolls. Seasonal factors and weather conditions were credited with the upturn, according to the Louisiana State Employment Service.

Unemployment for the same period dropped to 2,955, about 7.2 per cent of the civilian labor force.

Meanwhile, the Employment Service was preparing for an anticipated influx of youngsters who will hit the labor market fresh out of school.

CREDIT WEATHER

Better weather conditions have been given credit for the upswing in employment in the logging and related timber operations in the area. Paper and allied products retained the March level.

Furniture and chemicals held firm. Some fluctuations were noted in various segements of other manufacturing groups but too slight to affect the over-all level.

Largest non - manufacturing employment increase was in construction. New construction held up well even though it rained during part of the month.

Residential construction perked up slightly, as it should with the

ARGUMENT FATAL

Mother's Day Gift Costs Man His Life

LEYDON, Colo. (AP) — An argument over a $2.50 cake purchased by a mother for Mother's Day cost Roy Polaske his life Saturday.

Polaske, 40, was struck in the head and side by a charge from a 16-gauge shotgun Friday night and died early Saturday at a Denver hospital.

Sheriff Art Wermuth said members of the family told him that Polaske fired a shot from a 22-caliber automatic at his wife before he himself was shot down. The shot was fired by Polaske's stepson, Richard Conover, 23, Wermuth said.

Conover was held without charge in the Jefferson County jail at Golden.

Wermuth said the argument stemmed from a cake which Mrs. Polaske bought as a Mother's Day gift to herself.

He gave this account: Polaske, seeing the cake, knocked it to the floor and yelled: "I told you about buying stuff like this!"

Polaske then drew the pistol and chased his wife into the yard, where he fired a shot at her. Conover, who seized a shotgun, fired at his stepfather from 60 feet away.

Mrs. Polaske is the mother of six children, three by her marriage to Polaske. They have been married 14 years.

Talks Slated On Coalition Government

BAN NAMONE, Laos (AP) — The warring factions in Laos signed a formal cease-fire Saturday and set up political talks that may help resolve the East-West tangle on who will speak for Laos at the Geneva conference.

The agreement marked at least a step forward after more than a week of haggling while diplomats in Geneva held back on negotiations about the political future of Laos. The Communists and the West are backing different factions at the stalled 14-nation conference in the Swiss city.

BAN FIGHTING

Sitting at a U-shaped table placed on the dirt floor of the schoolhouse in this jungle village, representatives of the pro-Western government in Vientiane, the Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels and the rebels' neutralist political allies agreed to order all field commanders to enforce a strict ban on all fighting unless attacked.

They also agreed to meet here in this rebel-held village Sunday to talk about the possibility of setting up a coalition government and sending a unified Laotian delegation to Geneva to supersede the three Laotian groups already there.

Diplomats in Vientiane have suggested that if all goes well here — and this is no certainty with the Laotians — the political talks could develop into top-level negotiations within a few days.

That would bring together the three key figures in Laos — neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, who claims to be Laos' legal premier; Prince Souvanouvong, chief of the Pathet Lao, and Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, military strongman of the Vientiane government.

Present at the meeting were military representatives of the three-nation International Control Commission, which had already reported earlier to Geneva that a cease-fire was in effect.

The chairman of the conference, which lasted through the morning and afternoon, was Pheng Phong-

Three Missing Girls Located By Police Dog

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Happy, a German police dog who can get tough when he has to, revealed another facet of his personality Saturday.

Happy proved he was as good as a bloodhound when he led a search party to three 11-year-old girls who got lost Friday night in the woods near here.

The girls — Barbara Anny Hyman, Vicksburg, Linda Galey and Jackie Woodbury, both of Yokena community south of here — told officers they went on a fishing trip about a mile and a half from the Galey home.

They said they stayed until dark and decided to leave, but lost their way in the dense woods. They said they were frightened at first but did not panic and went to sleep on the ground.

When the girls didn't return, Mrs. Galey notified authorities who brought Happy, one of two police dogs responsible for curbing Vicksburg's crime rate.

Soon after the search began, Happy led officers to the spot where the girls were sleeping.

Police Chief Murray Sills said the dogs have proven very successful in catching thieves and other criminals and since they were acquired several months ago the city's crimes rate has dropped.

Leaders Eye Big Highway Bond Issue

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie Davis' legislative leaders are thinking about asking the fiscal session to okay a new multimillion-dollar highway bond issue, an administration source said.

Davis has asked a record $344 million budget - boosting spending for the coming fiscal year $49 million — after James S. Reily, his fiscal chief, forecast prosperity around the corner.

Mattox was charged with the Jan. 31, 1960 coat hanger strangulation of 31-year-old Mrs. Gene Cain Tate, socialite and mother of four children, in her garage.

Chief defense counsel Hugh Cunningham said he would appeal the conviction Monday to the Mississippi Supreme Court at Jackson.

Immediately after the verdict, Cunningham moved for a new trial, saying the jury "permitted certain action which the defense believes influenced the decision."

Judge Greene allowed the defense about four hours to secure witnesses to back up its claim of outside interference while the jury was deliberating in its hotel room.

When the court reconvened, Judge Greene overruled the motion for a new trial because Cunningham failed to produce the witnesses.

Man At Vidalia Is Fatally Shot

VIDALIA, La. (AP) — Floyd J. Terry, about 55, superintendent of a trucking company, was shot to death Saturday in the pipe yard of the firm.

Parish coroner Dr. Herman Gibson Jr. said it apparently was an accident.

Associates said Terry frequently carried the shotgun into the yard to shoot snakes. He apparently stumbled over some pipe, discharging the gun.

By SARAH LITTLE World Staff Writer

Two men have been identified by employees as the armed bandits that robbed Weingarten's Supermarket May 6 of $9,800, Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

One man, a Texan identified as Charles Augustus Davis, 26, of 2603 Windsor Lane, Pasadena, Tex. is wanted in both Texas and Louisiana, Kelly said.

The second suspect in the armed robbery was identified as Glenn W. Dunlap, 33, of Vick which is located near Marksville and Alexandria. He is wanted by Marksville authorities.

Kelly said his department is seeking any information relating to the whereabouts of these two. Persons having seen them or knowing anything about the pair are requested to contact the nearest law enforcement office by Monroe authorities.

DESCRIPTION

Employment Up In April For Ouachita Parish

Employment in Ouachita Parish moved up in April with a total of 27,025 listed on payrolls. Seasonal factors and weather conditions were credited with the upturn, according to the Louisiana State Employment Service.

Unemployment for the same period dropped to 2,975, about 7.2 per cent of the civilian labor force.

Meanwhile, the Employment Service was preparing for an anticipated influx of youngsters who will hit the labor market fresh out of school.

CREDIT WEATHER

Better weather conditions have been given credit for the upswing in employmsent in the logging and related timber operations in the area. Paper and allied products retained the March level.

Furniture and chemicals held firm. Some fluctuations were noted in various segements of other manufacturing groups but too slight to affect the over - all level.

Largest non - manufacturing employment increase was in construction. New construction held up well even though it rained during part of the month.

Residential construction perked up slightly, as it should with the

ARGUMENT FATAL

Mother's Day Gift Costs Man His Life

LEYDON, Colo. (AP) — An argument over a $2.20 cake purchased by a mother for Mother's Day cost Roy Polaske his life Saturday.

Polaske, 40, was struck in the head and side by a charge from a 16-gauge shotgun Friday night and died early Saturday at a Denver hospital.

Sheriff Art Wermuth said members of the family told him that Polaske fired a shot from a .22-caliber automatic at his wife before he himself was shot down. The shot was fired by Polaske's stepson, Richard Conover, 23, Wermuth said.

Conover was held without charge in the Jefferson County jail at Golden.

Wermuth said the argument stemmed from a cake which Mrs. Polaske bought as a Mother's Day gift to herself.

He gave this account: Polaske, seeing the cake, knocked it to the floor and yelled: "I told you about buying stuff like this!"

Polaske then drew the pistol and chased his wife into the yard, where he fired a shot at her. Conover, who seized a shotgun, fired at his stepfather from 60 feet away.

Mrs. Polaske is the mother of six children, three by her marriage to Polaske. They have been married 14 years.

Talks Slated On Coalition Government

BAN NAMONE, Laos (AP) — The warring factions in Laos signed a formal cease-fire Saturday and set up political talks that may help resolve the East-West tangle on who will speak for Laos at the Geneva conference.

The agreement marked at least a step forward after more than a week of haggling while diplomats in Geneva held back on negotiations about the political future of Laos. The Communists and the West are backing different factions at the stalled 14-nation conference in the Swiss city.

BAN FIGHTING

Sitting at a U-shaped table placed on the dirt floor of the schoolhouse in this jungle village, representatives of the pro-Western government in Vientiane, the Communist - backed Pathet Lao rebels and the rebels' neutralist political allies agreed to order all field commanders to enforce a strict ban on all fighting unless attacked.

They also agreed to meet here in this rebel-held village Sunday to talk about the possibility of setting up a coalition government and sending a unified Laotian delegation to Geneva to supersede the three Laotian groups already there.

Diplomats in Vientiane have suggested that if all goes well here — and this is no certainty with the Laotians — the political talks could develop into top-level negotiations within a few days.

That would bring together the three key figures in Laos — neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, who claims to be Laos' legal premier; Prince Souvanouvong, chief of the Pathet Lao, and Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, military strongman of the Vientiane government.

Present at the meeting were military representatives of the three-nation International Control Commission, which had already reported earlier to Geneva that a cease-fire was in effect.

The chairman of the conference, which lasted through the morning and afternoon, was Pheng Phong-

Three Missing Girls Located By Police Dog

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Happy, a German police dog who can get tough when he has to, revealed another facet of his personality Saturday.

Happy proved he was as good as a bloodhound when he led a search party to three 11-year-old girls who got lost Friday night in the woods near here.

The girls —Barbara Anny Hynum, Vicksburg, Linda Galey and Jackie Woodbury, both of Yokena community south of here — told officers they went on a fishing trip about a mile and a half from the Galey home.

They said they stayed until dark and decided to leave, but lost their way in the dense woods. They said they were frightened at first but did not panic and went to sleep on the ground.

When the girls didn't return, Mrs. Galey notified authorities who brought Happy, one of two police dogs responsible for curbing Vicksburg's crime rate.

Soon after the search began, Happy led officers to the spot where the girls were sleeping.

Police Chief Murray Sills said the dogs have proven very successful in catching thieves and other criminals and since they were acquired several months ago the city's crimes rate has dropped.

They took their place in the center in keeping with Souvanna's contention that he still is entitled to govern Laos, despite the fact that King Savang Vathana recognized the present Vientiane government as legal after its troops chased Souvanna into exile last December. The neutralist prince recently has made his headquarters in rebel-held territory.

During one break in the talks, Pheng called over newsmen and said he considered himself as a mediator from the only legal government.

"I am a neutralist trying to make peace between right and left," he said. This left no doubt he expects the political talks to lead to a coalition headed by Souvanna. With his Communist allies, Souvanna thus finds himself in an undoubted position of strength for the political bargaining.

The cease-fire agreement noted that all sides ordered the fighting stopped May 3 but that there were "certain violations in certain places."

It said that "to give the cease-fire a firmer character" orders would be sent to all commanding officers on all fronts to enforce the cease-fire.

This still does not settle the touchy questions of actual cease-fire lines or what will happen in pockets of strong guerrilla activity behind enemy lines. These will presumably come up at the political talks. Control Commission Chairman Samar Sen of India and other top officials have been invited.

Phoumi has shown a particular interest in holding a Laotian summit meeting. He proposed Thursday that he and other two top leaders meet in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. This was turned down politely by Souvanna, an informed source said.

Welcome arches and smiles greeted the commission members. A few Pathet Lao guards carried Chinese and Soviet weapons, but the atmosphere was extremely friendly. Members of the various Laotian delegations chatted and laughed like old friends, which many of them are.

The government's political representatives were assembly deputies Ou Voravong and Thong Sing, plus a six-man military group.

The Pathet Lao delegation was led by Nouhak Phoumsavan, No. 3 man in Pathet Lao.

The royal government is expected to upgrade its political side for the political talks.

jury tampering was simply another defense "press release without any foundation in fact whatsoever."

Almost a year ago Mattox was convicted of murder and sentenced to life. But the Mississippi Supreme Court tossed out the conviction and sentence on grounds of a court error.

The second trial lasted two weeks. It went to the jury late Friday, and jurors were locked in their hotel for the night. They sealed the verdict at 3:50 a.m. after just 10 hours deliberation.

Mattox took the verdict calmly. He sat motionless, his head bowed. His mother, Mrs. James Mattox Sr., wept. She rushed to her son and wrapped her arms around him. The elder Mattox clutched his son's hand.

The state's star witness in both trials was Sarah Grayson, former Mississippi State University classmate with Mattox. She testified Mattox told her of an illicit love affair with a married woman.

One-time cellmates of Mattox, Fred and Dan Wilkerson, brothers from Lake, testified he offered them money to get rid of Miss Grayson after her testimony in the first trial.

Charges of conspiracy to murder Miss Grayson are still pending against Mattox at Meridian where he was held while waiting appeal of his first conviction.

Firemen Control Devastating Fire

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Firemen — aided by planes and subsiding winds — Saturday controlled a fire that spread destruction in the Hollywood Hills' exclusive residential area.

Two U.S. Forestry Service planes dropped 1,200 gallons of borate solution on the flames in an area inaccessible to ground fire fighters.

The fire had destroyed or seriously damaged 24 homes—many of them mansions—and burned 1,200 acres in a 10-mile perimeter. Part of the fire area was only about a mile from the movie capital's famed Sunset and Hollywood boulevards.

Gusty winds forecast for Saturday did not materialize.

Winds up to 30 miles an hour swept the flames across brush-covered slopes and into residential streets Friday night.

The fire burned some homes to the ground and skipped others next door. More than 20 homes were damaged but saved.

Writer Aldous Huxley's home was destroyed.

Actress Spring Byington's home nearby was saved.

A five-story castle — built in 1920 of hand-hewn stone blocks — collapsed into a mass of rubble as the wooden framing inside burned away.

Flames threatened Griffith Observatory but were turned away. Five hundred persons — including 300 boys watching a planetarium show — were evacuated down flame-ringed roads of Griffith Park.

Much of the burned acreage was in the 5,000-acre park. The park has been the scene of many big fires, including a 1933 blaze which claimed the lives of 29 firefighters.

The flames were visible during the night from the Hollywood Hills to the sea. They spread so quickly — fanned by 30 m.p.h. gusts — that some foothill residents barely had time to flee for their lives as the fire approached.

Actor Jon Shepodd, who played the father in the original "Lassie" TV series, said he and his son and daughter missed death by 45 seconds when flames roared through a field where they had been playing ball. His home next door escaped damage.

A motorist saw the fire nearing and warned 116 Girl Scouts spending the night at Camp Hollywood. They were evacuated by automobile.

Hundreds of wild animals died as flames swept their preserves in Griffith Park, where hunting is prohibited.

Cause of the fire was being investigated. Firemen sent arson investigators into the area where flames were first reported Friday night.

Hundreds of homes were evacuated in the foothill section as the fire spread. Some residents refused to go. Actress Spring Byington waited calmly in her home as firemen doused it with water. It wasn't damaged.

"I am afraid I am a very undramatic person," she said.

Damage from the fire — including loss of miles of valuable watershed — was estimated at more than a million dollars.

Voters Approve Sales Tax, Bonds

The bond issue was approved by 2,919 votes representing $3,636,976 in property assessments. It was opposed by 1,007 votes representing $1,122,002 in assessments.

They entered the building during the night before the robbery and made an unsuccessful attempt to open the store safe themselves. Their attempt failed, so they waited for employees to arrive at 7 a.m. to open the safe.

The pair drank milk and ate some cookies from the store while they waited and stole several articles from the clothing department including a pair of nylon stockings which they used for masks. However, they removed the masks before leaving the store enabling employees to get a good look at them.

The duo then stole a car from the store custodian to make their getaway in, but abandoned it two blocks from the building.

Officials believe they may have purchased an automobile from a dealer in or near this area.

This wording, many observers thought, would be used repeatedly by the Communist camp to support the seating of the Pathet Lao at the conference table with full rights.

A spokesman for Souvanna's neutralist delegation, said that only this group had a full legal right to participate in the Geneva conference.

"But to prove our good will for a peaceful settlement in Laos we are also disposed to let the other two delegations (Boun Oum's group and the Pathet Lao) participate at the conference with equal rights."

The Americans have stressed that Boun Oum's Cabinet constitutes the royal Laotian government and operates with the legal blessing of King Savang Vathana.

It was a diplomatic merry-go-round in Geneva, with private meetings following each other in quick succession. Highlight of the day was the confrontation of Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Rusk stood firm in rejecting Soviet attempts to bring the Communist-led Pathet Lao to the conference table with the same status and privilegs as that of the pro-representatives, who finally arrived in Geneva Saturday morning.

The American secretary and Gromyko met for more than an hour without solving the problem of who will represent Laos at the conference. Rusk had his major France's Maurice Couve de Murville—along with him for support.

It remained to be seen, however, whether Rusk's position was being weakened behind the rebel lines in Laos in a dirt-floored schoolhouse, where representatives of all three Laotian factions —the Pathet Lao rebels, the neutralists and the royal government —agreed to order a formal cease-fire and begin discussions on the formation of a coalition government.

Rusk stood firm in rejecting Soviet attempts to bring the Communist-led Pathet Lao to the conference table with the same status and privilegs as that of the pro-representatives, who finally arrived in Geneva Saturday morning.

The American secretary and Gromyko met for more than an hour without solving the problem of who will represent Laos at the conference. Rusk had his major France's Maurice Couve de Murville—along with him for support.

It remained to be seen, however, whether Rusk's position was being weakened behind the rebel lines in Laos in a dirt-floored schoolhouse, where representatives of all three Laotian factions —the Pathet Lao rebels, the neutralists and the royal government —agreed to order a formal cease-fire and begin discussions on the formation of a coalition government.

LEAVES MILLIONS OF ADMIRERS

Death Ends Gary Cooper's 35-Year Career As Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long, lean Gary Cooper was tall in the saddle and in prestige, success and friendships.

Once a Montana cowboy, he studied to be a commercial artist but found he could make more money in movies. His 35-year career as a top star was the movies' most durably successful.

He became one of Hollywood's wealthiest persons, a millionaire-plus. He made 89 movies and won two movie academy Oscars — as the stern sheriff of "High Noon" in 1952 and as the most decorated U.S. soldier of World War I in "Sergeant York" 11 years earlier.

He came to the end of his career with millions of fans, admirers and friends throughout the world.

Cooper the actor played chiefly Cooper the towering, taciturn man. When he didn't, his pictures weren't successful. With a look or a quivering lip he could steal a scene. He once explained:

"I guess I just picked up things here and there from the directors and actors I worked with."

Presenting a special Oscar for the absent and ailing Cooper at the award ceremonies last April 17, director William Wyler said:

Cooper personified the American dream of how a hero should act and look — strong, taciturn but able to overcome villains with guns or fists. He could be at home also as a formally attired sophisticate in drawing-room comedy — or as a troubled, average guy in a rumpled suit.

He once remarked: "I've been projected for so many years as an average American Joe that my acceptability in offbeat roles is limited."

Another time he explained: "You find out what people expect from your type of character and then give them what they want."

He gave them what they wanted as rugged frontiersman in "The Texan," "The Man from Wyoming," "The Plainsman," "The Westerner," "Northwest Mounted Police," 'Dallas," "Man of the West," "The Hanging Tree" and other Westerns.

Memorable Cooper films also included "Farewell to Arms," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "The General Died at Dawn," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Beau Geste," and "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Men envied and women sighed over the two-fisted characters he portrayed. His films have grossed well over $200 million.

His last was "The Naked Edge," a suspense story filmed a few months ago in London with Cooper playing a murder suspect.

One of Cooper's oldest friends, actor Richard Arlen, has said of him: "Some people are just born nice guys, and nothing — not even Hollywood — can change it. Coop just likes people; it's as simple as that."

Shy though friendly, he seemed always slightly embarrassed by his fame. Guests at a testimonial dinner for Cooper, given last January by the Friars, a show-business club, included the governor and other dignitaries.

Praised by poet Carl Sandburg and other speakers, Cooper responded: "The only achievement I am really proud of is the friends I have made in this community."

Sandburg affectionately called him "one of the most beloved illiterates this country has ever known." Yet it was only a legend that Cooper's conversation was largely limited to "yup" and "nope."

His brown hair tinged with gray in later years, the blue-eyed actor stood a lanky 6 feet 3. Until cancer began its eventually widespread internal ravages, he weighed 175 pounds. Friends said the disease did not markedly change his appearance: he was always gaunt.

At birth he was named Frank James Cooper. Nan Collins, then a studio casting director and later an actors' agent, gave him his movie name.

"Nan came from Gary, Ind., and suggested I adopt that name" Cooper once explained. "She felt it was more exciting than Frank. I figured I'd give it a try. Good thing she didn't come from Poughkeepsie."

He was born May 7, 1901, at Helena, Mont. His late father, Charles Henry Cooper, had emigrated at 19 from England in 1885 and later became a Montana State Supreme Court justice.

The actor's mother, the former Alice Bracia, had come from Britain to visit a brother but stayed to marry Cooper's father.

At 9, the future actor and his older brother Arthur were sent to England for four years at Dunstable School. They returned with English accents.

Judge Cooper, meanwhile, had bought a ranch 60 miles from Helena. There young Cooper learned to ride and work with cows. In World War I he quit school and ran 500 head of cattle on the ranch.

He majored in art for three years at Grinnell College in Iowa, then came to Los Angeles hoping to get work as a newspaper cartoonist.

Editors were unimpressed with his work. He sold classified ads and baby photos and helped paint theater curtains. On a Hollywood street one day he ran into three former Montana pals.

They told him they were making $25 per fall off horses in the movies. "Why," Cooper marveled later, "we did that for nothing back at the ranch!"

Through his chums Cooper got into the movies: "Some days I was a cowboy before lunch and an Injun in the afternoon." His first job was holding a horse's hind foot, for $10, while Dustin Farnum shod it.

He got work in a Tom Mix Western and learned that Mix was getting $15,000 a week.

"It started me thinking," he recalled. "I had hoped to reach $10,000 a year in the advertising business, but it looked pretty small to me then. So you can see I had no burning, inward desire to express myself—I just thought the money looked good."

Producer Sam Goldwyn cast Cooper as a cowboy in "The Winning of Barbara Worth." When it was released, Paramount signed him at $125 a week and cast him in "Wings." At Clara Bow's urging he then was cast opposite her in "Children of Divorce." The year was 1927—and Cooper was on his way.

His leading ladies through the years have included all the top actresses from Evelyn Brent, Colleen Moore, Mary Brian and Fay Wray to Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert, Sylvia Sidney, Tallulah Bankhead, Helen Hayes, Carole Lombard, Jean Arthur, Barbara Stanwyck, Ingrid Bergman and Grace Kelly.

In his bachelor days gossip columnists linked him romantically with Miss Dietrich, Miss Bow and Lupe Velez.

Cooper's wife is Veronica Balfe, a New York socialite who had done a few minor movie roles under the name Sandra Shaw before their marriage in 1933. Their daughter Maria, 23, is an art student.

The Coopers' lavish, one-story home is on three hillside acres in the plush Holmby Hills area of West Los Angeles.

The sunny, medium-size bedroom where Cooper awaited death is in the center of the house. It has several crammed bookcases, an easy chair, a window overlooking part of the garden.

On his portable TV Cooper watched friend Jimmy Stewart's almost tearful tribute at the recent Academy Awards: "We're all very proud of you, Coop. All of us are tremendously proud."

Barnett Silent On Session To Oust Adjutant

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett declined comment Saturday on reports that he is considering legislative action to oust Adjutant Gen. W. P. Wilson.

A Capitol source said Friday the governor was considering a special session to impeach Wilson or asking the Senate in the 1962 legislature to rescind its confirmation of the 64-year-old Wilson.

The governor and Wilson have been at odds recently on the appointment of a maintenance supervisor for a Jackson Air National Guard unit.

GEN. LEMNITZER SAYS

Dangers Of War No Greater Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has told Congress the danger of general war is no greater now than it was a year ago even though the international situation has deteriorated.

But he also said a "good many" new crises are developing throughout the world along the pattern of Cuba and Laos.

Lemnitzer told the House Armed Services Committee in testimony published Friday that he believes no nation would embark on such a war deliberately when it knows that the conflict would result in its own destruction.

But he warned of the possibility of a general war starting by accident, or through the mushrooming of a seemingly limited conflict.

In reporting on the deterioration in international affairs during the past year, Lemnitzer cited the situation in the Congo, in Southeast Asia and in Cuba. Here is his assessment of the situation, as [illegible] heavily censored text: [illegible]

—Of the 210 accidents [illegible] passengers and crew members, more than 60 per cent of those aboard survived.

—There was no fire involved in about 81 per cent of the accidents surveyed [illegible]

—Most accidents did occur in winter (29.1 per cent), but summer ran a close second (27.4 per cent) with fall next (24.2) and spring was the safest season (19.3). January was the worst month, followed by March, September and December.

—There were 70 accidents involving planes between one and three years old, 58 involving aircraft between four and six years old and [illegible] from seven to 10 years old. This meant nearly half the crashes involved planes less than 10 years old and almost one-fourth aircraft less than three years old.

—49.8 per cent of the crashes occurred during approaches or landings, 34.8 per cent took place during normal flight altitudes and only 15.9 per cent during takeoffs. This was viewed as refutation of the belief that takeoffs are the most dangerous part of a flight.

The survey found that pilot error was the most frequent [illegible] weather was a contributing factor [illegible]

The [illegible] Three out of every four crashes involved pilots between [illegible] years old. [illegible]

The report [illegible] no longer a significant factor. Only about 4 per cent of the accidents studied involved possible sabotage.

But it also revealed that improper maintenance was a factor in 19 per cent of the crashes and that about 22 per cent of the planes were not in an airworthy condition.

"These figures should indicate that there is room for improvement within the areas of maintenance and overhaul," the author said.

GEN. LEMNITZER SAYS

Dangers Of War No Greater Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has told Congress the danger of general war is no greater now than it was a year ago even though the international situation has deteriorated.

But he also said a "good many" new crises are developing throughout the world along the pattern of Cuba and Laos.

Lemnitzer told the House Armed Services Committee in testimony published Friday that he believes no nation would embark on such a war deliberately when it knows that the conflict would result in its own destruction.

But he warned of the possibility of a general war starting by accident, or through the mushrooming of a seemingly limited conflict.

In reporting on the deterioration in international affairs during the past year, Lemnitzer cited the situation in the Congo, in Southeast Asia and in Cuba. Here is his assessment of the situation as given in heavily - censored testimony:

"I would say that the imminence of general war is not any greater today than it was a year ago. I happen to be one who believes that no one is going to deliberately embark on a general war if he knows and he is assured it is going to result in his own destruction.

"But we always have the problem of a general war occurring through accident — or through escalation of a small war.

"There is one thing I am sure of and that is in the past year there has been a deterioration in the international situation from that existed when I was before this committee a year ago.

"We have now the Congo. We have the serious situation in Southeast Asia. We have a Cuban problem that is a very troublesome one. And there are a good many others that seem to be developing . . .

"Whether there could be a war arising out of these small but troublesome situations, I don't know. The threat is there, nevertheless."

Survey Hits Theories On Air Crashes

Published by researcher Ron Castellucci of the University of Miami (Fla.) aviation division, it contradicts such commonly - held ideas that few people survive crashes, that the overwhelming majority of crashes result in fire on impact, that winter flying is far more dangerous than summer flying, that older planes are more likely to have accidents than new ones, and that more accidents occur during landings and takeoffs than in normal flight.

—Of the 219 accidents involving 5,346 passengers and crew members, more than 60 per cent of those aboard, survived.

—There was no fire involved in about 41 per cent of the accidents surveyed, a surprisingly low total.

—Most accidents did occur in winter (28.3 per cent), but summer ran a close second (27.9 per cent) with fall next (24.2) and spring was the safest season (19.6). January was the worst month followed by August, September and December.

—There were 50 accidents involving planes between one and three years old; 28 involving aircraft between three and six years old and 20 involving airliners from seven to 10 years old. This meant nearly half the crashes involved planes less than 10 years old and almost one-fourth aircraft less than three years old.

—43.3 per cent of the crashes occurred during approaches or landings, but 37.8 per cent took place during normal flight attitudes and only 18.9 per cent during takeoffs. This was viewed as refutation of the belief that takeoffs are the most dangerous part of a flight.

The survey found that pilot error was the most frequent crash cause (62.5 per cent) with euipment failure second (27.4 per cent). But it also showed that weather was a contributing factor in nearly 60 per cent of the accidents, including many blamed on pilot error.

The survey also went into pilot ages in the 219 accidents studied. Three out of every four crashes involved pilots between 30 and 44 years old. The safest age group was 55-59, involved in less than one per cent of the crashes. The author pointed out, however, that the majority of pilots are between 30 and 40 years old and that their rate of involvement is expected to be higher.

The report noted that overloading, once a frequent cause of accidents, was no longer a significant factor. Only about 4 per cent of the accidents studied involved possible overloading.

But it also revealed that improper maintenance was a factor in 19 per cent of the crashes and that about 22 per cent of the planes were not in an airworthy condition.

"These figures should indicate that there is room for improvement within the areas of maintenance and overhaul," the author said.

Governor Gets Apologies For Traffic Ticket

RENO, Nev. (AP) —Gov. Grant Sawyer won't have to pay a $2 fine for parking in a restricted zone at the city airport. The city manager and airport manager will do it for him — with apologies.

"This area was designated for the governor's use," City Manager Joe Latimore said Friday. "We have asked the governor to accept our apologies for having failed to inform the police of the special permit.

"Since we fix no tickets in the city of Reno, airport manager Joe Hicks and myself will be happy to pay the fine."

er, administered last rites of the Catholic Church Friday. He said he spoke to Cooper Thursday and was "amazed at how alert he was."

"He was very much resigned to his condition," he added.

The tall, tacitiurn screen hero—whose trademarks were his leathery face and abrupt "yup" and "nope" — ranked with the late Clark Gable atop the roster of screen greats. Cooper was a top star longer than any other—nearly 35 years.

His passing was another saddening loss to the thinning ranks of players whose popularity stretched from silent films into the movies' golden heyday of the 1930s, the war years and postwar years.

For Hollywood, the loss was sore indeed. Coop's personal popularity was perhaps unmatched for a star of his stature. The town became a place of gloom when the nature of his illness was made known.

The world learned of the gravity of his condition after the April 17 Academy Awards show, at which he was given an honorary Oscar to go with those he won as best actor of 1941 ("Sergeant York") and 1952 ("High Noon").

James Stewart accepted the statuette for Cooper and, eyes brimming and voice faltering, said: "We're all very proud of you, Coop. All of us are tremendously proud."

The emotional acceptance prompted inquiries from all over the world. Two days later, the family announced Cooper was gravely ill.

Fears for his health began a year ago after a prostate operation. He denied then that there was a malignancy. "I was living with uremic poisoning for two years," he said.

Five weeks later, a cancerous portion of his colon was removed. He wouldn't admit it. His explanation: "I had an obstruction."

He recovered enough to make a last film, "The Naked Edge," in London.

Back in Hollywood, he was honored Jan. 8 at a testimonial dinner that sounded like a fond farewell. With typical modesty, he told the assembled film notables: "I want to thank each and every one of you for coming here tonight. Never has so much fuss been made by so many for so little."

Intimates said he knew all along the gravity of his condition, and took it with the stoic calm with which he faced down villains in 70 starring movies.

In final weeks, he watched TV, read and sat in the sun beside his swimming pool. He saw the Oscar telecast and was pleased with his award.

Callers at his modern, one-story home on three hillside acres included the James Stewarts, the Danny Kayes, actor Mel Ferrer and wife Audrey Hepburn, producer Billy Wilder and his wife and producer Jerry Wald.

Cooper's career was unrivaled. Unlike other superstars, he experienced no serious slumps.

His slim, angular frame (6 feet 3, 175 pounds); his stern face (with boyish grin); his terse, pithy speech; his bashful manner with women — they epitomized the American action hero.

In his most memorable roles, he played outdoorsmen — quick with guns or fists, the living portrait of what men envied and women admired.

Cooper created the classic Western scene in his first really starring film, "The Virginian," in 1929: The showdown gun fight with the villain in the dusty, deserted street. Later, it was done to death in movies and TV. But Cooper still brought it enough integrity to win an Oscar for it in "High Noon."

He was a hero in many times and places: an intrepid officer in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" . . . gallant Lou Gehrig in "Pride of the Yankees" . . . the brave idealist in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" . . . the straight shooter in "The Westerner," "The Cowboy and the Lady," "The Plainsman," "Dallas," "Springfield Rifle," "The Spilers" and dozens of other Westerns.

But there was no limit on his skill. He was deft as a bumbling average guy or as a drawing room sophisticate. He had a gift for comedy, and fellow actors regarded his tragic scenes as classics.

Some of his nonheroic roles — like the pixilated but wily heir in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" — clicked. Others didn't, like: the wolfish millionaire in "Love in the Afternoon," the cowardly commander in "They Came to Cordura," the confused architect in "The Fountainhead," the well-meaning failure in "Good Sam."

Cooper once offered this formula for film success: "You find out what people expect from your type of character and then give them what they want."

He also said: "I have a knack for following a bad picture with a good one. I'm a great comebacker."

Even Hollywood's long-time king, Gable, who died last November, suffered career dips Cooper never met.

Cooper had more hit films than Gable, and earned more in later years — but never had a classic role to match Gable's Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind."

A fellow star once said: "Coop has mastered the art of acting for films. He doesn't declaim, the way stage actors do. His greatness is his reaction. He says little, lets the others do the talking. But when the camera is focused on his face, his reaction is more eloquent than words."

He was one of Hollywood's highest-paid performers. His 20-year contract with Warner Bros. called for a picture a year for a flat $275,000 each. On all other pictures, he received $250,000 plus a percentage of the profits.

Funeral services have been set for Tuesday.

Solemn requiem High Mass will be celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel Sullivan at the Good Shepherd church in Beverly Hills. Msgr. Sullivan is pastor of the church and was a long-time friend of Cooper. He was at the actor's home when he died.

The Mitchell Boys Choir—which Cooper admired—will sing.

Pallbearers will be Henry Hathaway, director; William Goetz, film executive; James Stewart; Jack Benny; Charles K. Feldman, producers agent, and Producer Jerry Wald.

Only members of the family and closest friends will attend. A private ceremony will be held at graveside for the family only.

'Quake Shakes Towns In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — An earthquake of moderate intensity shook six towns in southern Chile early Saturday.

The quake occurred at 3:50 a.m. in Concepcion, Lebu, Los Angeles, Coronel, Angol and Chillan.

There wer no reports of casualties or damage.

This was the third straight day of quakes in this area which was hard hit May 21 of last year by quakes and tidal waves.

Soldier Accused Of Driving Over Woman's Body

CHICAGO (AP)—A recently discharged soldier was accused Saturday of driving his automobile repeatedly over the body of a woman lying in the street.

The dead woman was Veronica Varkalis, of suburban Chicago Ridge, 44, the mother of four.

Police of the village said Kenneth Wayne Robinson, 25, seized after he was reported seen with the woman in a tavern, admitted driving over her body "three or four times." No reason was given.

Robinson was held without charge.

Police said three people saw an auto maneuvering in an intersection before dawn, repeatedly running over an object in the street.

$5.4 million a year to pay off, principal and interest, and by 1965 it will be erased from the books.

An administration informant said because of that, there is elbow room now to prepare a new highway bond issue — he wouldn't say how much. But the people would have to approve it at the polls in 1962.

The Davis administration might decide to wait until the 1962 legislature, and it might decide to go ahead now and ask the new bond issue — subject to the 1962 popular vote.

Next Wednesday is the deadline for any new bills, and Rep. Kenneth Barranger's House screening committee goes to work Monday on 74 bills which may or may not be admitted as fiscal legislation. His group already has permitted introduction of 62 appropriations bills.

Almost simultaneously, Rep. Bryan Lehmann Jr.'s House Appropriations Committee starts hearings on the administration's record $513 million general appropriations bill.

Chances are the legislature will approve it just about the way the governor wants it.

er, administered last rites of the Catholic Church Friday. He said he spoke to Cooper Thursday and was "amazed at how alert he was."

"He was very much resigned to his condition," he added.

The tall, tacitiurn screen hero—whose trademarks were his leathery face and abrupt "yup" and "nope" — ranked with the late Clark Gable atop the roster of screen greats. Cooper was a top star longer than any other—nearly 35 years.

His passing was another saddening loss to the thinning ranks of players whose popularity stretched from silent films into the movies' golden heyday of the 1930s, the war years and postwar years.

For Hollywood, the loss was sore indeed. Coop's personal popularity was perhaps unmatched for a star of his stature. The town became a place of gloom when the nature of his illness was made known.

The world learned of the gravity of his condition after the April 17 Academy Awards show, at which he was given an honorary Oscar to go with those he won as best actor of 1941 ("Sergeant York") and 1952 ("High Noon").

James Stewart accepted the statuette for Cooper and, eyes brimming and voice faltering, said: "We're all very proud of you, Coop. All of us are tremendously proud."

The emotional acceptance prompted inquiries from all over the world. Two days later, the family announced Cooper was gravely ill.

Fears for his health began a year ago after a prostate operation. He denied then that there was a malignancy. "I was living with uremic poisoning for two years," he said.

Five weeks later, a cancerous portion of his colon was removed. He wouldn't admit it. His explanation: "I had an obstruction."

He recovered enough to make a last film, "The Naked Edge," in London.

Back in Hollywood, he was honored Jan. 8 at a testimonial dinner that sounded like a fond farewell. With typical modesty, he told the assembled film notables: "I want to thank each and every one of you for coming here tonight. Never has so much fuss been made by so many for so little."

Intimates said he knew all along the gravity of his condition, and took it with the stoic calm with which he faced down villains in 70 starring movies.

In final weeks, he watched TV, read and sat in the sun beside his swimming pool. He saw the Oscar telecast and was pleased with his award.

Callers at his modern, one-story home on three hillside acres included the James Stewarts, the Danny Kayes, actor Mel Ferrer and wife Audrey Hepburn, producer Billy Wilder and his wife and producer Jerry Wald.

Cooper's career was unrivaled. Unlike other superstars, he experienced no serious slumps.

His slim, angular frame (6 feet 3, 175 pounds); his stern face (with boyish grin); his terse, pithy speech; his bashful manner with women — they epitomized the American action hero.

In his most memorable roles, he played outdoorsmen — quick with guns or fists, the living portrait of what men envied and women admired.

Cooper created the classic Western scene in his first really starring film, "The Virginian," in 1929: The showdown gun fight with the villain in the dusty, deserted street. Later, it was done to death in movies and TV. But Cooper still brought it enough integrity to win an Oscar for it in "High Noon."

He was a hero in many times and places: an intrepid officer in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" . . . gallant Lou Gehrig in "Pride of the Yankees" . . . the brave idealist in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" . . . the straight shooter in "The Westerner," "The Cowboy and the Lady," "The Plainsman," "Dallas," "Springfield Rifle," "The Spilers" and dozens of other Westerns.

But there was no limit on his skill. He was deft as a bumbling average guy or as a drawing room sophisticate. He had a gift for comedy, and fellow actors regarded his tragic scenes as classics.

Some of his nonheroic roles — like the pixilated but wily heir in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" — clicked. Others didn't, like: the wolfish millionaire in "Love in the Afternoon," the cowardly commander in "They Came to Cordura," the confused architect in "The Fountainhead," the well-meaning failure in "Good Sam."

Cooper once offered this formula for film success: "You find out what people expect from your type of character and then give them what they want."

He also said: "I have a knack for following a bad picture with a good one. I'm a great comebacker."

Even Hollywood's long-time king, Gable, who died last November, suffered career dips Cooper never met.

Cooper had more hit films than Gable, and earned more in later years — but never had a classic role to match Gable's Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind."

A fellow star once said: "Coop has mastered the art of acting for films. He doesn't declaim, the way stage actors do. His greatness is his reaction. He says little, lets the others do the talking. But when the camera is focused on his face, his reaction is more eloquent than words."

He was one of Hollywood's highest-paid performers. His 20-year contract with Warner Bros. called for a picture a year for a flat $275,000 each. On all other pictures, he received $250,000 plus a percentage of the profits.

Funeral services have been set for Tuesday.

Solemn requiem High Mass will be celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel Sullivan at the Good Shepherd church in Beverly Hills. Msgr. Sullivan is pastor of the church and was a long-time friend of Cooper. He was at the actor's home when he died.

The Mitchell Boys Choir—which Cooper admired—will sing.

Pallbearers will be Henry Hathaway, director; William Goetz, film executive; James Stewart; Jack Benny; Charles K. Feldman, producers agent, and Producer Jerry Wald.

Only members of the family and closest friends will attend. A private ceremony will be held at graveside for the family only.

'Quake Shakes Towns In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — An earthquake of moderate intensity shook six towns in southern Chile early Saturday.

The quake occurred at 3:50 a.m. in Concepcion, Lebu, Los Angeles, Coronel, Angol and Chillan.

There wer no reports of casualties or damage.

This was the third straight day of quakes in this area which was hard hit May 21 of last year by quakes and tidal waves.

Soldier Accused Of Driving Over Woman's Body

CHICAGO (AP)—A recently discharged soldier was accused Saturday of driving his automobile repeatedly over the body of a woman lying in the street.

The dead woman was Veronica Varkalis, of suburban Chicago Ridge, 44, the mother of four.

Police of the village said Kenneth Wayne Robinson, 25, seized after he was reported seen with the woman in a tavern, admitted driving over her body "three or four times." No reason was given.

Robinson was held without charge.

Police said three people saw an auto maneuvering in an intersection before dawn, repeatedly running over an object in the street.

$5.4 million a year to pay off, principal and interest, and by 1965 it will be erased from the books.

An administration informant said because of that, there is elbow room now to prepare a new highway bond issue — he wouldn't say how much. But the people would have to approve it at the polls in 1962.

The Davis administration might decide to wait until the 1962 legislature, and it might decide to go ahead now and ask the new bond issue — subject to the 1962 popular vote.

Next Wednesday is the deadline for any new bills, and Rep. Kenneth Barranger's House screening committee goes to work Monday on 74 bills which may or may not be admitted as fiscal legislation. His group already has permitted introduction of 62 appropriations bills.

Almost simultaneously, Rep. Bryan Lehmann Jr.'s House Appropriations Committee starts hearings on the administration's record $513 million general appropriations bill.

Chances are the legislature will approve it just about the way the governor wants it.

JFK REGIME BELIEVES

Ousting Castro May Take Years

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Kennedy administration is now resigned to the idea that ridding Cuba of Castro and communism is going to be a long, slow process, perhaps a matter for the next two or five or even more years.

There is now no question in policy making circles here of any immediate feasible steps to overthrow the dictator.

When the April 17 exile invasion failed, a problem of "what to do now about Cuba" cam under searching review in the State Department, White House and National Security Council.

The general thinking that emerged was this:

It is now clear that the overthrow of Castro will have to come mainly from within Cuba itself.

Both President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have publicly ruled out any attack by U.S. forces.

What must take place now is a slow build-up of an underground resistance movement in Cuba and development of a big segment of the people to rebel.

It was this element that was missing in the exiles' invasion.

The underground organization which did exist on the island is believed to have been badly disrupted by mass arrests.

The next task of the Cuban exiles in this country, many U. S. officials believe, should be dedicated to rebuilding their organization in Cuba rather than planning any invasion attempt. The rebuilding could take time and developing popular sentiment for revolt could take even longer.

Many believe that simply not enough Cuban people were dissatisfied with Castro's regime to rise up against him.

Hopes of immediate tough action against the Castro government by the Organization of the American States have been abandoned. Brazil and other nations have blocked economic sanctions against Cuba by the OAS, contending that the OAS principl of non-intervention must be maintained.

Tallulah Area College Grads Hold Meeting

TALLULAH (Special) — The Tallulah Area Alumni Chapter of Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association held its second meeting Tuesday at the Tallulah Elementary School.

Dr. Georg T. Walker, president of the college, presented the group with its charter. Doyle Canterbury, president of the Chapter, accepted the charter on behalf of the organization.

Other officers of the chapter are H. Robert Boone Halbach, vice president; Charles LaPrade Porter, secretary-treasurer and Ted J. [illegible], publicity director.

Projects were discussed and plans were made to meet every three months. The group hopes to join ex-students on Northeast College Campus Saturday, October 28 to go by chartered buses to the first State Fair football game in which Northeast has ever participated. The Northeast Indians will play the University of Southwestern in Shreveport on that date.

Marcus Mapp of the Geology Dpartment of the College, showed colored slides of the Campus and candid shots of various activities of the Alumni at other chapter meetings.

Dr. Walker spoke to the group on the rapid growth of the College and outlined the academic and building program of the school.

The Tallulah Area Chapter is the second one to be so organized by the Northeast Alumni Association. The first one was the Shreveport Area Chapter. This group received its charter on February 24 of this year.

Congolese May Have Showdown In Parliament

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo Saturday challenged Soviet-supported rebel leader Antoine Gizenga to a showdown of strength in a new session of Parliament.

The Congolese president announced the move at a confereence in Coquilhatvill, where political leaders are trying to hammer out a new constitution for the Congo. He said he would ask the United Nations to guarantee the security of all members of Parliament. The session probably will be held late in June.

Parliament has not met since last September, when the late Premier Patrice Lumumba shot through legislation giving him almost dictatorial powers.

Shiver Says Peace Corps Interest High

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — R. Sargent Shriver, director of the U.S. Peace Corps, said Saturday he has received uniformly favorable response to the project on his swing through eight nations of Africa and the Far East.

He indicated Thailand and Tanganyika will be the countries in which concrete operations will start.

"We have been received generously and with great interest everywhere," Shriver told a news conference in Bangkok.

He said he had long discussions with Thailand's deputy prime minister, Thanom Kittikachorn, and Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman.

"By June 1 we expect to reach understanding with Thai government officials about what we can do here," Shriver said.

Agreements already concluded would have the Peace Corps supply Tanganyika with 20 highway surveyors, 4 geologists and 4 civil engineers. The group will train in the United States three months beginning June 1 and get two months additional training in Tanganhika itself.

Shriver said he had long talks with Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi, Pakistan's President Ayub Khan in Karachi and Burmese Prime Minister U Nu.

"Prime Minister U Nu said he hoped Peace Corps volunteers would be sent to Burma," he said.

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Cloy O. McKay, 53, of Theodore was charged with second degree burglary Saturday after being nabbed in a drugstore, trying to crack a safe.

McKay was arrested shortly before midnight in a suburban shopping center after four policemen had spotted him entering the store with a screwdriver.

Officers said McKay was carrying a quantity of narcotics as well as burglary tools when arrested.

U.S. COUNCIL REPORTS

Business Recovery Setting Fast Pace

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—The government's Business Advisory Council told Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges Saturday the business recovery has taken off at a faster pace than anticipated.

Hodges concurred in the council's forecast that national production would end the year at a $520-billion annual rate. That would be a 4 per cent increase from the recession low of $499.5 billion in the January-March quarter.

The business group also foresaw stable prices ahead. A rise of only about 1 per cent in the next 18 months was predicted.

The council, made up of about 160 industrialists representing scores of the country's biggest corporations, met here in closed session, but reporters were briefed afterwards by Hodges, F. R. Kappel, president of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and others.

It had been disclosed earlier that a majority of the council's panel of professional economic consultants had foreseen a $525 billion rate of Gross National Product by the last quarter of the year, a bit higher than the judgment of the council's Economic Committee headed by Kappel.

Kappel said that virtually all major segments of business except retailing shared in the gains last month. The council nevertheless feels that the $520-billion production rate by year's end is an appropriate guess, Kappel said.

This figure represents the dollar value of all goods and services produced. The industrial production index, representing only the output of mines, factories and utilities, may be expected to climb from 104 per cent of the 1957 average in this quarter to 106 per cent in the summer quarter and 110 per cent in the final quarter, Kappel said.

The council also heard a prediction of substantial improvement in the country's balance of international payments. This report was given by S. Clark Beise, president of the Bank of America, San Francisco.

The over-all deficit may be whittled to about $1.5 billion this year, Beise said, as against the $3.8-billion deficit of 1961.

A shift in the direction of wage policies was reported by the chairman of the council's Labor-Management Policy Committee, T. F. Patton, president of the Republic Steel Corp., Cleveland.

Patton said that in the recent rubber-industry wage settlement, "the union recognized that there should be different wage levels applying to different units even in the same company." The basic wage for tire makers no longer necessarily applies, he said, to employes who produce rubber raincoats and other goods.

PAR Report Tax Changes Could Save

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) today reported the state could change one tax law to save tobacco users substantial federal income tax payments and could change another tax law with the possibility of getting more state revenue without an added burden on Louisiana citizens.

PAR said these could be achieved by:

1. Legally designating tobacco taxes paid to the state as consumer taxes and thus make them eligible for deductions in computing federal income taxes.

2. Revising the inheritance and estate taxes to take advantage of a proposal pending in the U. S. Congress to give states a greater share in death taxes.

In reference to the possible savings to tobacco users, PAR estimated the potential at about $2.5 million a year.

An increasing number of states — now 21 — are designating tobacco taxes as consumer taxes and thus making them eligible as tax payments that could be deducted in filing federal income tax returns. A bill offered now in the legislature (HB 46) would do this for cigarette users in the state.

If the legislature should make this change in the state law, there would be no loss in revenue to the state. At present, the tobacco tax yields about $31 million a year.

Discussing in its Legislative Bulletin these possible tax law changes, PAR said that the advisory council on intergovernmental relations is sponsoring the change in death tax laws in Congress. The proposal would bring about greater uniformity in the handling of estate taxes by the federal government.

It is estimated the federal government would give up a maximum of $400 million a year in inheritance tax revenue if Congress passes the pending proposal. Louisiana could share in this by changing its inheritance and estate tax laws to conform to the proposal.

If this change is made, there would be no additional burden on heirs who would pay the same total in federal and state taxes — but the state could get more of the revenue.

Allies Given Aid Pledge By Johnson

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson pledged Saturday America never will desert friends who have the will to survive the threat of communism. He warned the Reds are testing this will in many places.

"America will honor her commitments to the cause of freedom throughout the community of free nations," he told a joint session of the Philippines Congress. "Our friends can count on America, and we know we can count on our friends—none more than our old and cherished friends, the Filipino people."

Later, Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia, in a toast to President Kennedy, said the Philippines looks on Johnson's tour of Southeast Asian nations "as a positive demonstration of the unwavering resolution of the American government and people."

Johnson responded with the strongest statement he has made in the Philippines since arriving:

"We will continue to honor our obligations and will proceed either alone or with our free world friends to preserve our position in Asia."

This appeared to answer Philippine anxieties that the United States was easing its commitments in Asia.

"Communism is testing our good will by many tactics in many places."

Johnson made clear the United States will not restrict itself to fighting communism militarily:

"Americans will continue in the future — even more than in the past—to march with you in the war against poverty, illiteracy, disease and other needless afflictions upon the people.

Americans stand with and beside Asians in determination that our mutual cause of peace, justice and freedom will prevail, will succeed and will win."

Brazilian Navy Conducts Search For Submarine

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) A Brazilian Navy Squadron scoured the tropical waters off Bahia Saturday for a submarine reported sighted by a fisherman 20 miles out.

The Navy Ministry said it had received word from the U. S. Navy that no American submarines are operating in that area.

A Brazilian Navy spokesman said hours after the submarine report came in at 7 a.m. that a dozen Brazilian warships had made no contact with any underwater object.

Navy sources said the fisherman reported he saw the submarine surface off the provincial capital of Salvador, 800 miles northeast of Rio De Janeiro. It submerged minutes later.

Mystery submarines frequently have been reported off the South American coast, but the reports rarely have been confirmed.

Turkish Dancer Takes Overdose Of Tranquilizers

NEW YORK (AP) — Turkish dancer Nejla Ates, 28, was rushed to a hospital Saturday after taking an overdose of tranquilizers and aspirin, police reported. Later, at Grand Central Hospital her condition was reported fair.

The hospital was called to her apartment at 140 E. 56th St. by singer Bobby Colt, whose wife, dancer Hope Diamond, last month won a legal separation on the grounds he deserted her for Miss Ates.

Colt said she took an overdose of medicine after they quarreled because he wanted to read and she wanted to talk.

Miss Ates appeared in the Broadway production of "Fanny" and in numerous films and nightclubs. She once was engaged to Texas oil millionaire Sheppard (Abdullah) King but broke the engagement after five weeks.

U.S. COUNCIL REPORTS

Business Recovery Setting Fast Pace

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—The government's Business Advisory Council told Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges Saturday the business recovery has taken off at a faster pace than anticipated.

Hodges concurred in the council's forecast that national production would end the year at a $520-billion annual rate. That would be a 4 per cent increase from the recession low of $499.5 billion in the January-March quarter.

The business group also foresaw stable prices ahead. A rise of only about 1 per cent in the next 18 months was predicted.

The council, made up of about 160 industrialists representing scores of the country's biggest corporations, met here in closed session, but reporters were briefed afterwards by Hodges, F. R. Kappel, president of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and others.

CONGRESSMEN SAY

Drastic Shakeup Of CIA Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed members of Congress are convinced that a drastic shakeup of the Central Intelligence Agency is in the making, with Allen Dulles on his way out as head of the agency.

President Kennedy is expected to get recommendations within a few days from a task force of investigators headed by retired Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, on possible changes in the agency's setup. The report almost certainly will not be made public.

The assumption on Capitol Hill is that Taylor, who has been aided in his survey by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, will be tapped to head the revamped organization. Congressional sources discount reports that Ambassador James M. Gavin, also a retired general, might be recalled from Paris to take over as administrator.

Dulles and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, are also aiding in the Taylor inquiry.

Officials who have been kept abreast of the progress of Taylor's inquiry believe he will recommend a separation of the intelligence and underground activities of the CIA of the type that involved it in the ill-fated Cuban invasion.

There is strong opposition among congressional leaders to transferring to the Pentagon direction of the underground action activities — those which seek to attain military objectives by guerrilla, underground or other unconventional methods.

But influential members of both parties feel that the worldwide task of gathering intelligence ought to be kept separate from clandestine efforts made to bolster anti-Communist movements.

Furthermore, these congressional officials are opposed to having the CIA evaluate the intelligence it gets. They want a separate agency, perhaps the National Security Council under the President's direction, to interpret the reports.

On the action Kennedy takes on these matters may depend the fate of a move in Congress to set up a watchdog committee to keep tabs on what the CIA is doing, just as the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee reviews the operations of the Atomic Energy Commission.

CIA has always opposed any such setup, largely on the grounds that its operations are so clouded with secrecy that no group outside the executive department ought to know in any detail what it is doing. The implication has been that if congressmen know too much, there will be damaging leaks.

In the past the CIA has been answerable only to intelligence subcommittees of the Senate and House armed services and appropriations committees.

However, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said this check has been only of the touch-and-go type that usually covered activities that already had taken place.

The Go-Kart Kraze

By ANN DRAPER

Dallas families have fallen victim to a new kind of malady—the go-kart kraze. Epidemically speaking, it's about as katching as a kase of measles and a heck of a lot more fun.

Once exposed, you're a goer, with no immunity in sight.

The popularity may stem from the fact that go-karting is a sport for all ages and both sexes. And perhaps it is helped along by the fact that most of us have a smithering of dare-devil.

Kart tracks have sprung up on all sides, and you can rent and ride or take your own for racing. (There are slower models for racers under 12 and over 60.)

CONGRESSMEN SAY

Drastic Shakeup Of CIA Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed members of Congress are convinced that a drastic shakeup of the Central Intelligence Agency is in the making, with Allen Dulles on his way out as head of the agency.

President Kennedy is expected to get recommendations within a few days from a task force of investigators headed by retired Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, on possible changes in the agency's setup. The report almost certainly will not be made public.

The assumption on Capitol Hill is that Taylor, who has been aided in his survey by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, will be tapped to head the revamped organization. Congressional sources discount reports that Ambassador James M. Gavin, also a retired general, might be recalled from Paris to take over as administrator.

Dulles and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, are also aiding in the Taylor inquiry.

Officials who have been kept abreast of the progress of Taylor's inquiry believe he will recommend a separation of the intelligence and underground activities of the CIA of the type that involved it in the ill-fated Cuban invasion.

There is strong opposition among congressional leaders to transferring to the Pentagon direction of the underground action activities — those which seek to attain military objectives by guerrilla, underground or other unconventional methods.

But influential members of both parties feel that the worldwide task of gathering intelligence ought to be kept separate from clandestine efforts made to bolster anti-Communist movements.

Furthermore, these congressional officials are opposed to having the CIA evaluate the intelligence it gets. They want a separate agency, perhaps the National Security Council under the President's direction, to interpret the reports.

On the action Kennedy takes on these matters may depend the fate of a move in Congress to set up a watchdog committee to keep tabs on what the CIA is doing, just as the Senate - House Atomic Energy Committee reviews the operations of the Atomic Energy Commission.

CIA has always opposed any such setup, largely on the grounds that its operations are so clouded with secrecy that no group outside the executive department ought to know in any detail what it is doing. The implication has been that if congressmen know too much, there will be damaging leaks.

In the past the CIA has been answerable only to intelligence subcommittees of the Senate and House armed services and appropriations committees.

However, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said this check has been only of the touch-and-go type that usually covered activities that already had taken place.

Kart Craze Captures Family

By ROBERTA APPLEGATE
Herald Staff Writer

The Ray Stamper family measures everything in their life by "BK and AK" — before and after karts.

"BK" was before Christmas 1959, when Dot and Ray bought a kart for their son Corky, then 11. Three months later they gave daughter Penny a kart for her 13th birthday.

Now, practically all their spare time — mother, father and children — is spent with the karts and kart racing. The Stampers like it that way.

Mrs. Stamper is a racing official, teacher, handicapper, timekeeper and enforcer of rules. Mr. Stamper, an expert mechanic, safety checks all karts before races, often works in the pits. And the children win championships.

The Kart craze has been sweeping the country, and kart racing is an increasingly important sport for both children and adults. Karts are simple, flat close - to - the-ground vehicles equipped with

Hospital Work Is On Schedule

Work on West Monroe's new Glenwood Hospital, rising steadily at the juncture of Thomas and McMillan Roads, is "running just about on schedule — ahead in some areas, a little behind in others," Howard Pardue said Friday.

According to Pardue, construction superintendent for Jesse F. Heard and Sons, general contractor on the job, insulators, lathers and plasterers are expected to arrive on the scene early next week.

"Bad weather a couple of months back slowed us down somewhat but somehow we managed to keep plugging along," Pardue said, "and I don't see any reason now why we can't be through and out of here by December."

Since it has been noted by some West Monroe officials that the structure might not be opened to the public until late 1962, a December completion would be considerably ahead of schedule.

However, Beuford Jacka, architect on the project, forecast yesterday that, with any luck, the hospital should be in operation sometime in March of 1962.

"Builders are looking to finish late this year or early in '62," he said, "and installation of equipment shouldn't take more than two months."

RUNNING AHEAD

Pardue said that brick and structural work was well ahead of schedule. He termed the boiler room and laundry in the extreme rear of the building as the major area remaining for the bricklayers, and an arcade running from the hospital proper to it, still is left to be covered.

Though slated for completion in July, brickwork likely will be wound up this month.

"A delay in receiving our windows has held up the tile-seting quite a bit," Pardue explained, "but we're looking for them about the middle of next wee."

Each window will be recessed four inches from the main line of the building and centered in a 12 foot square of multi - colored tile, to create an impression of much greater depth, he noted.

Workers expect to start on room partitions Monday.

The hospital also will feature a huge all - electric kitchen and cafeteria, located on the first floor of a three - story section adjoining and just to the rear of the main structure, which will consist of four floors and space to accommodate 106 beds. Operating rooms will be set in the second floor of the same rear wing.

Work was begun on Glenwood, September 15 of last year, and is the outgrowth of a $1,400,000 bond election, held in December, 1958. Total outlay on the project, including Hill - Burton Federal funds, is expected to surpass $2,200,000.

Parking areas, with a capacity of 122 automobiles, will nearly surround the building, one in the front facing McMillan Road, another opening west onto Thomas, and a third in the southeast corner, to the rear of the 11 acre lot.

High Water Didn't Deter I-20 Bridge

High waters experienced recently on the Ouachita River, at one time touching 40 feet, has done little to deter work on the new six - lane traffic bridge, connecting east and west banks for Interstate 20 on its passage through the Twin Cities.

District Highway Engineer Ellis Ross said Friday that work was "progressing nicely, slightly behind schedule, but only a very little."

The seven - span structure, being built for automobile traffic at a cost of $3,137,000, is scheduled for completion late in Decembr of this year. Three hundred contract days were allotted for its completion from its beginning in June.

Project engineer is C. B. Ingram.

According to Ross, caps now are being poured on the east bank, and pouring of columns to grade elevation is continuous.

Planned to stand on eight columns, five of which will be set in the river, the bridge will have a channel span of 210 feet. Six other spans will average about 115 each, Ross said.

Ross added that workers also were presently driving sheet walls on the west bank.

Pharmacy Group Approved For Northeast State

Northeast States School of Pharmacy has been approved for the establishment of a chapter of Rho Chi Society, Dean Ralph M. Wilson announced yesterday.

Rho Chi is the national honor society for pharmacy.

The new chapter will be known as Beta Chi of Rho Chi, Wilson said. Installation of the chapter is scheduled May 26.

Two instructors of the pharmacy faculty and six undergraduates will become charter members.

Undergraduate students who have completed sixty per cent of course requirements for graduation in pharmacy and who have maintained a high scholastic average, "B" or better, are eligible for membership in the organization.

Students who have fulfilled these academic requirements are Mrs. Maxine M. Gill, James L. Plunkett, Ardis Lee Phillips, all of Monroe; Mrs. June E. Futrell of Sterlington; Miss Sandra Killgore of Lisbon; and William W. Nelson of Bogalusa.

The two faculty members who will be initiated are Dr. John T. Gourley, associate professor of pharmaceutical chemistry, and Dr. Frank Martin, associate professor of pharmacognosy.

Havana Attacks Uruguay; Break Is Predicted

MIAMI (UPI)— Havana Radio Saturday attacked what it called the "reaciontary oligarchy" of Uruguay and accused that nation of joining a Yankee plan for a new invasion of Cuba.

The radio was particularly bitter over Uruguay's plans to recognize a Cuban government-in-exile headed by Jose Miro Cardona, head of the Revolutionary Council which sponsored last month's invasion.

"Recognition of this counter-revolutionary government is one of the Yankee plans to prepare direct aggression against Cuba with the backing of Latin American regimes," the broadcast said.

It predicted that Uruguay would break relations with Cuba "as the first step in this plot." Eight other Latin American nations already have severed relations with the Castro regime.

Rodeo Scheduled At Choudrant In 3-Day Showing

The Tri-State Worlds Championship Rodeo will kick off with an 8 p.m. performance Friday in Choudrant also slated for both Saturday night and Sunday matinee performances.

The rodeo, which is produced by the Tri-State Cattle Co. of West Monroe, has put together a top string of bucking stock and will feature riders from various sections of the country competing for the $2,000 in prize money.

Competition includes wild bucking horse riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, open cutting horse contest, girls barrel racing and Brahman bull riding.

The two - hour show is being sponsored by the Choudrant Saddle Club and Sunday's matinee performance will begin at 2 p.m. with Saturday's night show at 8 o'clock.

Fines Reported Incorrectly

A story that appeared in Saturday's Morning World incorrectly stated that 10 Negroes were fined $5 or 30 days in Monroe City court for gambling.

Judge W. M. Harper fined the group $50 or 30 days each on the charges. They were James Wafer, 37, of 714 Adams Ct.; Harper Caldelugh, 29, of 503 Adams St.; Clyde Lain, 34, of 101 Forest Lawn; Clarence Jackson, 41, of 1925 Adams St.; Tom Adams, 18, of 1508 Sherrouse; Willis Carter, 32, of 107 Magnolia St.; Isaac Armstrong, 36, of 213 S. Author Loses Manuscripts As Home Destroyed

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Author Aldous Huxley had to be forcibly restrained from entering his blazing home, destroyed by a big fire that raged through the Hollywood hills Friday night.

With tears in his eyes, Huxley told a newsman he had wanted to save priceless manuscripts, research material and mementoes accumulated over the years.

He said he managed to rescue a few manuscripts, including one for his latest book, "Island."

"Thanks to a bright, alert boy who maneuvered the car out of the burning garage, we still have a car and the clothes my wife and I are wearing," Huxley said.

Huxley's novels include "Brave New World," "Ape and Essence," "After Many a Summer Dies the Swan," "Eyeless in Gaza" and "Heaven and Hell."

Operating rooms will be set in the second floor of the same rear wing.

Work was begun on Glenwood, September 15 of last year, and is the outgrowth of a $1,400,000 bond election, held in December, 1958. Total outlay on the project, including Hill - Burton Federal funds, is expected to surpass $2,200,000.

Parking areas, with a capacity of 122 automobiles, will nearly surround the building, one in the front facing McMillan Road, another opening west onto Thomas, and a third in the southeast corner, to the rear of the 11 acre lot.

High Water Didn't Deter I-20 Bridge

High waters experienced recently on the Ouachita River, at one time touching 40 feet, has done little to deter work on the new six - lane traffic bridge, connecting east and west banks for Interstate 20 on its passage through the Twin Cities.

District Highway Engineer Ellis Ross said Friday that work was "progressing nicely, slightly behind schedule, but only a very little."

The seven - span structure, being built for automobile traffic at a cost of $3,187,000, is scheduled for completion late in Decembr of this year. Three hundred contract days were allotted for its completion from its beginning in June.

Project engineer is C. B. Ingram.

According to Ross, caps now are being poured on the east bank, and pouring of columns to grade elevation is continuous.

Planned to stand on eight columns, five of which will be set in the river, the bridge will have a channel span of 210 feet. Six other spans will average about 115 each, Ross said.

Ross added that workers also were presently driving sheet walls on the west bank.

The two faculty members who will be initiated are Dr. John T. Goorley, associate professor of pharmaceutical chemistry, and Dr. Frank Martin, associate professor of pharmacognosy.

Havana Attacks Uruguay; Break Is Predicted

MIAMI (UPI)— Havana Radio Saturday attacked what it called the "reaciontary oligarchy" of Uruguay and accused that nation of joining a Yankee plan for a new invasion of Cuba.

The radio was particularly bitter over Uruguay's plans to recognize a Cuban government-in-exile headed by Jose Miro Cardona, head of the Revolutionary Council which sponsored last month's invasion.

"Recognition of this counter-revolutionary government is one of the Yankee plans to prepare direct aggression against Cuba with the backing of Latin American regimes," the broadcast said.

It predicted that Uruguay would break relations with Cuba "as the first step in this plot." Eight other Latin American nations already have severed relations with the Castro regime.

Author Loses Manuscripts As Home Destroyed

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Author Aldous Huxley had to be forcibly restrained from entering his blazing home, destroyed by a big fire that raged through the Hollywood hills Friday night.

With tears in his eyes, Huxley told a newsman he had wanted to save priceless manuscripts, research material and mementoes accumulated over the years.

He said he managed to rescue a few manuscripts, including one for his latest book, "Island."

"Thanks to a bright, alert boy who maneuvered the car out of the burning garage, we still have a car and the clothes my wife and I are wearing," Huxley said.

Huxley's novels include "Brave New World," "Ape and Essence," "After Many a Summer Dies the Swan," "Eyeless in Gaza" and "Heaven and Hell."

Johnson's Visit To Cement Ties

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)— Chinese Nationalist officials confidently expect closer cooperation with the United States to result from Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson's visit here Sunday.

As Taipei bustled with preparations for Johnson's arrival from Manila, there appeared to be, however, the possibility of disagreement on Outer Mongolia.

The United States reportedly would like to recognize that territory sandwiched between Red China and the Soviet Union and see it admitted to the United Nations.

In 1945, Chiang Kai-shek's government, then master of the Chinese mainland, agreed with the Soviet Union that a plebiscite should be held in Outer Mongolia. The Outer Mongolians chose independence by a nearly 100 per cent vote but the Soviet Union's domination of the land continued.

Chiang's government later denounced its agreement with the Soviet Union and since has strongly resisted moves to grant Outer Mongolia U.N. membership. Chiang considers Outer Mongolia part of his China.

President Kennedy's administration is reported to believe Nationalist China's stand has a weak legal basis. But sentiment in Taipei is that Johnson will fail to change Chiang's mind, if he attempts to.

Nor is it considered likely he will bring up any such question as the creation of two Chinas — unthinkable alike to the Communists and the Nationalists — or any other change in the status of Chiang's administration.

Any such topics would be considered by the Nationalists to be incompatible with assurances Johnson is making to non-Communist Asian leaders of continued U.S. support.

Johnson, in fact, is expected to sound out Chiang's views on the best methods of arresting any further advance by communism in asia.

Chiang has had longer experience in fighting communism than any other head of government. He started in 1927.

Quemoy Island defenders were on the alert for any major Communist bombardment in protest against Johnson's visit.

Officers of the Nationalist garrison said no sign had been detected of preparations for a big artillery attack such as that which marked President Eisenhower's brief visit to Formosa in June last year.

But the Nationalists said they were ready to retaliate against the densely populated city of Amoy, on the Communist island fortress of Amoy, if Communist guns open on Quemoy.

Guatemala Ends Suspension Of Miami Flights

GUATEMALA (AP) — The Guatemalan government notified Pan American Airways Saturday that it has rescinded the suspension of the company's flights between Guatemala and Miami.

It said flights can start the coming week but that Pan American schedules should be changed so as not to conflict with flights by the Guatemalan airline, National Aviateca.

The flights were suspended after Pan American refused to carry back to the United States Carlos Marcello, New Orleans underworld figure, who had been deported by American authorities.

Marcello's whereabouts remain unknown. An order for his arrest has been issued following disclosure that a birth certificate stating he was born in Guatemala and was a Guatemalan citizen was fraudulent.

Job Drive Set By State Office Here

Col. C. T. Baird, Manager of the Louisiana State Employment Service local office, recently met with the other 22 local office managers in Baton Rouge to discuss plans for the "Hire Now" job drive which was "kicked off" in Washington on May 10, 1961.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis appeared before the group to add his endorsement to the nationwide effort which is designed to stimulate employers to Hire Now through their local public employment service offices.

Col. Baird said that the Monroe office is working with management, labor and veterans organizations, community groups and government in promoting the "Hire Now" drive.

"We believe that many employers in Monroe have need for additional personnel but have delayed hiring them", Col. Baird added.

"Many factors indicate that the recent business slump is rapidly drawing to a close. The facts all point to rising production, bigger sales and generally better times ahead. All this means that more people are going to be hired. Our aim is to help speed up the process because the faster it happens the better it will be for everybody. Every pay check drawn by a worker benefits our whole community.

"Employers who hire now will have the pick of the many talented and experienced top - grade people who are looking for new connections. These people can be reached through the Louisiana State Employment Service."

Census Bureau Report Shows Housing Figures

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Census Bureau reported Saturday 21.4 per cent of the housing units in Louisiana are either dilapidated or lack private plumbing facilities.

Another 19.5 per cent of the housing units were listed as deteriorating.

In its first comprehensive tally of the nations housing situation as revealed by the April 1960 census the bureau reported that there are 53.3 million housing units in the United States — one third of them in the 24 metropolitan areas of one million people or more.

Nationally, 18.8 per cent of all housing units are dilapidated or lack private toilets or baths. The highest percentage of this type of substandard housing was in Mississippi, with 49.2, and lowest in California, with 7.2

The bureau reported that of the 978,452 housing units in Louisiana 59 per cent are owner - occupied, compared with a nationwide percentage of 61.9. The census takers found 9,732 vacant units in Louisiana for sale, and found 28,320 rental units vacant.

For Area Mail Carriers

Early Days Difficult

The life of a mail carrier is not all smooth sailing in this age of automation and improved roads, but in general it is much easier than that of the stalwart couriers of 50 years ago.

C. E. Ponder, 207 Jonesboro Road, West Monroe, city councilman and retired postal worker, can recall the circumstances of some 50 years ago when he would return by moonlight from a day on the rural route.

During the winter months he would carry a lantern to provide light for the completion of his route when hardships, often weather imposed, ran his deliveries into the hours of waning light. The lantern also was a good foot warmer, Ponder said.

MUDDY ROADS

His wife, who several times accompanied him on his early day routes near Eros, before he shifted to the West Monroe area, had this comment:

"The roads were awful. The young folks now don't know what some of the old folks went through. One time just after Mr. Ponder had got across a bridge, flood water swept it away.

"But, I think he loved every bit of it, and people loved him. I've had people tell me how they'd stand and wait for him to bring a letter from their sweethearts."

The importance of the mail getting through undamaged was uppermost in Ponder's mind as he made his rounds.

This was demonstrated on many occasions.

Mrs. Ponder remembers seeing a horse run away with the two-wheel cart-type buggy in which her husband was riding.

"I thought he fell under it," she said, "but he took the mail and jumped out. He always looked out for the mail. One time he was stranded in the country, but he took the mail on his back and came back to town without the horse and buggy."

PRECAUTIONS

Ponder explained some of the precautions which he took to spare the mail from becoming wet or being swept away in the flood-swollen streams which had to be crossed.

He said he would tie up the mail in an umbrella and hold it above his head while he sat up on the back of the buggy seat while crossing high water areas.

"Even at that," said Ponder, "I would get my feet wet."

Mail carriers had to be rugged in those days. The horses had to be good swimmers, and the mailmen often had to swim out of water swamped areas. Sometime heavy rains would imperil them at the midway point of their routes.

Ponder started in postal work as a rural carrier at Eros on June 1, 1911. He worked in that assignment for almost 12 years before moving to West Monroe to live in 1923.

His Eros rural route was about 28 miles long. When he came to this area, his first assignment was in Monroe on a city foot route, and "It was all the mail you could carry. Sometimes 70 pounds. Fifty pounds was supposed to be the limit. The hours were long."

His Monroe city route was about 16 miles long.

Around the latter part of 1926, as Ponder recalls it, he was asked to come to the West Monroe Postal Branch and set up the first city route.

It was about 16 miles long, taking in the business section and the south residential section.

ARRANGING

In arranging the route, Ponder said, "I laid it out, walked it for three days getting the route worked out, getting a roster, and getting numbers placed on the houses. Hardly anyone had any house numbers and everyone had to put up mail boxes that would provide protection from the weather."

Many postmen now still face the fury of the dogs. In that respect, there is a great similarity between the past and present.

"We had dog trouble back in those days," Ponder explained. "I was bitten several times."

In his varied assignments with the post offices organizations in the Twin Cities, Ponder carried a rural route out of West Monroe, at one time served as a mail clerk, and was made superintendent of the mails in West Monroe in the spring of 1948. He retired from postal work in February, 1949.

Politics came later.

"I had been retired four years before running for city council in West Monroe," he said. "This is my second term."

He was 76 years old last August. He has been active as a Sunday school teacher in the Methodist Church for many years. At present, he is teaching a men's department Sunday School class in the First Methodist Church of West Monroe. And over a period of years has taught at other churches in the area.

He was born close to Homer, La. in Claiborne Parish. His father was a minister. Mrs. Ponder is a native of Arkansas. They were married Dec. 12, 1909 at Simsboro.

They have two children, a son, C. Ardis Ponder, in New Orleans, and a daughter, Mrs. R. O. Randal, Houston, Tex., and two grandchildren living.

MODEL 'T'

The horse was the main stay in transportation for a number of years on the rural postal routes, but automation started coming into the picture around 1917 for Ponder.

It was in that year that he acquired a Model "T" Ford for use through the summer months on the routes.

But lots of times roads became impassable and the horse again became the main means of motivation.

"I had to keep two horses just in case they were needed," Ponder explained. "It was expensive. I would alternate using one horse one day and the other the next like in stage coach days. The long days and rough roads were tiring on the horses."

"The rural carrier was the only connecting link with the federal government that the people in the rural areas had."

Ponder believed in helping people along his route above and beyond the call of duty whenever possible. He often was asked to buy spools of thread and other little items for the people on his route, since many of them didn't get to town very often.

"And when hog killing time came they remembered me," he recalled, in telling of the gifts of fresh pork.

LONG ROUTE

He once had an unusually long rural route out of West Monroe. It was in the mid-30's. The route which ran about 85 miles in length, represented a combining of two routes.

Ponders said sometimes he would drive 100 miles in a day because it was necessary to skirt around high water areas. The route eventually developed to the point where there were between 500 and 600 boxes on it.

As the number of residences along the route continued to increase it was divided into two routes.

The days on the rural route were long in the horse and buggy era.

"Ordinarily I got in by 6 p.m., but on the extremely hard days it was 7 p.m. I had to drive right by the house on my way back, so I would leave the horse and buggy at the house and walk a mile to the post office. It was a relief to get out of the buggy and walk."

Ponder said sometimes on the Eros rural route when the horse was pulling up a muddy steep grade, he would get out of the buggy and walk along through the woods to ease the strain on the animal.

High water problems were not confined to rural areas. In the early days of the first West Monroe city route, Ponder ran into flood problems in the south section of town. He wore boots to make deliveries, and sometimes residents had to move out until water subsided.

In the early days when West Monroe had a branch post office unit, Ponder said the mail used to be moved from Monroe to there in a push cart like those used around rail stations.

C. E. Ponder

On Pacific Atolls

Contrasting Eras Meet

By RALPH DIGHTON

KWAJALEIN, M. I. (AP)—You can walk, at low tide on this South Pacific atoll, from the dawn of the space age back to the dawn of civilization.

Your bridge is a broad coral reef, ankle deep in waves at midday, which runs from the 600-acre island of Kwajalein to the 70-acre island of Ebeye.

On Kwajalein, 20th century man is building weird electronic battlements to hurl huge firebolts that can stop 15,000-mile-an-hour missiles in midflight—even knock satellites out of the sky.

PRIMITIVE

On Ebeye, three miles away, one of the most primitive races left on the globe stares in vacant eyed wonder.

Two years of herculean labor and 75 million dollars have turned Kwajalein into a launch pad for Nike Zeus missile-killer rockets.

The same two years have turned Ebeye into a slum.

For once, the white man is not to blame.

Few of the 3,000 construction workers, engineers and military men on Kwajalein have ever set foot on Ebeye. It's off limits.

Kwajalein also is off limits to most of the 1,500 Marshall Islanders who have gathered on Ebeye to sift the big island's enormous garbage for a richer living than they have ever known.

TRUST

The United Nations has set up a trust to protect and control the child-like Marshallese.

Administrator of this trust is William C. White, 52, a U. S. Interior Department career man. White, an old hand in the Orient, laments the "tin can culture" that has sprung up on Ebeye.

"Only 250 of the people on Ebeye are well enough educated to work on Kwajalein as laborers and domestic servants," says White. "The rest moved in from outlying islands because of an old Marshallese custom any man who has wealth or in this case, a job must take care of his relatives."

At times it seems that half the population of the Marshall Islands has moved in on their working cousins at Ebeye. They come in hand-made outrigger canoes, some of them for hundreds of miles.

With scraps of tin and lumber from the dumps of Kwajalein they build shacks, some little larger than a doghouse, which house from six to a dozen people.

"On their home islands these people are meticulously clean," says White. "They sweep their yards and bury their trash. But here they throw fishheads and tin cans out the window.

"Ask them why and they say, 'It's not our land.' It seems there's another old Marshallese custom. The host must not only provide the food, he must keep the premises clean."

On Ebeye, however, the host has no time to do this—he's busy working on Kwajalein.

APPEALED

A few months ago White appealed to King Lajellan Kabua, who lives on Ailinglaplap Island 100 miles to the south.

Kabua came to Ebeye, saw the mess and issued orders.

Within a week Ebeye was clean again. The tin cans and fishheads disappeared.

But that was months ago. It's about time now for another visit from Kabua.

"What's going to happen," he asks, "when construction stops?"

By year's end the $75 million spent on Kwajalein will have grown to $100 million. The island's giant radar transmitters and receivers—most powerful yet built by man—will be completed. They will start tracking Atlas missiles launched from California 4,500 miles away and signaling to Nike Zeus rockets to rise and destroy them.

OUTLOOK

When these tests begin, construction ends. There will be fewer jobs, and the first to be dropped will be the unskilled Marshallese.

"I keep pleading with them to go back to their home islands," says White, "to begin reabsorbing themselves into their native culture, but they won't go."

Most of the time the residents of Ebeye sit and look across the water where a huge white ball, 100 feet in diameter, looms against the horizon.

To 20th century man the ball is a radar receiver, capable of detecting the appearance of a warhead anywhere in the millions of cubic miles of space overhead.

To the Marshallese it is a symbol of a way of life they cannot comprehend—and giant egg which they know somehow holds their future.

As magnolias unfold their ivory blooms over well-trimmed lawns, in parks, and on courthouse squares over the south this month, there is a time - battered old lady that will blossom alone and almost unseen in the forest of Ashley County, Ark., where she was planted 109 years ago.

Southern Arkansas was a wilderness in 1851, with only a handful of pioneer settlers who had cleared land to plant cotton and potatoes, and a kitchen garden.

One of those early farmers was James Stephens, who had married Susan Keplar, the daughter of a neighboring farmer, and built a home on the old Marais-Saline Road, the main artery through the deep forests connecting the rest of the county with the Ouachita River landing.

ABOARD STEAMER

In the fall of 1851 Stephens loaded his cotton crop aboard a river steamer and went with it to New Orleans to market the cotton and buy equipment and seed for the next year. Shortly after his return from the grand trip down the Ouachita, into the Red River, and then the great Mississippi, Stephens contracted pneumonia and died.

There were no cemeteries at that time, so his wife, Susan, buried her husband in the garden, with only a mound of raw earth to show where the father of her children lay.

As she was folding his clothes to put away, she felt a bulge in the pocket of the coat he had worn on the trip to New Orleans, and her probing hand found a magnolia pod which her late husband had brought back from the Louisiana city to plant in his own yard in the Arkansas wilderness. Susan went out in the garden and buried the pod, with its dark red seeds, at the head of her husband's grave.

ROOTS DEEP

The New Orleans seed put roots deep in the Ashley County soil, and spread them wide through the dust that was James Stephens—and a great tree grew to spread shade over the little garden plot. For more than a hundred years fragrant blooms have opened each summer, remembering the man who brought its seed almost 1,000 miles by river boat from the old Louisiana city to grow over his grave deep in the forests of Ashley County.

The home has long since vanished from the foot of the tree. There is a tangle of baby's breath and bridal wreath growing wild in the scattering of grave stones nearby; and bear grass and crepe myrtle mark the old front yard.

Storms for more than a century, woodsmen, and the disease of old age have slashed at the great trunk and gaunt limbs of the magnolia. But time stands still this month in her twisted branches as waxy blooms again spread their pungent fragrance above the grave of the man she was planted to honor—and remember.

For Area Mail Carriers

Early Days Difficult

The life of a mail carrier is not all smooth sailing in this age of automation and improved roads, but in general it is much easier than that of the stalwart couriers of 50 years ago.

C. E. Ponder, 207 Jonesboro Road, West Monroe, city councilman and retired postal worker, can recall the circumstances of some 50 years ago when he would return by moonlight from a day on the rural route.

During the winter months he would carry a lantern to provide light for the completion of his route when hardships, often weather imposed, ran his deliveries into the hours of waning light. The lantern also was a good foot warmer, Ponder said.

MUDDY ROADS

His wife, who several times accompanied him on his early day routes near Eros, before he shifted to the West Monroe area, had this comment:

"The roads were awful. The young folks now don't know what some of the old folks went through. One time just after Mr. Ponder had got across a bridge, flood water swept it away.

"But, I think he loved every bit of it, and people loved him. I've had people tell me how they'd stand and wait for him to bring a letter from their sweethearts."

The importance of the mail getting through undamaged was uppermost in Ponder's mind as he made his rounds.

This was demonstrated on many occasions.

Mrs. Ponder remembers seeing a horse run away with the two-wheel cart-type buggy in which her husband was riding.

"I thought he fell under it," she said, "but he took the mail and jumped out. He always looked out for the mail. One time he was stranded in the country, but he took the mail on his back and came back to town without the horse and buggy."

PRECAUTIONS

Ponder explained some of the precautions which he took to spare the mail from becoming wet or being swept away in the flood-swollen streams which had to be crossed.

He said he would tie up the mail in an umbrella and hold it above his head while he sat up on the back of the buggy seat while crossing high water areas.

"Even at that," said Ponder, "I would get my feet wet."

Mail carriers had to be rugged in those days. The horses had to be good swimmers, and the mailmen often had to swim out of water swamped areas. Sometime heavy rains would imperil them at the midway point of their routes.

Ponder started in postal work as a rural carrier at Eros on June 1, 1911. He worked in that assignment for almost 12 years before moving to West Monroe to live in 1923.

His Eros rural route was about 23 miles long. When he came to this area, his first assignment was in Monroe on a city foot route, and "It was all the mail you could carry. Sometimes 70 pounds. Fifty pounds was supposed to be the limit. The hours were long."

Around the latter part of 1926, as Ponder recalls it, he was asked to come to the West Monroe Postal Branch and set up the first city route.

It was about 16 miles long, taking in the business section and the south residential section.

ARRANGING

In arranging the route, Ponder said, "I laid it out, walked it for three days getting the route worked out, getting a roster, and getting numbers placed on the houses. Hardly anyone had any house numbers and everyone had to put up mail boxes that would provide protection from the weather."

Many postmen now still face the fury of the dogs. In that respect, there is a great similarity between the past and present.

"We had dog trouble back in those days," Ponder explained. "I was bitten several times."

In his varied assignments with the post offices organizations in the Twin Cities, Ponder carried a rural route out of West Monroe, at one time served as a mail clerk, and was made superintendent of the mails in West Monroe in the spring of 1948. He retired from postal work in February, 1949.

Politics came later.

"I had been retired four years before running for city council in West Monroe," he said. "This is my second term."

He was 76 years old last August. He has been active as a Sunday school teacher in the Methodist Church for many years. At present, he is teaching a men's department Sunday School class in the First Methodist Church of West Monroe. And over a period of years has taught at other churches in the area.

He was born close to Homer, La. in Claiborne Parish. His father was a minister. Mrs. Ponder is a native of Arkansas. They were married Dec. 12, 1909 at Simsboro.

They have two children, a son, C. Ardis Ponder, in New Orleans, and a daughter, Mrs. R. O. Randal, Houston, Tex., and two grandchildren living.

MODEL 'T'

The horse was the main stay in transportation for a number of years on the rural postal routes, but automation started coming into the picture around 1917 for Ponder.

It was in that year that he acquired a Model "T" Ford for use through the summer months on the routes.

But lots of times roads became impassable and the horse again became the main means of motivation.

"I had to keep two horses just in case they were needed," Ponder explained. "It was expensive. I would alternate using one horse one day and the other the next like in stage coach days. The long days and rough roads were tiring on the horses."

"The rural carrier was the only connecting link with the federal government that the people in the rural areas had."

Ponder believed in helping people along his route above and beyond the call of duty whenever possible. He often was asked to buy spools of thread and other little items for the people on his route, since many of them didn't get to town very often.

"And when hog killing time came they remembered me," he recalled, in telling of the gifts of fresh pork.

LONG ROUTE

He once had an unusually long rural route out of West Monroe. It was in the mid-30's. The route which ran about 85 miles in length, represented a combining of two routes.

Ponders said sometimes he would drive 100 miles in a day because it was necessary to skirt around high water areas. The route eventually developed to the point where there were between 500 and 600 boxes on it.

As the number of residences along the route continued to increase it was divided into two routes.

The days on the rural route were long in the horse and buggy era.

"Ordinarily I got in by 6 p.m., but on the extremely hard days it was 7 p.m. I had to drive right by the house on my way back, so I would leave the horse and buggy at the house and walk a mile to the post office. It was a relief to get out of the buggy and walk."

Ponder said sometimes on the Eros rural route when the horse was pulling up a muddy steep grade, he would get out of the buggy and walk along through the woods to ease the strain on the animal.

High water problems were not confined to rural areas. In the early days of the first West Monroe city route, Ponder ran into flood problems in the south section of town. He wore boots to make deliveries, and sometimes residents had to move out until water subsided.

In the early days when West Monroe had a branch post office unit, Ponder said the mail used to be moved from Monroe to there in a push cart like those used around rail stations.

Farm Bill Worrying Many

Deeper Agriculture Committee Of Senate And House Go Into Hearing The Unhappier They Become

[illegible] Senator Allen J. Ellender in the Senate and Representative Harold D. Cooley in the House. Ellender is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Cooley heads up the Agriculture Committee in the House.

The two Chairmen took the [illegible] complicated bill as it came down from the Department of Agriculture and introduced it without change. Both of them oppose [illegible] provisions of the Administration measure. Final House version is likely to be very different from the Senate version.

Witnesses at the hearings have been giving the bill a hard time. The American Farm Bureau Federation, biggest and most conservative of the farm organizations has been putting in the most telling licks against it.

The objection of this organization is that it "would concentrate unprecedented power over the destiny of the American farmer in the Secretary of Agriculture and the executive branch of the Government," and that it "includes the power to bring every section of agriculture under complete government control on a step-by-step basis."

It so happens that the farm commodities in deepest trouble now are those under close Government control and subsidies. Therefore, most of them who are out want to stay out. For instance cattle are enjoying a rather satisfactory price relationship and cattle men want to be left alone to enjoy their prosperity. There are other groups which will fight just as hard as the cattlemen to avoid a situation where they might be brought under Government control.

The old farm bloc has dwindled and the fate of the bill will largely be decided by city men in Congress. The question urban members are asking is how it will effect consumer prices. There was testimony before the House Agriculture Committee that the price of bread and meat both likely would go up under the proposals.

Some consumer organizations say that it isn't simply a "let the farmers decide for themselves" program as Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has said it is; that American agriculture cannot be isolated from the rest of the economy and from life in general: that "if farmers regulate prices for their crops, they will also decide the price of food for the housewife."

Chairman Cooley, who held full committee hearings on Section I, of the bill before referring other sections of it to sub-committee said:

"I am pretty certain that the section providing for transfer in acreage will be eliminated. The section authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to place limitations on payments to farmers also probably will be eliminated. I think Section 1 (dealing with Farmer Advisory Committees) will be revised and the bill changed in many ways. It will be modified, altered and changed before the final vote is taken in the committee.

"The section providing for national marketing orders probably will be eliminated. These orders are now made on an area basis. I don't know anybody who has been insisting that they remain in the bill."

Senator Ellender, whose committee hearings are less further along than Cooley's Committee, already is certain that Congress will have to write "guidelines" to restrict the freedom of the farm groups to draft their own control programs.

Ellender apparently thinks a bill along the Administration lines but with a much narrower range of operation for the Secretary of Agriculture, will eventually go through — but perhaps not this year. Ellender would not specify just how much he thought the wings of the Agriculture Secretary would have to be clipped before Congress would go for the legislation.

Ellender is an adept legislator. If it becomes evident that the Administration measure cannot pass at all, or can pass only after a delay, he probably will rip out the wheat section and pass a wheat bill before fall planting time. Also, the 480 program, governing the disposal of United States surplus products, expires December 31, and it also must be passed separately if the Administration's complicated general farm bill cannot leap its barriers before that time.

[illegible] disintegrations are breaking [illegible] the news. Interior Secretary Udall, supposedly swift and deadly with the political tomahawk, has not only smashed his own finger but dropped the weapon on the President's toe. An Assistant Secretary of Army has [illegible] the Pentagon in a fuss over [illegible]. The Senate is investigating one Kennedy appointment for [illegible] and another for conflict of interest.

Major disintegrations are so widespread and numerous that the President may soon be recruiting replacements for White House think shops, top Cabinet posts, Central Intelligence and State Department desks. Favorite columnists, who yesterday were singing as poets laureate of the Kennedy Court, have turned to Cuba-mongering. They now call for heads to roll, actions to replace words, bipartisanship to batter the partisan Frontier.

If the Suez analogy is useful and valid, however, we may find the remedy not to be in general [illegible] and purges, but in the head man himself. Despite what the highbrows write, our system is better than the British in that we can alter the method without destroying the man. The beautiful and adjustable complexity of the American method is that power is always on tap; if not one place, then another. It does not stagnate unless we break the rules — and we'd better not.

By this I mean that President Kennedy and the country ought to reconsider the thesis of ultimate, unlimited executive power which he has found very fascinating and self-serving. Mr. Kennedy did not think much of the House and Senate. He did not do very well in either, because he found the power too sub-divided by numbers. He yearned to be President, as he has often indicated, because at the White House the responsibility achieves a tall, thin, sky-pointing spire where there is room for only one man.

This is the familiar Kennedy thesis. Not long ago we were almost daily being told that the President had read a new book [illegible] a new idea on executive power. But I wonder if he [illegible] the Federalist Papers lately. Hamilton and Madison in those classic documents on the Constitution took a lot of pains to explain and stress the danger of accumulated power in any branch of government.

"The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive and judiciary, in the same hands, whether one, a few, or many, or whether hereditary, self-appointed or elective, may be justly pronounced the very definition of tyranny . . . the three great departments of power should be separate and distinct." — (Madison in Federalist No. 47).

"The history of human conduct does not . . . make it wise in a nation to commit . . . its intercourse with the rest of the world to the sole disposition of . . . a President . . ." — (Hamilton in Federalist No. 75).

GEORGE SOKOLOSKY

F. D. R. 100 Days

One Of Most Controversial Subjects Raised By 'Democrat'

This country is in trouble. Its great men have come to the support of President Kennedy without partisanship. Former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice-President Richard Nixon, General Douglas MacArthur, and the entire Republican leadership stand behind the President as regards his foreign policy as firmly as any Democrat.

But not "The Democrat," a publication issued by the Democratic National Committee. In its May 4th issue, it raises the question of FDR's "100 Days," as controversial a subject as can be conceived. The Republicans, except a few liberal ones, regard the list of 16 bills which this publication offers as a measure of Roosevelt's genius, as prolonging the Depression, forcing us into World War II to end unemployment and wrecking the capitalist system.

It is not necessary to discuss these bills now. Some of them are law of the land; some have been thrown out by the Supreme Court; some have been abandoned or revised. What is the advantage of raising these issues now? Furthermore, why talk of 12 years of "do-nothing" Republican Administrations? The phrase "do-nothing," invented by Harry Truman, cannot truthfully be applied to the Harding, Coolidge, or Hoover Administrations.

It is no advantage to President Kennedy to antagonize the Republicans by this type of shoddy propaganda which the country could afford as a luxury of freedom in better days. There can be no criticism of a political party praising itself and all its works. There must be freedom to criticize any group, any propagandistic agency, which disregards the seriousness of the times and stimulates antagonism toward President Kennedy on such a remote issue as whether Franklin D. Roosevelt was a more able President than Calvin Coolidge or Herbert Hoover.

Who but the objective historian, who can write as vividly of Genghis Khan as of Baboeuf, really cares? We face our own troubles and our own times. Neither Herbert Hoover nor Franklin D. Roosevelt faced the fact that 35 Americans are in prison in the Havana area, to say nothing of the Americans held prisoner in Red China.

They did not face the necessity of making the decision as to whether we would make war on Cuba, or in Laos, or in South Vietnam, or in the Congo or where. Herbert Hoover would be the last man to compare his problems with those that face President Kennedy, several of which must lead to war. Hoover is too big a man not to take an objective view of an historic situation. Why then would some press agent for the Democratic National Committee speak of the Hoover Administration as "do-nothing.' Even Harry Truman would not do that.

I am not writing in defense of Herbert Hoover. He does not need defending. My point is that we need a serious approach to current problems and if and when it becomes necessary to criticize President Kennedy's conduct of foreign policy and activities, it should be done with objectivity, so as not to give aid and comfort to the enemy. There is no sense in being anti-Communist and at the same time handing Khrushchev the material he requires for his malevolent propaganda against this nation. What have we done about American newspaper folk who have either been arrested or are in hiding in foreign embassies? They are Robert Berlez of the Associated Press; J Malin of Time; Harold K. Milks of the Associated Press; Martin Housman of the UPI; George Kaufman of the Associated Press; Robert Perez of Mutual Broadcasting; and Ruby Hart Philips of The New York Times. What do we do about such incidents which, for some reason or other, are not even reported when they occur? Granted that it is difficult to realize that we are at war with Soviet Russia, a war that is unorthodox in its immediate manifestations but nevertheless is war. One evidence is that seven American newspapermen have either been arrested or have taken refuge in foreign embassies and we ignore the fact. The silence on this subject is appalling but it is characteristic of this war that we should not raise our voices in protest or that we should take no action. The reason is, of course, that this war is on multiple fronts and nobody knows where to strike or where we will be struck.

It is in such a period that pettiness must give way to objectivity. There is too much to lose in the shilly-shallying of political press-agentry.

Must Water Safety Laws

Ringgold, La.

To the Editor:

I was just wondering since this is the season for boating and fishing carrying with it all the dangers of accidental drowning etc. if your paper would not write an article giving laws of safety.

The reason this has come to my mind is that I had the occasion to be with the Bienville, Webster and Bossier rescue squads Sunday May 7th in Lake Bisteneau where a young lady and young man had drowned.

Mr. Bloxum (I believe this is correct) of the Webster department took charge and was a well trained leader. All units followed his instructions in an effort to recover bodies of the two. The rescue however was hampered greatly by some of the boat owners that continually passed back and forth directly over area that was surrounded by rescue boats (clearly marked including red lights and sirens) pulling young people on skis. Even after the Bienville boat had given chase and asked that this be stopped no heed was given to this plea.

These young men that work with various rescue squads over the state are paid with only the satisfaction of helping those in need and a chance to save a few lives. One night a week most of them meet and drill. They are well trained and in most cases well equipped by police jury and sheriff department of the parish. When called they leave their work and stay until their service has been rendered never even asking for thanks for a job well done. They only have the satisfaction in their hearts that they have helped their fellow man. The truly unsung heroes.

I forgot to mention that divers were working in the above mentioned and naturaly their lives were endangered by boats passing over head and they were somewhat afraid to surface.

Now I will admit this unruly bunch of inconsiderates are a very small percentage. Most stop and try to assist. However the true outdoors sportsman gets credit for this small few. Even one man in a boat that is being aimed rather than driven can create all manner of delay in a rescue. This could be from the fact that they do not know the law or that they know the rescue squad can't arrest them.

May I suggest that you reccommend that the wildlife department commission at least one or two in each rescue squad with badge and full authority to make arrest. This will help.

Thanks for any consideration or space you may give in helping a truly great bunch of young men that are trying to help all of us.

DRIVE BACKS KENNEDY — Campaign to restore the prestige lost by President Kennedy as a result of the Cuban disaster is quickly underway. First of Committees for support of President got underway in Wisconsin this week. Others will quickly follow in midwestern States and eventually will cover the nation. The "Back Jack" groups will explain and urge support for Kennedy's domestic and foreign program. Author of the idea is Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey. There was a crestfallen attitude at the Democratic National Committee when the setback came just at a time when Kennedy's personal prestige seemed to be rising although his program was lagging in Congress. This was followed by a determination to regain the lost ground at the grass roots.

NEW TAX PLAN — A noisy battle over the Kennedy tax incentive plan as well as over every one of the series of five major tax changes designed to raise $1,750,000,000 in new taxes is certain. Whole plan is complicated that some key Senators and Representatives doubt any of them will be passed at this session of Congress. White House, however, will put on heat to get the bill through this year, and will then propose a comprehensive tax revision for next year.

School Bond Election

Tuesday of this week will be an important day in the history of the Monroe city schools. On that day ballots will be cast on the question of issuing $1.7 million in bonds for school improvement. For the good of the city school system and the pupils who attend it, approval of the bonds is vitally important.

Unless Monroe schools are expanded, the city system, within the next two years, will not be able to meet the growing enrollment of students.

Emphasizing this, J. H. Scogin, chairman of the city school board, said:

"Unless we take action now, the city system will be in serious trouble within a maximum of two years."

Questions pertaining to the proposed 25-year bond program were answered by Mr. Scogin, members of the school board and Superintendent Van D. Odom. They showed that the proposed expansion, with land already obtained, would make possible the following program:

1. Construction of a white elementary school on the south side of Monroe to relieve an overcrowded situation in the Plum Street Elementary school.

2. Construction of a white elementary school on the north side to relieve a crowded situation at Lexington Elementary school.

3. Construction of a new elementary school for Negroes on Elm street in the Booker T. Washington addition. This school will provide relief for an overcrowded situation in the Carver and Lincoln Elementary schools.

4. Enlarge the kitchen and dining area of Lincoln Elementary school. When this school was opened it had an enrollment of 628. The enrollment now is 1,442.

5. Construction of a dining area at Carroll High School. Pupils of this school are using the gym as a dining area. The gym has to be used by 1,033 physical education students.

6. Renovation of Neville High school to include the following projects: install a new electrical system, renovate and repair the heating system, renovate the auditorium and install an intercommunication system.

7. Erection of a combination gym-auditorium at Lincoln school.

8. Construction of a cafeteria and dining area at Barkdull-Faulk Elementary school.

9. Construction of a building at Neville to house the band.

10. Construction of a 20-classroom building at Clark Elementary school to replace a frame building.

11. Construction of a school board office building, as the present building has been condemned.

Improvement of school sites at Plum, Jefferson Junior High, Sherrouse, Lexington, Neville and Lida Benton schools.

Property owners within the city limits will be qualified to vote in the election. This holds true even though those whose property is assessed at less than $2,000 will be exempted from any additional taxes under the state homestead exemption law.

We all know that no school system, or anything else, for that matter, can stand still. Either it must move forward or begin to deteriorate. The time has been reached when the city school system must be expanded.

The city of Monroe has built up a splendid school system and one which is a credit to the schools of Louisiana as a whole. To maintain this excellent system, it is necessary to approve the school expansion bonds. This we believe the property owners of Monroe should and will do.

Outer-Space Wisdom

Although the number appears to be rapidly decreasing, there are some who believe that outer-space exploration may be contrary to the will of the Supreme Being and that man may be committing an unpardonable sin by seeking to conquer the universe created by God. Still other persons believe that in outer space we may find beings with super brains and ultimately will find a way to reach their level.

Neither of these theories seems tenable. It is not likely that a Supreme Being would give man the intelligence to conquer space if He did want him to do so. On the other hand, if the beings on other planets were far superior to us and outer space travel is possible they would already be regular travelers in space and we see no evidence of that. Since we think we are about to travel into outer space, we may be the most intelligent mortal beings in the universe.

If the Bible is correct, those who think we may discover a physical heaven or hell by flying into space are far off base. According to the Scriptures, heaven and hell may be all around us, but, if so, they exist in a spiritual and not a physical world and there is no likelihood that mortal beings can find them, no matter where in the universe they may go.

To the symposium's audience of 1,500, Dr. Harlow Shapley, the Harvard astronomer, sugested that if we ever contact life on other worlds we should flash just one word: "Help." He was only half joking.

Arnold Toynbee, historian, would ask: "Have you done better than we here? If so, how?"

The idea of opposing questions to another planet has been spurred by Project Ozma. It has teamed with astronomers who are using the radio telescope at Green Bank, Va., to beam signals to planets believed to be circling other suns in the Milky Way. The astronomers hope to get an answering "hello" from outer space.

Any form of contact with people we shall never see, in other constellations many light years away, is certain to broaden immeasurably our knowledge of ourselves and of the universe.

It is only a starry dream to hope another world might solve our problems. We don't make contact with the Universal Mind there any more than we do here, so there is no reason either to dream or to worry on that score.

Farm Bill Worrying Many

Deeper Agriculture Committee Of Senate And House Go Into Hearing The Unhappier They Become

The deeper the Agriculture Committees of Senate and House get into the hearings on the Kennedy farm program the unhappier members on both sides of the hearing platform — Democrats and Republicans — seem to get.

That is not to say that some kind of farm bill will not be enacted. It will at best, however, run a tortuous course. Some parts of it will be whipped into a form where they will be accepted, but whole sections and key provisions of it will be revised or chopped out before it goes to its uncertain fate on the floors of the two legislative bodies.

The authors of record of the legislation are Senator Allen J. Ellender in the Senate and Representative Harold D. Cooley in the House. Ellender is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Cooley heads up the Agriculture Committee in the House.

The two Chairmen took the 100-page complicated bill as it came down from the Department of Agriculture and introduced it without change. Both of them oppose many provisions of the Administration measure. Final House version is likely to be very different from the Senate version.

Witnesses at the hearings have been giving the bill a hard time. The American Farm Bureau Federation, biggest and most conservative of the farm organizations has been putting in the most telling licks against it.

The objection of this organization is that it "would concentrate unprecedented power over the destiny of the American farmer in the Secretary of Agriculture and the executive branch of the Government," and that it "includes the power to bring every section of agriculture under complete government control on a step-by-step basis."

It so happens that the farm commodities in deepest trouble now are those under close Government control and subsidies. Therefore, most of them who are out want to stay out. For instance cattle are enjoying a rather satisfactory price relationship and cattle men want to be left alone to enjoy their prosperity. There are other groups which will fight just as hard as the cattlemen to avoid a situation where they might be brought under Government control.

The old farm bloc has dwindled and the fate of the bill will largely be decided by city men in Congress. The question urban members are asking is how it will effect consumer prices. There was testimony before the House Agriculture Committee that the price of bread and meat both likely would go up under the proposals.

Some consumer organizations say that it isn't simply a "let the farmers decide for themselves" program as Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has said it is; that American agriculture cannot be isolatel from the rest of the economy and from life in general: that "if farmers regulate prices for their crops, they will also decide the price of food for the housewife."

Chairman Cooley, who held full committee hearings on Section I, of the bill before referring other sections of it to sub-committee said:

"I am pretty certain that the section providing for transfer in acreage will be eliminated. The section authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to place limitations on payments to farmers also probably will be eliminated. I think Section 1 (dealing with Farmer Advisory Committees) will be revised and the bill changed in many ways. It will be modified, altered and changed before the final vote is taken in the committee.

"The section providing for national marketing orders probably will be eliminated. These orders are now made on an area basis. I don't know anybody who has been insisting that they remain in the bill."

Senator Ellender, whose committee hearings are less further along than Cooley's Committee, already is certain that Congress will have to write "guidelines" to restrict the freedom of the farm groups to draft their own control programs.

Ellender apparently thinks a bill along the Administration lines but with a much narrower range of operation for the Secretary of Agriculture, will eventually go through — but perhaps not this year. Ellender would not specify just how much he thought the wings of the Agriculture Secretary would have to be clipped before Congress would go for the legislation.

Ellender is an adept legislator. If it becomes evident that the Administration measure cannot pass at all, or can pass only after a delay, he probably will rip out the wheat section and pass a wheat bill before fall planting time. Also, the 480 program, governing the disposal of United States surplus products, expires December 31, and it also must be passed separately if the Administration's complicated general farm bill cannot leap its barriers before that time.

U.S. Cuba Situation Worse Than Suez Was For Britain

WASHINGTON, D. C. — We are hearing the Cuban fiasco compared with the Suez loss in 1956, but the former is a great deal worse for us than the latter was for Britain.

Castro cannot exist except as a Sino-Soviet satellite. Nasser has enlarged his domain by forming the United Arab Republic. He is big enough to exist as the very thing Castro can never be — a neutral.

But the haunting likeness between Cuba and Suez lies in the deadly identity of the two images — John Kennedy and Anthony Eden. Both came to the pinnacle of their careers as handsome, debonair, highly-educated, highly - regarded, just-can't-miss embodiments of skill and vigor. Mr. Kennedy replaced a world figure who was close to 70. Eden replaced a world figure past 80. Kennedy arrived with confidence and stirring words. Eden strode in with poise and infinite promise.

Yet both Mr. Kennedy and Sir Anthony went down like hollow men in the first clash. Sir Anthony's career and health disappeared with the bauble called reputation, and today he is a lonely, tragic, forgotten has-been who is writing his memoirs to prove the whole thing was somebody else's fault.

Luckily, historical likenesses carry no inevitability. The President doesn't have to end up so badly. He has the resilient qualities to make him bounce all the higher because of this fall. Nevertheless, there is this crisis in confidence. Suddenly Mr. Kennedy faces the ignominy of being a one - term President whose Administration is going to pieces before it is fairly formed.

Minor disintegrations are breaking into the news. Interior Secretary Udall, supposedly swift and deadly with the political tomahawk, has not only smashed his own finger but dropped the weapon on the President's toe. An Assistant Secretary of Army has quit the Pentagon in a fuss over missiles. The Senate is investigating one Kennedy appointment for perjury, and another for conflict of interest.

Major disintegrations are so widespread and numerous that the President may soon be recruiting replacements for White House think shops, top Cabinet posts, Central Intelligence and State Department desks. Favorite columnists, who yesterday were vying as poets laureate of the Kennedy Court, have turned to cliche - mongering. They now call for heads to roll, actions to replace words, bipartisanship to buttress the partisan Frontier.

If the Suez analogy is useful and valid, however, we may find the remedy not to be in general recruitments and purges, but in the head man himself. Despite what the highbrows write, our system is better than the British in that we can alter the method without destroying the man. The beautiful and adjustable complexity of the American method is that power is always on tap; if not one place, then another. It does not stagnate unless we break the rules — and we'd better not.

By this I mean that President Kennedy and the country ought to reconsider the thesis of ultimate, unlimited executive power which he has found very fascinating and self - serving. Mr. Kennedy did not think much of the House and Senate. He did not do very well in either, because he found the power too sub-divided by numbers. He yearned to be President, as he has often indicated, because at the White House the responsibility achieves a tall, thin, sky-pointing spire where there is room for only one man.

This is the familiar Kennedy thesis. Not long ago we were almost daily being told that the President had read a new book or discovered a new idea on executive power. But I wonder if he has read the Federalist Papers lately. Hamilton and Madison in these classic documents on the Constitution took a lot of pains to explain and stress the danger of accumulated power in any branch of government.

"The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive and judiciary, in the same hands, whether one, a few, or many, or whether hereditary, self-appointed or elective, may be justly pronounced the very definition of tyranny . . . the three great departments of power should be separate and distinct. — (Madison in Federalist No. 47).

"The history of human conduct does not . . . make it wise in a nation to commit . . . its intercourse with the rest of the world to the sole disposition of . . . a President . . ." — (Hamilton in Federalist No. 75).

GEORGE SOKOLOSKY

F. D. R. 100 Days

This country is in trouble. Its great men have come to the support of President Kennedy without partisanship. Former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice-President Richard Nixon, General Douglas MacArthur, and the entire Republican leadership stand behind the President as regards his foreign policy as firmly as any Democrat.

But not "The Democrat," a publication issued by the Democratic National Committee. In its May 4th issue, it raises the question of FDR's "100 Days," as controversial a subject as can be conceived. The Republicans, except a few liberal ones, regard the list of 16 bills which this publication offers as a measure of Roosevelt's genius, as prolonging the Depression, forcing us into World War II to end unemployment and wrecking the capitalist system.

It is not necessary to discuss these bills now. Some of them are law of the land; some have been thrown out by the Supreme Court; some have been abandoned or revised. What is the advantage of raising these issues now? Furthermore, why talk of 12 years of "do-nothing" Republican Administrations? The phrase "do-nothing," invented by Harry Truman, cannot truthfully be applied to the Harding, Coolidge, or Hoover Administrations.

It is no advantage to President Kennedy to antagonize the Republicans by this type of shoddy propaganda which the country could afford as a luxury of freedom in better days. There can be no criticism of a political party praising itself and all its works. There must be freedom to criticize any group, any propagandistic agency, which disregards the seriousness of the times and stimulates antagonism toward President Kennedy on such a remote issue as whether Franklin D. Roosevelt was a more able President than Calvin Coolidge or Herbert Hoover.

Who but the objective historian, who can write as vividly of Genghis Khan as of Baboeuf, really cares? We face our own troubles and our own times. Neither Herbert Hoover nor Franklin D. Roosevelt faced the fact that 35 Americans are in prison in the Havana area, to say nothing of the Americans held prisoner in Red China.

They did not face the necessity of making the decision as to whether we would make war on Cuba, or in Laos, or in South Vietnam, or in the Congo or where. Herbert Hoover would be the last man to compare his problems with those that face President Kennedy, several of which must lead to war. Hoover is too big a man not to take an objective view of an historic situation. Why then would some press agent for the Democratic National Committee speak of the Hoover Administration as "do-nothing.' Even Harry Truman would not do that.

I am not writing in defense of Herbert Hoover. He does not need defending. My point is that we need a serious approach to current problems and if and when it becomes necessary to criticize President Kennedy's conduct of foreign policy and activities, it should be done with objectivity, so as not to give aid and comfort to the enemy. There is no sense in being anti-Communist and at the same time handing Khrushchev the material he requires for his malevolent propaganda against this nation. What have we done about American newspaper folk who have either been arrested or are in hiding in foreign embassies? They are Robert Berlez of the Associated Press; J Malin of Time; Harold K. Milks of the Associated Press; Martin Housman of the UPI; George Kaufman of the Associated Press; Robert Perez of Mutual Broadcasting; and Ruby Hart Philips of The New York Times. What do we do about such incidents which, for some reason or other, are not even reported when they occur? Granted that it is difficult to realize that we are at war with Soviet Russia, a war that is unorthodox in its immediate manifestations but nevertheless is war. One evidence is that seven American newspapermen have either been arrested or have taken refuge in foreign embassies and we ignore the fact. The silence on this subject is appalling but it is characteristic of this war that we should not raise our voices in protest or that we should take no action. Possible?

A national research organization has turned over to the House Committee on Science and Astronautics an interesting document —or survey you might call it.

To most, it will seem a little farfetched —but we have about decided anything is possible in the so - called space age.

The organization suggests — of all things — that a long - range study be made of the possible devastating effect upon the earth's population of the discovery of superhuman intelligence in outer space . . . pointing out that in the past "societies sure of their own place in the universe have disintegrated when confronted by a superior society."

The 272 - page booklet recommends to the NASA a wide range of studies regarding the social economic, political, legal and international implications of the use of space for peaceful and scientific purposes. The period covered by the report is for the next two decades, and it raises the possibility that "while the discovery of intelligent life in other parts of the universe is not likely in the immediate future, it could nevertheless happen at any time."

"Whenever it does occur," the report cautioned, "its consequences for earth attitudes and values may be profound."

Then the report went on to say: 'Though intelligent or semi-intelligence life conceivably exists elsewhere in our solar system, if intelligent extraterrestrial life is discovered in the next 20 years, it will probably be by radio telescope from the other solay systems. Evidences of its existence might also be found in artifacts left on the moon or other planets.'

The report went on to say that still "another problem, largely a philosophical one, would be raised if a creature were discovered of such a nature that it would be difficult to decide whether it was human."

Naturally, the question arises, if life in human form is found on other planets in the univesrse, would it revamp our thinking — even on a spiritual plane?

Most of us probably would say this report is a bit farfetched — but we'll have to remember that it is entirely possible that life — similar to humans could exist.

Remember the "Flying Saucers" — they haven't been fully explained as yet.

Youth Baseball

The people who sponsor and work with the baseball youth program on both sides of the river in the Twin Cities are certainly to be commended for their work.

Many of them, and particularly the coaches of the various teams, spend long hours at work in the program — all on a voluntary basis. As a result of this tremendous amount of work, the program is continuing to grow. Therefore, the parents of the two cities as well as all citizens interested in seeing that our youth are well - trained should back the program 100 per cent.

A good example of this growth is reflected in the expansion program in both Monroe and West Monroe.

On the West side of the river this season, for instance, a tremendous expansion program was undertaken. A new park on the southside was inaugurated as well as a new six - team league. This gave the organization — known as Little Boys Baseball, Inc., of West Monroe, a total of 18 teams with 15 boys each.

Many people are responsible for this expansion — but special commendation must go to Marvin Smith, president of the league, Glen Anderson, H. Y. Johnson, H. D. Crew, Leslie Hamm and the Police Jury, Sheriff Bailey Grant's Ouachita parish sheriff's department, Police Chief Jeff Caldwell's West Monroe police department, Bill Burrows and the City of West Monroe, Ivy Redding and Olin for work and help on the new diamond. Because of this expansion, 9 0additional youth between the ages of eight and 12 were able to play baseball this summer.

That's worthwhile — don't you think?

From Here And There

Someone has proposed that beginning June 1, 1961 — marriage licenses be handled in exactly the same manner as automobile licenses — they must be renewed annually, at a cost of $2 or be cited into court . . .

Boss to an employe: "I'd like to pay you what you're worth, but it is against the minimum wage law." . . .

Do you know what North Carolina is most noted for — Luther Hodges, Wilkes County moonshine and cheap cigarettes . . .

. . . Many people feel today that the income tax is a penalty for reckless thriving.

The current issue of Flying Magazine reports the Russians have developed a nuclear - powered "phantom warplane" capable of flying nonstop for months at supersonic speeds and of outwitting radar detection systems. The report says the plane can cruise at 2,500 miles per hour with a top speed of 3,500 mph; that it can fly nonstop for 90 days and flew 21 days without refueling during its test run, and can fly at altitudes of up to 85,000 feet.

An interesting case came up before the U. S. Supreme Court the other day. Maryland's attorney general told the high court that members of some religions, as well as atheists, could not hold public office in his state because of a requirement to believe in God. He argued that the requirement was no impairment of freedom of religion, nor of constitutonal guarantees of equal treatment under the law. He called the requirement a "reasonable safeguard" in the state's choice of officials. We agree with him — but we wish some officials really meant it when they swear they believe in God when they take an oath of office.

Idle Rambling

The Amarillo, Texas Globe - Times which won this year's Pulitzer Prize for public service by exposing corruption in the conduct of a judge who ruled the underworld in that city, has this inscription carved on the facade of its building:

"A newspaper may be forgiven for lack of knowledge — but never for lack of courage."

This should be the inscription of most newspapers — and generally speaking it, at least, is the unwritten code of most . . .

One of the best definitions of a newspaperman I've ever seen was pinned by Gene Fowler — probably one of the greatest of them all. It went like this:

"The newspaperman must do every day the work by which he lives, and do it all over again. Each day he must create his reputation anew. His greatest asset is enthusiasm, real interest in what he sees and what he tells. And the years are the enemies of enthusiasm. Newspaper work brings disillusion. The reporter is like an electric light bulb; he sheds light. If he stays too long on the newspapers and is not exceptionally fortunate, time and the current of news running through him burn out his enthusiasm — and burn him out. Then, like the light bulb, he goes onto the scrap heap."

"The building of castles in the air made architects of us all. It would seem harder now to shape the towers of reverie than in the gone time when a man dared send the children of his mind outdoors, and expected them to come home unmarked by the blows of cynics and immune to the contagions of despair . . . Men still would dream glad dreams, I think, could they but fend off the budgels of dissent and dodge the stones of mistrust. Nor does the night bring serenity to our young ones in their beds. Someone has kidnaped the sandman. What ransom must we pay for his return . . . As far back as my own memory goes I heard the doomsayers fortell a time of fire and sword. An angry God had tired of America. See what happened to Babylon; they said: Not to mention old Silver Dollar Tabor and the panic of 1893. As a child I became almost persuaded that the world was about to make a swan dive into hell. I found sanctuary in daydreams. . ."

Then another said:

As leaves on trees do with the turning year
The former fall, and others will appear;
Just so it is in words, one word will rise,
To green, and flourish, when another dies.

Congratulatory Corner

We're real happy to see that the property owners of Ouachita parish have approved the bond issues for the jail extension program. Most authorities say this is something the parish had needed for a long time and will help law enforcement to a great degree in many respects. Then, too, there could be no better department found to operate the system as the Ouachita parish sheriff's department. We believe all citizens won in this election . . .

While we're talking about law enforcement, we must say that on the whole that we get as good if not better than any area in the United States. All agencies here have an excellent record — and never have we criticized or disagreed with their desire and abilities.

We would also like to offer a belated congratulation to Monroe Police Chief James C. Kelley and his crew in the handling of the black Muslim group here. Both Kelley and his men displayed coolness and quick thinking in handling the situation — although they certainly would have been more than justified in taking much sterner measures. Then, too, Judge Harper of City Court is to be commended for the way he handled the case in his court and on the decision he rendered. Personally, we don't see how any higher court could reverse it — but, of course, we've seen the U.S. Supreme Court do a lot of things we didn't understand . . .

MOTHER'S DAY

13 Children Turn Into Full Size Job

EDITOR'S NOTE — Being a mother is no easy job, and Mother's Day is set aside in grateful recognition. How does she do it all? Here, straight from the heart of a California mother of 13, comes the answer. It was written as a letter to the Burlingame (Calif.) Advance-Star, after that newspaper published a story about another family with 13 children.

By LUCILE HILLYARD

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)— My husband and I read with some interest (and amusement) your account of the Nelsons and their 13 children, because we are the Hillyards (John, 46, and Lucile, 44) who also have 13 children. In order of seniority: John Jr., aged 19 and in the Navy; Martin, 15, who attends Serra High School; Mary, 14, a freshman at Mercy High; Stephen, 13, James, 11, Mark, 10, Lucy, 9, Thomas 8, and Michael, 7, who all attend St. Catherine's School; Philip, 5, who attends kindergarten at Pershing, and the three "at homers"—Marguerite, 4, Teresa, 3, and Joseph, who is 2 and our baby.

As a matter of fact, I met Mrs. Nelson (I am sure it was she) over a potato bin in a local supermarket almost two years ago. It was during that period when potatoes were pretty scarce and what there were, were pretty awful. We were mumbling to ourselves over the high price and poor quality and "got to talking," as women will, about how many people we had to feed. She said, with that rather apologetic air that we mothers of large families affect, that she was "expecting her 12th" and "I suppose you are going to say, 'How do I do it?' "

"Well, no," I said, "I am not, because I am one ahead of you already—I have 13—and I know just how you feel about that particular question." And those screamingly funny jokes and jabs which are tossed our way—which get exceedingly mossy after the 20th or 30th time.

Oh, I'll admit we enjoy the looks of horror, astonishment and shock we cause when we spring our large broods on unsuspecting individuals. It's especially funny (to us) when somebody with a relatively small family of—oh, say six or seven—has been gabbling away about how overworked she is. This is the time when other people love to say, "Well, you ought to know the Hillyards (or the Nelsons) they have 13 and they—"

One of my neighbors, the mother of three almost grown boys, was mumbling and grumbling to me one day about all the washing and ironing and cooking she had to do besides doing some substitue teaching at various times, when it all of a sudden dawned on her that she was talking to me.

"Good grief," she said, "why am I complaining to you, of all people!"

Well, I don't know why she was complaining to me, except that she needed to blow off steam to somebody and when she got through she didn't feel quite so sorry for herself as she had when she started.

Maybe that is one of our prime purposes—to give other people the feeling that maybe they aren't so bad off, after all. If we can manage to plunge into our terribly daily and endless chores and come up smiling—maybe they can, too.

But how do we do it, anyhow.

for one, have given a great many people a great many answers, some kind of silly and some which have been hilarious—according to the laughter they provoked.

But how DO we do it, anyhow.

As far as the mechanics of housekeeping, cooking, cleaning, correcting and disciplining go, there is no end to it. It goes on and on forever and ever without end, and things sometimes get into one big horrible mess, but this sort of thing goes on in every household where there are children. It just sort of multiplies as the family grows larger.

Is there something different about us that we can stand the wear and tear and commotion caused by our larger families? Maybe there is and maybe there isn't. I don't know. How many or how few children you have isn't really the important thing, however; it's your attitude toward life that is important—that makes the difference in your ability to cope with whatever situation drops into your lap.

For one thing, my husband and I have learned that our problems shrink into nothing in comparison with the troubles and tragedies that other people endure. We have learned to laugh at ourselves. Life is a pretty grim affair at times, but it is not so awfully bad that we have to go around all the time with our heads bowed down and the weight of the world on our shoulders. Wouldn't we look silly, now?

Here we are surrounded by the most fascinating of all human beings — our children. We watch them grow from helpless babies, to toddling busybodies, to noisy 10-year-olds and on into the exasperating 'teens and suddenly into grown-up young men and women. We have the best and most continuous show on earth, and we have developed the capacity to enjoy it.

Sometimes it goes like this:

One morning the garbage men were walking down our driveway —that is, one was walking down our driveway and the other one was walking down the other side of the hedge and they were talking. One said to the other, "Boy is this house noisy." And the other one said, "I think this is the noisiest house in Burlingame— there is always a racket going on here." Things are different now. The kids listen for the garbage truck and make everybody observe three minutes of silence while the garbage man comes down our driveway. I guess he wonders yet whatever happened to our rackety house.

Another summer morning, after picking his way through seven sleeping bags (complete with seven sleeping boys) and moving seven bikes and kicking assorted baseball gloves, skates and junk out of the way before he could get to the garbage can, one of the men was heard to remark that he was going to charge extra if he had to hunt for the garbage can all summer.

When I first became a mother, I had some rather smug (smug— they were downright weird) ideas about how things should be done. I also had some rather fancy ideas of how my house should be kept. I've learned a couple of things since then. First of all, I learned that by eliminating the fancy feathers, we were able to give our babies a lot more loving. These children of ours need lots of loving, punctuated at times, naturally by a good swat on the rear.

Top Story By The Shah And His Country

MISSION FOR MY COUNTRY. By Mohammed Rea Shah Pahlavi, Shahanshah of Iran. McGraw-Hill. $5.95.

The Shah of Iran is a good salesman for his country. Nominally, his book is an autobiography. But as his preface acknowledges, "in a sense I have tried to write the story of a country and not only of its head of state."

He is a great admirer of his father Rea Shah, a self made man who rose to a premiership and at the end of 1925 was proclaimed Shah (king) in a constitutional monarchy. The author makes it clear that Iran, or Persia, has been a choatic, economically backward and largely illerate country which for centuries has been a pawn of greater powers.

He credits his father with making a start toward modernization of Iran, but readily admits there was little time for accomplishment before his country was overwhelmed by pressures from England, Russia and Germany in the Second World War. Naturally, he presents the Iranian point of view in telling about the abdication of his father and his own accession to the throne at the age of 21.

There is an interesting chapter on the Mossadegh fiasco of 1952, though the author is not too clear in showing how this left-leaning exponent of negativism forced his way into the office of premier. The overthrow of Mossadegh reads like a thriller.

Expressing his ideas on democracy, the Shah is frank to say that because this form of government is "the most intricate and difficult kind to achieve," his country still sees it as a distant goal toward which it must strive. He speaks of his own views as centering around "positive nationalism," and makes it clear that his orientation is toward the West.

Because he devotes much attention to economics, land reform, Point Four programs, the status of women and education, there is little space for his personal life, but he does relate in discreet terms his marriages to Fawiza, Soraya and Farah, and the birth of the much desired heir.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS

Ouachita Parish Librarian

An interesting and delightful book of humorous non - fiction is "Tranquilizers in his Cup" written by Gene Laborde and Hazel Beatrous, two New Orleans housewives. It is the same type of thing as "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" but with a different locale it's humor is entirely different. Each of them have five children and the book deals with the problems of being a model wife, coping with schools and children, marketing and church affairs. There is a hillarious section devoted to the making of crayfish bisque. The book should have quite an appeal in this section. A very funny new novel is "Doctor on Toast" by Richard Gordon. This continues the saga of Gaston Grimsdyke, whom we met in "Doctor at Sea" and "Doctor in Love." It is an English novel and has it's setting in London and on the sea. The book is very funny and is good escape reading.

Much significant and important non - fiction arrived at the Ouachita Parish Public Library this week. A book which every thinking American should read is "A Nation of Sheep" by William J. Lederer, author of "The Ugly American." This is the frightening story of waste and greed and the top levels in our foreign aid program and mismanagement at home. Mr. Lederer shows how we have been fed misinformation and states that unless we, the people, insist on a change, take action personally to follow through, southeast Asia will be another area lost to communism. This is absorbing and terrifying reading and may be charged as being very one-sided, almost to the point of fanaticism. But fanaticism is often what is needed to electrify the world, when it is almost too late.

Samuel Ralph Harlow is the author of "A Life After Death", a book which deals in a very capable manner with this eternal question. "The Split Level Trap" by Richard E. Gordon is a study of the frustrations of the women who live in the large new housing developments and why so many of them go to pieces. It is a book to make one stop and think and it offers guidance for those who have troubled members of their families. A very fine addition to the religious collection of the library is "Sermons on the Passion of Christ" by Martin Luther. These sermons were preached nearly 400 years ago, but they are alive and vital today.

We hear so much about communism, but many people do not know what the word means and do not recognize it's various guises. George W. Cronyn has written a very splendid book explaining many of these matters which he calls "A Primer on Communism." Copies were purchased for each branch of the library, so that everyone in the parish could inform themselves about the threat which faces us. A very valuable book in the field of economics is "International Trade" by Roland L. Kramer. This book discusses principles and problems of this absorbing subject. Insurance men are always glad when a new book on insurance is added to the library. The latest addition is "All Lines Insurance" by Dan M. McGill. This is a valuable and informative book and is the latest edition of this work.

A scholarly new book in the field of education is "Education and the Human Quest" by Herbert A. Thelen. This is a study of the underlying principles of education. Theodore Huebener has written a book which should interest many parents. It is called "Why Johnny Should Learn Foreign Languages." The author discusses the need of speaking more than one language in today's world and brings out the fact that languages are easy to learn when a person is young.

Two most timely books in the light of Commander Shepard's successful trip into space recently are "The Space Guidebook" by William J. Weiser and "Outward Bound for Space" by David O. Woodbury. These two books are as up-to-date as anything published in this field and will interest many readers. Books on gardening are always popular and a new one in this field is eagerly received. Anthony J. Huxley has written an interesting book called "Treasures of the Garden". It is largely a discussion of the pleasures of gardening and is a book for leisurely reading.

Books on salesmanship are always in demand at the library. The latest one in this group is called "Salesmanship" and was written by Steven J. Shaw. In this book the author stresses the necessity of personal communication and it's value in successful selling. People who are interested in needlework will want to see a new book in this field "Encyclopedia of Needlework" by Therese De Dillmont. It contains patterns and directions for almost every type of craft.

Donald J. Grout is the author of "A History of Western Music" which is one of the outstanding books of 1960. This book will appeal to everyone who is interested in this field in a serious manner. "Felix Frankfurter Reminisces" is an interesting memoir of this member of the U. S. Judiciary. Mr. James Pope-Hennessy, who has written other books about the British Royal family has now given us the definitive biography of the late Queen Mary, grandmother of the present Queen. It is an interesting and polished performance. There has been a great deal of interest lately in the Alamo and Virgil E. Baugh has written an interesting book about it which he calls "Rendezvous at the Alamo". It is an interesting account of the careers of the three leading figures of the defense of the Alamo, David Crockett, James Bowie and Tobert Barrett Travis.

"Last Score" by Storm Jameson is a drama of man and his conscience in the modern world, of the pressures which drive him to betray himself and alienate him from the power of love. It is a brief novel and carries a stunning impact. The scene is a British colony and the central figure is the governor. It bears no resemblance to Noel Coward's "Pomp and Circumstance." Set in modern day Kentucky is the novel by Robert P. Hansen, which he calls "Rites of Summer." It is the story of the people of Fox Creek, narrow and ingrown, who are just emerging into the industrial era. It is well - written and will demand a large audience.

A book to make one stop and think is "Buy Now, Pay Later" by Hillel Black. It reveals the inside workings of credit cards, installment purchases, small loans, bank charge plans, "bait" advertising and the gimmicks used to sell you your car on time. Timely and provocative, "Buy Now, Pay Later" lifts the veil on a subject of utmost importance to us all, yet a matter previously reserved for the inner sanctums of economists and the debt merchants themselves. An attempt to review Soviet-Western relations in historical perspective has been made by George F. Kennan in his book "Russia and the West." It is a well - written and thoughtful book and deserves serious study.

Life With A Woman And How To Survive It

LIFE WITH WOMEN AND HOW TO SURVIVE IT. By Joseph Peck, M.D. Prentice Hall. $3.50.

Dr. Peck is a wit, and an entertaining one. He is a retired family physician who has had the clinical advantage of observing the human race when it is most human

Having written 'All About Men," he now turns his attention to the voracious sex, and he doesn't miss a trick

Being quite methodical, he proceeds to dissect the female emotions — mind is not the word— from the little girl stage through adolescence, maturity, the 40's, the 50's and old age. He uses the needle on our feminine friends with surgical skill. On page 36, as he is about to get into the subject of beauty and marriage, he says he assumes that female readers will have thrown his book into the ash can by now, so he can address himself the rest of the way to an entirely male audience. Like fun he does.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Extra Dividends For Music Week

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

National Music Week hit northeast Louisiana in full force over the past seven days with professional concerts, private voice and piano recitals and a full force art show on the Northeast campus.

A Monroe federated music club member touched off Music Week in the state. Mrs. H. G. McDonald received the official proclamation from Governor Jimmie H. Davis and passed information on activities of Louisiana federated music clubs to the national office.

Most organizations included selections by American composers on their programs for the week and quite a bit of attention was devoted to current trends in music.

Two dramatic programs will close out the local season. The touring Dallas Theatre Center will stop off in Monroe Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. for a showing of two comedies, "The Chairs," by Eugene Tonesco, and "Phoenix Too Frequent," by Christopher Fry. The stageworks at Neville Auditorium will close the 1960 - 61 Northeast State Concert series.

FROM AMSTERDAM

Not one but two Dutch treats closed the La. Tech Concert season with two consecutive evenings with the Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestra at Howard Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday.

Needless to say, expenses mount when an aggregation of more than 100 top musicians from a foreign land is brought in for a twin bill. But since money cannot buy Rembrandt's brush in live action the chance to see Chartres Cathedral assembled part by part, the Concertgebouw orchestra is actually an econimjcal means of hearing that level of culture.

This writer attended the Wednesday night performance which featuredBernard Haitink as conductor and selections by von Weber, Dvorak, Bela Bartok and Maurice Ravel.

The orchestra had all the precision and power of a prominent symphonic organization. That is expected and usually achieved in the better known American and European orchestras.

But the Amsterdam orchestra placed emphasis on unusual blends, textures and solo instrumental passages which often are lost in "big" music. For this reason, the von Weber overture to the open "Oberon" sounded like a musical thoroughbred rather than a warhorse and the Bartok "Dance Suite" lost the percussive "jangle" too often associated with modern compositions.

The ability to perceive and carry out such special effect reached a musical high spot in the Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe" suite. This may be a piece of French impressionism, but any orchestra would do itself proud to copy the Dutch interpretation.

The second concert was conducted by Eugene Jochum and featured the works of Beethoven, Strauss and Brahams as well as the contemporary Dutch composer, Henk Badings.

Possible?

A national research organization has turned over to the House Committee on Science and Astronautics an interesting document —or survey you might call it.

To most, it will seem a little farfetched —but we have about decided anything is possible in the so - called space age.

The organization suggests — of all things — that a long - range study be made of the possible devastating effect upon the earth's population of the discovery of superhuman intelligence in outer space . . . pointing out that in the past "societies sure of their own place in the universe have disintegrated when confronted by a superior society."

The 272 - page booklet recommends to the NASA a wide range of studies regarding the social economic, political, legal and international implications of the use of space for peaceful and scientific purposes. The period covered by the report is for the next two decades, and it raises the possibility that "while the discovery of intelligent life in other parts of the universe is not likely in the immediate future, it could nevertheless happen at any time."

"Whenever it does occur," the report cautioned, "its consequences for earth attitudes and values may be profound."

Then the report went on to say: 'Though intelligent or semi-intelligence life conceivably exists elsewhere in our solar system, if intelligent extraterrestrial life is discovered in the next 20 years, it will probably be by radio telescope from the other solay systems. Evidences of its existence might also be found in artifacts left on the moon or other planets.'

The report went on to say that still "another problem, largely a philosophical one, would be raised if a creature were discovered of such a nature that it would be difficult to decide whether it was human."

Naturally, the question arises, if life in human form is found on other planets in the univesrse, would it revamp our thinking — even on a spiritual plane?

Most of us probably would say this report is a bit farfetched — but we'll have to remember that it is entirely possible that life — similar to humans could exist.

Remember the "Flying Saucers" — they haven't been fully explained as yet.

Youth Baseball

The people who sponsor and work with the baseball youth program on both sides of the river in the Twin Cities are certainly to be commended for their work.

Many of them, and particularly the coaches of the various teams, spend long hours at work in the program — all on a voluntary basis. As a result of this tremendous amount of work, the program is continuing to grow. Therefore, the parents of the two cities as well as all citizens interested in seeing that our youth are well - trained should back the program 100 per cent.

A good example of this growth is reflected in the expansion program in both Monroe and West Monroe.

On the West side of the river this season, for instance, a tremendous expansion program was undertaken. A new park on the southside was inaugurated as well as a new six - team league. This gave the organization — known as Little Boys Baseball, Inc., of West Monroe, a total of 18 teams with 15 boys each.

Many people are responsible for this expansion — but special commendation must go to Marvin Smith, president of the league, Glen Anderson, H. Y. Johnson, H. D. Crew, Leslie Hamm and the Police Jury, Sheriff Bailey Grant's Ouachita parish sheriff's department, Police Chief Jeff Caldwell's West Monroe police department, Bill Burrows and the City of West Monroe, Ivy Redding and Olin for work and help on the new diamond. Because of this expansion, 9 0additional youth between the ages of eight and 12 were able to play baseball this summer.

That's worthwhile — don't you think?

From Here And There

Someone has proposed that beginning June 1, 1961 — marriage licenses be handled in exactly the same manner as automobile licenses — they must be renewed annually, at a cost of $2 or be cited into court . . .

Boss to an employe: "I'd like to pay you what you're worth, but it is against the minimum wage law." . . .

Do you know what North Carolina is most noted for — Luther Hodges, Wilkes County moonshine and cheap cigarettes . . .

. . . Many people feel today that the income tax is a penalty for reckless thriving.

The current issue of Flying Magazine reports the Russians have developed a nuclear - powered "phantom warplane" capable of flying nonstop for months at supersonic speeds and of outwitting radar detection systems. The report says the plane can cruise at 2,500 miles per hour with a top speed of 3,500 mph; that it can fly nonstop for 90 days and flew 21 days without refueling during its test run, and can fly at altitudes of up to 85,000 feet.

An interesting case came up before the U. S. Supreme Court the other day. Maryland's attorney general told the high court that members of some religions, as well as atheists, could not hold public office in his state because of a requirement to believe in God. He argued that the requirement was no impairment of freedom of religion, nor of constitutonal guarantees of equal treatment under the law. He called the requirement a "reasonable safeguard" in the state's choice of officials. We agree with him — but we wish some officials really meant it when they swear they believe in God when they take an oath of office.

Men still would dream glad dreams, I think, could they but fend off the budgels of dissent and dodge the stones of mistrust. Nor does the night bring serenity to our young ones in their beds. Someone has kidnaped the sandman. What ransom must we pay for his return . . . As far back as my own memory goes I heard the doomsayers fortell a time of fire and sword. An angry God had tired of America. See what happened to Babylon; they said: Not to mention old Silver Dollar Tabor and the panic of 1893. As a child I became almost persuaded that the world was about to make a swan dive into hell. I found sanctuary in daydreams. . ."

Then another said:

As leaves on trees do with the turning year
The former fall, and others will appear;
Just so it is in words, one word will rise,
To green, and flourish, when another dies.

Congratulatory Corner

We're real happy to see that the property owners of Ouachita parish have approved the bond issues for the jail extension program. Most authorities say this is something the parish had needed for a long time and will help law enforcement to a great degree in many respects. Then, too, there could be no better department found to operate the system as the Ouachita parish sheriff's department. We believe all citizens won in this election . . .

While we're talking about law enforcement, we must say that on the whole that we get as good if not better than any area in the United States. All agencies here have an excellent record — and never have we criticized or disagreed with their desire and abilities.

We would also like to offer a belated congratulation to Monroe Police Chief James C. Kelley and his crew in the handling of the black Muslim group here. Both Kelley and his men displayed coolness and quick thinking in handling the situation — although they certainly would have been more than justified in taking much sterner measures. Then, too, Judge Harper of City Court is to be commended for the way he handled the case in his court and on the decision he rendered. Personally, we don't see how any higher court could reverse it — but, of course, we've seen the U.S. Supreme Court do a lot of things we didn't understand . . .

MOTHER'S DAY

13 Children Turn Into Full Size Job

EDITOR'S NOTE — Being a mother is no easy job, and Mother's Day is set aside in grateful recognition. How does she do it all? Here, straight from the heart of a California mother of 13, comes the answer. It was written as a letter to the Burlingame (Calif.) Advance-Star, after that newspaper published a story about another family with 13 children.

By LUCILE HILLYARD

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)— My husband and I read with some interest (and amusement) your account of the Nelsons and their 13 children, because we are the Hillyards (John, 46, and Lucile, 44) who also have 13 children. In order of seniority: John Jr., aged 19 and in the Navy; Martin, 15, who attends Serra High School; Mary, 14, a freshman at Mercy High; Stephen, 13, James, 11, Mark, 10, Lucy, 9, Thomas 8, and Michael, 7, who all attend St. Catherine's School; Philip, 5, who attends kindergarten at Pershing, and the three "at homers"—Marguerite, 4, Teresa, 3, and Joseph, who is 2 and our baby.

As a matter of fact, I met Mrs. Nelson (I am sure it was she) over a potato bin in a local supermarket almost two years ago. It was during that period when potatoes were pretty scarce and what there were, were pretty awful. We were mumbling to ourselves over the high price and poor quality and "got to talking," as women will, about how many people we had to feed. She said, with that rather apologetic air that we mothers of large families affect, that she was "expecting her 12th" and "I suppose you are going to say, 'How do I do it?' "

"Well, no," I said, "I am not, because I am one ahead of you already—I have 13—and I know just how you feel about that particular question." And those screamingly funny jokes and jabs which are tossed our way—which get exceedingly mossy after the 20th or 30th time.

Oh, I'll admit we enjoy the looks of horror, astonishment and shock we cause when we spring our large broods on unsuspecting individuals. It's especially funny (to us) when somebody with a relatively small family of—oh, say six or seven—has been gabbling away about how overworked she is. This is the time when other people love to say, "Well, you ought to know the Hillyards (or the Nelsons) they have 13 and they—"

One of my neighbors, the mother of three almost grown boys, was mumbling and grumbling to me one day about all the washing and ironing and cooking she had to do besides doing some substitue teaching at various times, when it all of a sudden dawned on her that she was talking to me.

"Good grief," she said, "why am I complaining to you, of all people!"

Well, I don't know why she was complaining to me, except that she needed to blow off steam to somebody and when she got through she didn't feel quite so sorry for herself as she had when she started.

Maybe that is one of our prime purposes—to give other people the feeling that maybe they aren't so bad off, after all. If we can manage to plunge into our terribly daily and endless chores and come up smiling—maybe they can, too.

But how do we do it, anyhow, for one, have given a great many people a great many answers, some kind of silly and some which have been hilarious—according to the laughter they provoked.

But how DO we do it, anyhow.

As far as the mechanics of housekeeping, cooking, cleaning, correcting and disciplining go, there is no end to it. It goes on and on forever and ever without end, and things sometimes get into one big horrible mess, but this sort of thing goes on in every household where there are children. It just sort of multiplies as the family grows larger.

Is there something different about us that we can stand the wear and tear and commotion caused by our larger families? Maybe there is and maybe there isn't. I don't know. How many or how few children you have isn't really the important thing, however; it's your attitude toward life that is important—that makes the difference in your ability to cope with whatever situation drops into your lap.

For one thing, my husband and I have learned that our problems shrink into nothing in comparison with the troubles and tragedies that other people endure. We have learned to laugh at ourselves. Life is a pretty grim affair at times, but it is not so awfully bad that we have to go around all the time with our heads bowed down and the weight of the world on our shoulders. Wouldn't we look silly, now?

Here we are surrounded by the most fascinating of all human beings — our children. We watch them grow from helpless babies, to toddling busybodies, to noisy 10-year-olds and on into the exasperating 'teens and suddenly into grown-up young men and women. We have the best and most continuous show on earth, and we have developed the capacity to enjoy it.

Sometimes it goes like this:

One morning the garbage men were walking down our driveway —that is, one was walking down our driveway and the other one was walking down the other side of the hedge and they were talking. One said to the other, "Boy is this house noisy." And the other one said, "I think this is the noisiest house in Burlingame— there is always a racket going on here." Things are different now. The kids listen for the garbage truck and make everybody observe three minutes of silence while the garbage man comes down our driveway. I guess he wonders yet whatever happened to our rackety house.

Another summer morning, after picking his way through seven sleeping bags (complete with seven sleeping boys) and moving seven bikes and kicking assorted baseball gloves, skates and junk out of the way before he could get to the garbage can, one of the men was heard to remark that he was going to charge extra if he had to hunt for the garbage can all summer.

When I first became a mother, I had some rather smug (smug— they were downright weird) ideas about how things should be done. I also had some rather fancy ideas of how my house should be kept. I've learned a couple of things since then. First of all, I learned that by eliminating the fancy feathers, we were able to give our babies a lot more loving. These children of ours need lots of loving, punctuated at times, naturally by a good swat on the rear.

Top Story By The Shah And His Country

MISSION FOR MY COUNTRY. By Mohammed Rea Shah Pahlavi, Shahanshah of Iran. McGraw-Hill. $5.95.

The Shah of Iran is a good salesman for his country. Nominally, his book is an autobiography. But as his preface acknowledges, "in a sense I have tried to write the story of a country and not only of its head of state."

He is a great admirer of his father Rea Shah, a self made man who rose to a premiership and at the end of 1925 was proclaimed Shah (king) in a constitutional monarchy. The author makes it clear that Iran, or Persia, has been a choatic, economically backward and largely illerate country which for centuries has been a pawn of greater powers.

He credits his father with making a start toward modernization of Iran, but readily admits there was little time for accomplishment before his country was overwhelmed by pressures from England, Russia and Germany in the Second World War. Naturally, he presents the Iranian point of view in telling about the abdication of his father and his own accession to the throne at the age of 21.

There is an interesting chapter on the Mossadegh fiasco of 1952, though the author is not too clear in showing how this left-leaning exponent of negativism forced his way into the office of premier. The overthrow of Mossadegh reads like a thriller.

Expressing his ideas on democracy, the Shah is frank to say that because this form of government is "the most intricate and difficult kind to achieve," his country still sees it as a distant goal toward which it must strive. He speaks of his own views as centering around "positive nationalism," and makes it clear that his orientation is toward the West.

Because he devotes much attention to economics, land reform, Point Four programs, the status of women and education, there is little space for his personal life, but he does relate in discreet terms his marriages to Fawiza, Soraya and Farah, and the birth of the much desired heir.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Extra Dividends For Music Week

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

National Music Week hit northeast Louisiana in full force over the past seven days with professional concerts, private voice and piano recitals and a full force art show on the Northeast campus.

A Monroe federated music club member touched off Music Week in the state. Mrs. H. G. McDonald received the official proclamation from Governor Jimmie H. Davis and passed information on activities of Louisiana federated music clubs to the national office.

Most organizations included selections by American composers on their programs for the week and quite a bit of attention was devoted to current trends in music.

Two dramatic programs will close out the local season. The touring Dallas Theatre Center will stop off in Monroe Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. for a showing of two comedies, "The Chairs," by Eugene Tonesco, and "Phoenix Too Frequent," by Christopher Fry. The stageworks at Neville Auditorium will close the 1960 - 61 Northeast State Concert series.

FROM AMSTERDAM

Not one but two Dutch treats closed the La. Tech Concert season with two consecutive evenings with the Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestra at Howard Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday.

Needless to say, expenses mount when an aggregation of more than 100 top musicians from a foreign land is brought in for a twin bill. But since money cannot buy Rembrandt's brush in live action the chance to see Chartres Cathedral assembled part by part, the Concertgebouw orchestra is actually an econimical means of hearing that level of culture.

This writer attended the Wednesday night performance which featuredBernard Haitink as conductor and selections by von Weber, Dvorak, Bela Bartok and Maurice Ravel.

The orchestra had all the precision and power of a prominent symphonic organization. That is expected and usually achieved in the better known American and European orchestras.

But the Amsterdam orchestra placed emphasis on unusual blends, textures and solo instrumental passages which often are lost in "big" music. For this reason, the von Weber overture to the open "Oberon" sounded like a musical thoroughbred rather than a warhorse and the Bartok "Dance Suite" lost the percussive "jangle" too often associated with modern compositions.

The ability to perceive and carry out such special effect reached a musical high spot in the Ravel "Daphnis and Chloe" suite. This may be a piece of French impressionism, but any orchestra would do itself proud to copy the Dutch interpretation.

The second concert was conducted by Eugene Jochum and featured the works of Beethoven, Strauss and Brahams as well as the contemporary Dutch composer, Henk Badings.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS

Ouachita Parish Librarian

An interesting and delightful book of humorous non - fiction is "Tranquilizers in his Cup" written by Gene Laborde and Hazel Beatrous, two New Orleans housewives. It is the same type of thing as "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" but with a different locale it's humor is entirely different. Each of them have five children and the book deals with the problems of being a model wife, coping with schools and children, marketing and church affairs. There is a hillarious section devoted to the making of crayfish bisque. The book should have quite an appeal in this section. A very funny new novel is "Doctor on Toast" by Richard Gordon. This continues the saga of Gaston Grimsdyke, whom we met in "Doctor at Sea" and "Doctor in Love." It is an English novel and has it's setting in London and on the sea. The book is very funny and is good escape reading.

Much significant and important non - fiction arrived at the Ouachita Parish Public Library this week. A book which every thinking American should read is "A Nation of Sheep" by William J. Lederer, author of "The Ugly American." This is the frightening story of waste and greed and the top levels in our foreign aid program and mismanagement at home. Mr. Lederer shows how we have been fed misinformation and states that unless we, the people, insist on a change, take action personally to follow through, southeast Asia will be another area lost to communism. This is absorbing and terrifying reading and may be charged as being very one-sided, almost to the point of fanaticism. But fanaticism is often what is needed to electrify the world, when it is almost too late.

Samuel Ralph Harlow is the author of "A Life After Death", a book which deals in a very capable manner with this eternal question. "The Split Level Trap" by Richard E. Gordon is a study of the frustrations of the women who live in the large new housing developments and why so many of them go to pieces. It is a book to make one stop and think and it offers guidance for those who have troubled members of their families. A very fine addition to the religious collection of the library is "Sermons on the Passion of Christ" by Martin Luther. These sermons were preached nearly 400 years ago, but they are alive and vital today.

We hear so much about communism, but many people do not know what the word means and do not recognize it's various guises. George W. Cronyn has written a very splendid book explaining many of these matters which he calls "A Primer on Communism." Copies were purchased for each branch of the library, so that everyone in the parish could inform themselves about the threat which faces us. A very valuable book in the field of economics is "International Trade" by Roland L. Kramer. This book discusses principles and problems of this absorbing subject. Insurance men are always glad when a new book on insurance is added to the library. The latest addition is "All Lines Insurance" by Dan M. McGill. This is a valuable and informative book and is the latest edition of this work.

A scholarly new book in the field of education is "Education and the Human Quest" by Herbert A. Thelen. This is a study of the underlying principles of education. Theodore Huebener has written a book which should interest many parents. It is called "Why Johnny Should Learn Foreign Languages." The author discusses the need of speaking more than one language in today's world and brings out the fact that languages are easy to learn when a person is young.

Two most timely books in the light of Commander Shepard's successful trip into space recently are 'The Space Guidebook" by William J. Weiser and "Outward Bound for Space" by David O. Woodbury. These two books are as up-to-date as anything published in this field and will interest many readers. Books on gardening are always popular and a new one in this field is eagerly received. Anthony J. Huxley has written an interesting book called "Treasures of the Garden". It is largely a discussion of the pleasures of gardening and is a book for leisurely reading.

Books on salesmanship are always in demand at the library. The latest one in this group is called "Salesmanship" and was written by Steven J. Shaw. In this book the author stresses the necessity of personal communication and it's value in successful selling. People who are interested in needlework will want to see a new book in this field "Encyclopedia of Needlework" by Therese De Dillmont. It contains patterns and directions for almost every type of craft.

Donald J. Grout is the author of "A History of Western Music" which is one of the outstanding books of 1950. This book will appeal to everyone who is interested in this field in a serious manner. "Felix Frankfurter Reminisces" is an interesting memoir of this member of the U. S. Judiciary. Mr. James Pope-Hennessy, who has written other books about the British Royal family has now given us the definitive biography of the late Queen Mary, grandmother of the present Queen. It is an interesting and polished performance. There has been a great deal of interest lately in the Alamo and Virgil E. Baugh has written an interesting book about it which he calls "Rendezvous at the Alamo". It is an interesting account of the careers of the three leading figures of the defense of the Alamo, David Crockett, James Bowie and Tobert Barrett Travis.

"Last Score" by Storm Jameson is a drama of man and his conscience in the modern world, of the pressures which drive him to betray himself and alienate him from the power of love. It is a brief novel and carries a stunning impact. The scene is a British colony and the central figure is the governor. It bears no resemblance to Noel Coward's "Pomp and Circumstance." Set in modern day Kentucky is the novel by Robert P. Hansen, which he calls "Rites of Summer." It is the story of the people of Fox Creek, narrow and ingrown, who are just emerging into the industrial era. It is well - written and will demand a large audience.

A book to make one stop and think is "Buy Now, Pay Later" by Hillel Black. It reveals the inside workings of credit cards, installment purchases, small loans, bank charge plans, "bait" advertising and the gimmicks used to sell you your car on time. Timely and provocative, "Buy Now, Pay Later" lifts the veil on a subject of utmost importance to us all, yet a matter previously reserved for the inner sanctums of economists and the debt merchants themselves. An attempt to review Soviet-Western relations in historical perspective has been made by George F. Kennan in his book "Russia and the West." It is a well - written and thoughtful book and deserves serious study.

Life With A Woman And How To Survive It

LIFE WITH WOMEN AND HOW TO SURVIVE IT. By Joseph Peck, M.D. Prentice Hall. $3.50.

Dr. Peck is a wit, and an entertaining one. He is a retired family physician who has had the clinical advantage of observing the human race when it is most human.

Having written 'All About Men," he now turns his attention to the voracious sex, and he doesn't miss a trick.

Being quite methodical, he proceeds to dissect the female emotions — mind is not the word— from the little girl stage through adolescence, maturity, the 40's, the 50's and old age. He uses the needle on our feminine friends with surgical skill. On page 36, as he is about to get into the subject of beauty and marriage, he says he assumes that female readers will have thrown his book into the ash can by now, so he can address himself the rest of the way to an entirely male audience. Like fun he does.

'Return To Peyton Place' At Paramount

All the prejudices and smouldering hates that flourish under the veneer of a proper American community, erupt with startling and dramatic explosiveness in "Return to Peyton Place," 20th Century - Fox CinemaScope De Luxe Color sequel to the best-selling Grace Metalious story, opening today at the Paramount theatre with Carol Lynley, Jeff Chandler, Eleanor Parker and Mary Astor in starring roles.

When Allison MacKenzie (Carol Lynley) the young novelist with the searing pen and the knife-edge insight, publishes a book based upon the lives and secret loves of Peyton Place, a tempest erupts in this tradition - loving and astringent town.

Leading the crusade to ban the book from the public library is Roberta Carter (Mary Astor) the solid citizen with motives of the loftiest calibre, who cannot bear to see the homogeneous population of her home town invaded by "foreigners" or the good name of Peyton Place laid open to the curious gaze of "strangers."

How Allison returns to Peyton Places to defend, in the presence of the entire town assembly, the basic American right to freedom of speech and press . . . how Roberta Carter is caught ultimately in the meshes of her own sadism as the basic decency of all the citizens suddenly asserts itself in the course of Allison's "trial" is the theme of a picture that will certainly rank as one of the year's most provocative screen productions.

As Lewis Jackman, the crusading publisher who prints Allison's book, builds her cannily into a personality of national prominence, and then stands by her in her fight against the book-burners, Jeff Chandler is persuasive and subtle.

Eleanor Parker turns in a flexible performance as Allison's mother, a woman torn by the conflict between her own upbringing as a tradition - bound member of this small American community, and her pride in the courage and talent of her daughter.

Brett Halsey is expert in the role of Roberta Carter's mother-ridden son, torn by loyalty to this possessive and domineering parent, and by love for his young bride Raffaella, (Luciana Paluzzi) who is hounded and shamed by his mother because she is a "foreigner."

Produced by Jerry Wald, "Return to Peyton Place" is an indictment of censorship and a plea against bigotry, a powerful social document geared to one of the most urgent issues of our time.

THIS SUMMER

Martin To Fulfill Special Ambition

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Tony Martin is going to fulfill a dream this summer—even though it will cost him $75,000.

A decade or more ago, the producers of a then forthcoming Broadway musical offered Tony the starring role.

Tony, newly married to Cyd Charisse, turned it down.

"Cyd was under contract to MGM," he says. "It would have meant that we would be living a continent apart. So I turned it down and have wasted my time since making money.

"I've often dreamed of what would have happened if I had taken the show. Now, I'm going to find out, at least partly."

OFFERED

The show was "Guys and Dolls." Tony was offered the role of Sky Masterson, played by Robert Alda.

Later, when Sam Goldwyn made it into a movie, the veteran producer offered the part to Tony.

"This time I was ready, willing and able. Then Joe Mankiewicz was hired to direct. He favored an actor over a singer—so the part went to Marlon Brando."

Tony, who has never worked the legitimate stage before, will finally play the role in summer stock after he finishes a singing engagement at New York's Waldorf Astoria.

Tony estimates that the difference in pay between summer stock and canceled night club engagements will cost him $75,000.

Wealth In Oil Promised For Sages Seminar

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — An oil strike means mansions, mink and expensive cars to most Hollywood stars. Not Lew Ayres.

Lew recently completed a deal with Standard Oil to drill on his Newhall, Calif., ranch. The oil firm plans to drill 10,000 feet.

If oil is discovered, Lew says he will use all the royalties to endow a seminar of sages and philosophers of all great religions.

Mickey Rooney Says He Has Little Of Value

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mickey Rooney testified Friday that, "After earning $12 million in 32 years of acting, the only thing I own is $8,700 in securities.

But that, he said, is more than offset by debts—including a government lien of $175,000 for back income taxes.

"I have nothing of value except my family," the actor said. "My wife and I can't own anything for fear someone will attach it."

Rooney, 38, was summoned before a Superior Court commissioner to determine whether he owns assets that could pay off a $5,540 promissory note judgment held against him by Republic Corp.

He said the $1,000 a week he is earning at film-acting barely pays bills for himself, his fifth wife, Barbara, and their two daughters, Kelly Ann, 20 months, and Kerry, 5 months.

TONY PERKINS and Janet Leigh star in a suspense-packed production by Alfred Hitchcock, "Psycho," which opens today in the downtown Delta Theatre. The co-feature is the war drama "Heroes Die Young."

'Return To Peyton Place' At Paramount

All the prejudices and smouldering hates that flourish under the veneer of a proper American community, erupt with startling and dramatic explosiveness in "Return to Peyton Place," 20th Century - Fox CinemaScope De Luxe Color sequel to the best-selling Grace Metalious story, opening today at the Paramount theatre with Carol Lynley, Jeff Chandler, Eleanor Parker and Mary Astor in starring roles.

When Allison MacKenzie (Carol Lynley) the young novelist with the searing pen and the knife-edge insight, publishes a book based upon the lives and secret loves of Peyton Place, a tempest erupts in this tradition - loving and astringent town.

Leading the crusade to ban the book from the public library is Roberta Carter (Mary Astor) the solid citizen with motives of the loftiest calibre, who cannot bear to see the homogeneous population of her home town invaded by "foreigners" or the good name of Peyton Place laid open to the curious gaze of "strangers."

How Allison returns to Peyton Places to defend, in the presence of the entire town assembly, the basic American right to freedom of speech and press . . . how Roberta Carter is caught ultimately in the meshes of her own sadism as the basic decency of all the citizens suddenly asserts itself in the course of Allison's "trial" . . . is the theme of a picture that will certainly rank as one of the year's most provocative screen productions.

As Lewis Jackman, the crusading publisher who prints Allison's book, builds her cannily into a personality of natinal prominence, and then stands by her in her fight against the book-burners, Jeff Chandler is persuasive and subtle.

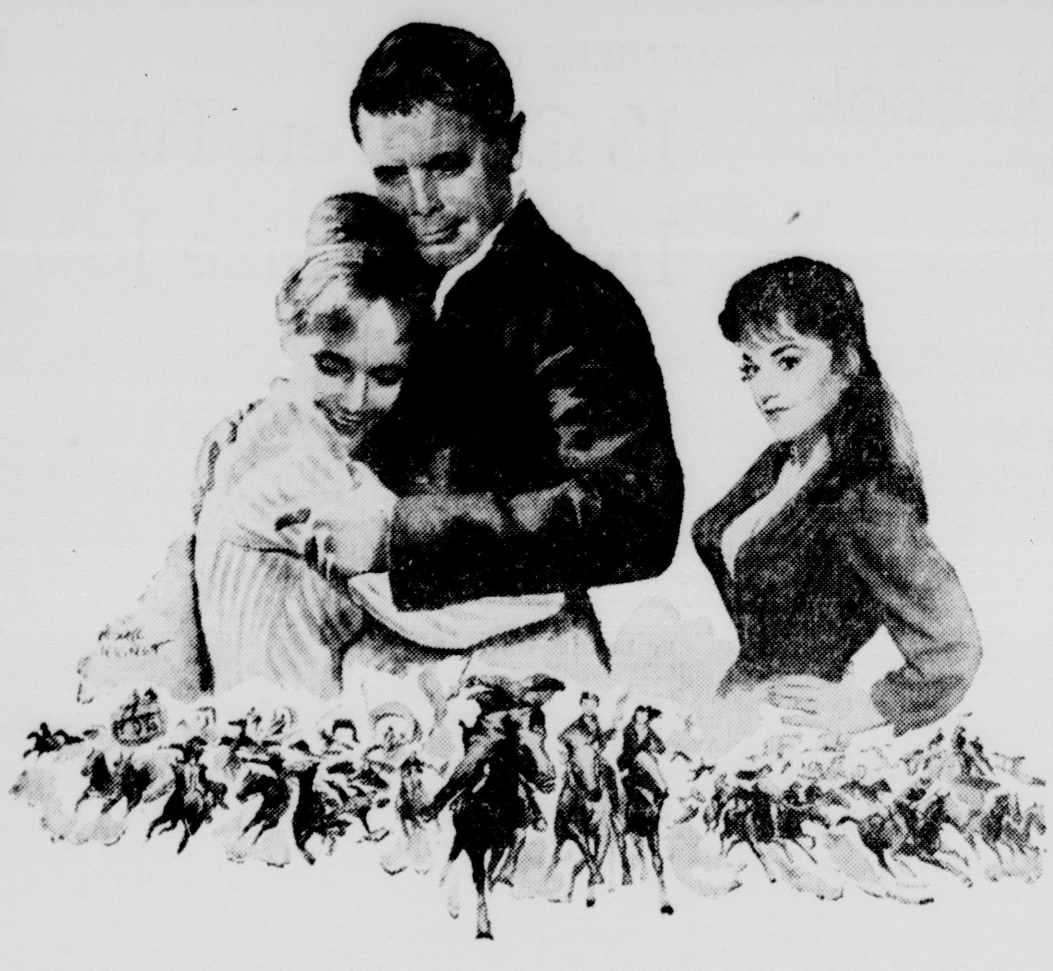
Eleanor Parker turns in a flexible performance as Allison's mother, a woman torn by the conflict between her own upbringing as a tradition - bound member of this small American community, and her pride in the courage and talent of her daughter.

Brett Halsey is expert in the role of Roberta Carter's mother-ridden son, torn by loyalty to this possessive and domineering parent, and by love for his young bride Raffaella, (Luciana Paluzzi) who is hounded and shamed by his mother because she is a "foreigner."

Produced by Jerry Wald, "Return to Peyton Place" is an indictment of censorship and a plea against bigotry, a powerful social document geared to one of the most urgent issues of our time.

UNFORTUNATE REQUEST

WEST SENECA, N.Y. (AP) — William A. Kennick asked policemen to help him push his stalled automobile. Officers recognized the car, arrested him on a stolen car charge.



'CIMARRON', Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production which took the Academy Award for photography, opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. The picture, filmed in CinemaScope and Metrocolor, stars Glenn Ford, Maria Schell and Anne Baxter.

THIS SUMMER

Martin To Fulfill Special Ambition

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)Tony Martin is going to fulfill a dream this summer—even though it will cost him $75,000.

A decade or more ago, the producers of a then forthcoming Broadway musical offered Tony the starring role.

Tony, newly married to Cyd Charisse, turned it down.

"Cyd was under contract to MGM," he says. "It would have meant that we would be living a continent apart. So I turned it down and have wasted my time since making money.

"I've often dreamed of what would have happened if I had taken the show. Now, I'm going to find out, at least partly."

OFFERED

The show was "Guys and Dolls." Tony was offered the role of Sky Masterson, played by Robert Alda.

Later, when Sam Goldwyn made it into a movie, the veteran producer offered the part to Tony.

"This time I was ready, willing and able. Then Joe Mankiewicz was hired to direct. He favored an actor over a singer—so the part went to Marlon Brando.'

Tony, who has never worked the legitimate stage before, will finally play the role in summer stock after he finishes a singing engagement at New Yor's Waldorf Astoria.

Tony estimates that the difference in pay between summer stock and canceled night club engagements will cost him $75,000.

PRACTICING WHAT they'll preach are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Bradley, who study together for their joint careers as ordained ministers.

PULPIT PARTNERS

Couple Studying To Be Ministers

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Will it be Rev. Mr. and Mrs. or Revs. Joseph and Carlene? That's one of the minor problems facing Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Bradley as they study together for the ministry.

A bigger problem for Joe Bradley is how to keep his family solvent until he and his wife are ordained. Carlene still hasn't found a way to keep up with her studies, her housework and student preaching.

THE REV. W.M. ALLEN, pastor of the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church, will deliver the baccalaureate address at Haughton High School, May 28. His sermon will be "How You Can Fashion Your Future." Rev. Allen formerly held a pastorate at Haughton, and also taught in a school there.

Carlene, a striking figure in the pulpit because of her beauty and youthful 21 years, is one of two women studying at the Bangor Theological Seminary. She has had the ministry in mind for many years.

"I knew this was where I wanted to be," she says. "I still don't know how I got here but I did."

She resolved her three-duty problem by foregoing preaching for the time being.

JOE'S HELPER

Joe was on the management staff of North American Aviation for 12 years before deciding on the ministry.

"Actually, I wasn't too much of a church-goer" the native Missourian explained. "But one day I walked into church, liked what the minister had to say, and from then on it rather grew on me."

NO OBJECT

The financial problem that came with his switch isn't too vexing he says.

"Many people may think it strange, but once you've made up your mind to enter this field, the economic aspect really doesn't mean that much."

Joe, who is 41, met his pretty, young wife at the seminary. They were married a year ago.

The husband and wife team is in the second year of studies. Both are good students but Joe admits his wife has the edge:

"She gives me a beating all the time, especially in term papers."

After another year of theological study, Joe will turn to making up some college credits. Carlene will turn to housework for the time being content to let her husband carry on the pulpit work.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: What do you think of divorced people remarrying?

M.L.

ANSWER: I receive more questions on this subject than any other. It is not important what I think of divorced people remarrying — but it is extremely important what our Lord thinks of it. He said: "Whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery."

Christ was very outspoken on the problem of divorce. He recognized it as a trap set by Satan to wreck the home life of mankind. It has been one of the major social problems of history and today we are becoming notorious for broken homes.

Most lawyers know that few divorces are really justified, but they are officially bound to follow the wishes of their clients. The prevalence of divorce and the subsequent deterioration of the home life was one of the causes of the fall of the Roman Empire. Sociologists are concerned about this problem and [illegible] it is a [illegible] that [illegible] never be [illegible]. Let us hope that more couples will heed Christ's warning [illegible] of quick and easy divorce.

Iran Teachers To End Strike

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Sixty thousand schoolteachers agreed Friday to end the 11-day strike that has tumbled Iran's government and Parliament. They agreed on a return to classrooms Saturday at a substantial salary increase.

Strike leader Mohammed Darakhshesh announced the pay raise and pledged to continue demanding punishment of the police officer who shot a striking teacher dead last Tuesday.

Public furor over teacher Khan Ali's death prompted the shah to dissolve Parliament and appoint a former ambassador to the United States, Dr. Ali Amini, as premier of a reform government. Amini immediately granted pay increases to the teachers, who all are civil servants.

Great Religious Awakening Seen As World's Need

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "Only a great religious awakening can save Western civilization," Dr. Perry E. Gresham, president of Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., told a meeting here. "The powerful challenge of the Communist world could be met if there were enough moral and spiritual strength within our society."

Bishops College Stages Election

BOSTON (AP) — College of Bishops of the Methodist Church's Northeastern Jurisdiction has elected Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of New York as president, and Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington as secretary.

Four Camps, Travel Study On Schedule

Four work camps and a travel seminar will give about 70 Methodist college students an opportunity to participate first - hand in the mission of the church this summer.

As in past summers, students will combine physical work with study, worship and recreation. The work will range from helping to build a Methodist church in Brasilia, the booming new capital of Brazil, to renovating a social center serving Spanish - speaking persons in El Paso, Texas.

The summer service projects are sponsored jointly by the Methodist Student Movement (national organization for Methodist college students) and the Methodist Boards of Education and Missions.

PROJECTS INCLUDE

The projects include: European travel seminar, Mexico work camp El Paso (Texas) work camp, Brazil work camp and Chicago inner city work camp. While engaged in physical work and instructive travel, the students will also observe what the church is doing on various modern missionary frontiers — social, cultural, racial, political and intellectual.

Students who have completed their sophomore year or its equivalent in college are eligible. Participating students should be Christians with a desire to share their faith, a willingness to do hard physical work and a 'wish to serve others.

In most cases, they will have the relatively stringent living conditions. Worship and study will be an important part of each project. Experienced adult leadership will be provided for each project.

All of the service projects, except the European travel seminar, will begin June 17 and continue until the last of July. The European seminar will start July 26 and continue through August 30.

Elder Provides Information On Mormon Group

Information on the growth of the Mormon movement, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has been provided by LeRoy Mason, elder of the Lee Avenue church.

He said that in less than 70 years, the denomination has grown from a small group centered in Utah, to a world - wide membership of 2,000,000. In Monroe there are about 300 members.

Utah still has more Mormons than any other state, about 475,000. Louisiana has about 2,250 members. Elder Mason said U.S. membership has increased about 60 per cent in the past 10 years.

He said a far-flung missionary movement has carried the Morman faith to England where membership is 11,000; Germany with about 14,000; New Zealand, 16,000; Hawaii, 18,000, and Samoa, 9,000, and to more than a dozen other countries in Europe and the Far East.

David O. McKay has been president of the organization since April 9, 1951.

PULPIT PARTNERS

Couple Studying To Be Ministers

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Will it be Rev. Mr. and Mrs. or Revs. Joseph and Carlene? That's one of the minor problems facing Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Bradley as they study together for the ministry.

A bigger problem for Joe Bradley is how to keep his family solvent until he and his wife are ordained. Carlene still hasn't found a way to keep up with her studies, her housework and student preaching.

Carlene, a striking figure in the pulpit because of her beauty and youthful 21 years, is one of two women studying at the Bangor Theological Seminary. She has had the ministry in mind for many years.

"I knew this was where I wanted to be," she says. "I still don't know how I got here but I did."

She resolved her three-duty problem by foregoing preaching for the time being.

JOE'S HELPER

Joe was on the management staff of North American Aviation for 12 years before deciding on the ministry.

"Actually, I wasn't too much of a church-goer" the native Missourian explained. "But one day I walked into church, liked what the minister had to say, and from then on it rather grew on me."

NO OBJECT

The financial problem that came with his switch isn't too vexing he says.

"Many people may think it strange, but once you've made up your mind to enter this field, the economic aspect really doesn't mean that much."

Joe, who is 41, met his pretty, young wife at the seminary. They were married a year ago.

The husband and wife team is in the second year of studies. Both are good students but Joe admits his wife has the edge:

"She gives me a beating all the time, especially in term papers."

After another year of theological study, Joe will turn to making up some college credits. Carlene will turn to housework for the time being content to let her husband carry on the pulpit work.

THE REV. W.M. ALLEN, pastor of the Gordon Avenue Methodist Church, will deliver the baccalaureate address at Haughton High School, May 28. His sermon will be "How You Can Fashion Your Future." Rev. Allen formerly held a pastorate at Haughton, and also taught in a school there.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: What do you think of divorced people remarrying?

M.I.

ANSWER: I receive more questions on this subject than any other. It is not important what I think of divorced people remarrying — but it is extremely important what our Lord thinks of it. He warned: "Whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery."

Christ was very outspoken on the problem of divorce. He recognized it as a trap set by Satan to wreck the home - life of millions. It has been one of the major social problems of history, and today we are breaking history's records for broken homes.

Most lawyers know that few divorces are really justified, but they are ethically bound to following the wishes of their clients. The prevalence of divorce and the subsequent deterioration of the home life was one of the great causes of the fall of the Roman Empire. Sociologists are concerned about this problem and many fear it is a crack in our moral armor that will never be repaired. Let us hope that more couples will heed Christ's warning about the dangers of quick and self - motivated divorce.

Whether to remarry depends on the circumstances of the divorce!

Iran Teachers To End Strike

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Sixty thousand schoolteachers agreed Friday to end the 11-day strike that has tumbled Iran's government and Parliament. They agreed an a return to classrooms Saturday at a substantial salary increase.

Strike leader Mohammed Darakhshesh announced the pay raise and pledged to continue demanding punishment of the police officer who shot a striking teacher dead last Tuesday.

Public furor over teacher Khan Alis death prompted the shah to dissolve Parliament and appoint a former ambassador to the United States, Dr. Ali Amini, as premier of a reform government. Amini immediately granted pay increases to the teachers, who all are civil servants.

Church Groups Set Deadline On Unity In Japan

TOKYP (AP) — Culminating years of negotiation, 13 Lutheran bodies in Japan have set Oct. 31, 1962, as a target date for uniting nearly all Lutherans in the country into one denomination.

Great Religious Awakening Seen As World's Need

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "Only a great religious awakening can save Western civilization," Dr. Perry E. Gresham, president of Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., told a meeting here. "The powerful challenge of the Communist world could be met if there were enough moral and spiritual strength within our society."

Bishops College Stages Election

BOSTON (AP) — College of Bishops of the Methodist Church's Northeastern Jurisdiction has elected Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of New York as president, and Bishop John Wesley Lord of Washington as secretary.

THE REV. D. E. Wainwright, former pastor of the Mer Rouge Baptist Church, has assumed duties as pastor of the Edgewood Baptist Church of West Monroe.

Four Camps, Travel Study On Schedule

Four work camps and a travel seminar will give about 70 Methodist college students an opportunity to participate first - hand in the mission of the church this summer.

As in past summers, students will combine physical work with study, worship and recreation. The work will range from helping to build a Methodist church in Brasilia, the booming new capital of Brazil, to renovating a social center serving Spanish - speaking persons in El Paso, Texas.

The summer service projects are sponsored jointly by the Methodist Student Movement (national organization for Methodist college students) and the Methodist Boards of Education and Missions.

PROJECTS INCLUDE

The projects include: European travel seminar, Mexico work camp El Paso (Texas) work camp, Brazil work camp and Chicago inner city work camp. While engaged in physical work and instructive travel, the students will also observe what the church is doing on various modern missionary frontiers — social, cultural, racial, political and intellectual.

Students who have completed their sophomore year or its equivalent in college are eligible. Participating students should be Christians with a desire to share their faith, a willingness to do hard physical work and a wish to serve others.

In most cases, they will have the relatively stringent living conditions. Worship and study will be an important part of each project. Experienced adult leadership will be provided for each project.

All of the service projects, except the European travel seminar, will begin June 17 and continue until the last of July. The European seminar will start July 26 and continue through August 30.

Elder Provides Information On Mormon Group

Information on the growth of the Mormon movement, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has been provided by LeRoy Mason, elder of the Lee Avenue church.

He said that in less than 70 years, the denomination has grown from a small group centered in Utah, to a world - wide membership of 2,000,000. In Monroe there are about 300 members.

Utah still has more Mormons than any other state, about 475,000. Louisiana has about 2,250 members. Elder Mason said U.S. membership has increased about 60 per cent in the past 10 years.

He said a far-flung missionary movement has carried the Mormon faith to England where membership is 11,000; Germany with about 14,000; New Zealand, 16,000; Hawaii, 18,000, and Samoa, 9,000, and to more than a dozen other countries in Europe and the Far East.

David O. McKay has been president of the organization since April 9, 1951.

Summer Rush To Europe To Begin Shortly

The rush to Europe will be on in another two months, but until then it is "getting an ahead of the crowd season."

With most of Europe expecting a stay - abreast - of - last- year season — considering the record-breaker 1960 was — the heartland of the continent, the Alpine region, is looking to a 9 per cent increase in tourist business this year.

The expectation was stated by Rudolf Mattesich, chairman of the Alpine Tourist Commission in New York. Mattesich, who also is director of the Austrian State Tourist Office in New York, said the prediction is based on the volume of mail and inquiries pouring into the Alpine Tourist Commission.

The Alpine region embraces the mountain areas of Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Yugoslavia and all of tiny Monaco. And among them the countries offer just about anything the traveler could want — from "lazy mountaineering" (climbing the mountains by chair lift, cable car or cog railway) to hunting for the prized chamois and stag to just plain sightseeing.

Mattesich, who waxes eloquent over his beloved Alps, is a confirmed off-season man for visits to the European heartland.

"The spring is perhaps the most beautiful time," he said, "flowers blooming, but snow still on the mountains. And you are ahead of the crowds."

Mattesich also has his own ideas on how he likes to see the Alpine country — driving yourself.

"If you see a side valley that appeals to you, you can go into it."

Although a skiing addict, and from a region noted for its winter sports, Mattesich is quick to tick off the many activities once available winter departs the Alps:

Camping at any of the hundreds of developed camp grounds, climbing, fishing (the mountain brook trout is best, he says), canoeing in the mountain rivers, sailing and aerial gliding, as well as the expected swimming and golf.

He poined out another interesting way to see the Alps — by horse. A two - week, all-expense pack trip can be taken for about $170.

The coming of spring also brings out the festival in the populace — fo rexample, the Vienna Festival from late May to late June, Rose Weeks in Geneva in mid-June and the International Folklore Festival at Annemasse, France, beginning at the end of June. Festivals continue all through the summer and into fall.

Mattesich favors searching out festivals in the smaller villages, because the "peasants love to have a good time, and it is the best way to get to meet the people."

Auto Industry Has Decisions On Each Day

DETROIT (AP)—With a little luck a man probably could make a living in Detroit selling crystal balls and aspirin to the automobile industry.

Within a single week a major manufacturer may have to give final approval to a future model to be built three years hence; decide whether to buy or make vital parts for a model still two years from production and render final approval prior to manufacture on last-minute changes in next year's car.

Some critics criticize all this as "new model madness."

The industry, and certainly the three big automakers, have a fairly standard answer.

"If we didn't change models, the sales of new cars would drop appreciably and overhead costs per car would be considerably higher for manufacturer, dealer and customer," they say.

But while they favor such change, the industry executives would be the first to admit it causes many anxious moments.

Take this year for example. It hasn't been a good one for the auto business.

The past two years, and especially 1960 with sales of 6.7 million cars, were good years. In the flush of the holiday season last December Frederic Donner, chairman of General Motors, said: "The industry's and General Motors' 1960 sales could be matched or even exceeded in 1961."

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said: "I expect new car sales in 1961 will approximate those of 1960."

L. L. Colbert, chairman of Chrysler Corp., said: "There is an excellent chance that retail sales of automotive vehicles in 1961 will reach or exceed the level attained during the near-record year now closing."

Almost at the same time as those statements, the bottom fell out of the retail auto market. From average sales of almost 18,000 cars daily in the period prior to Christmas, business dropped to less than 14,500 sales daily one month later.

The problem now is the approach of the 1962 model year. The products are all set and in most cases even the exact introduction dates have been chosen. Advertising campaigns are in the works.

A typical volume manufacturer may have 21 models of one brand name and 6,000 dealers. It would be neither necessary nor possible to supply each dealer with every model.

So a choice has to be made. A four-door sedan is a safe one since it is the most popular body style. Then pick a color, the special factory equipment such as automatic transmission, power brakes and the like.

If the guess is wrong the dealer may be stuck and the public unhappy. Meanwhile, a buyer wanting something special has to wait.

Grain Futures Show Mixed On Chicago Board

CHICAGO (AP) — Trade in soybean futures was at its usual fest clip on two days this week but on the others it showed signs of leveling off at more moderate fluctuations.

Prices were relatively little changed for the commodity this week although it posted broad setbacks and gains. Until the May and July deliveries moved up 9 to 10 cents a bushel on Wednesday both contracts had been under stiff pressure for five consecutive days in which losses amounted to about 30 cents a bushel.

At the end of the week, soybeans were 2 cents a bushel higher to 1¼ lower, May 3.13¼-12¾; wheat 1⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, May 1.86½; corn ⅛-2⅝ higher, May 1.14; oats 1¼-2¼ higher, May 67⅞-⅝; rye ¼-5½ higher, May 1.16½.

DURING PAST WEEK

Business Keeps Moving Upward

This statement by T. F. Patton, president of Republic Steel Corp., seemed to pretty well sum up the situation: "The recovery in general business is turning out to be more vigorous than most people anticipated."

The New York Federal Reserve Bank said, "Preliminary data for April suggests that the March gains have generally been maintained or broadened."

The Northern Trust Co. of Chicago found that signs of improvement in demand and output in important industries "have lifted business sentiment and have encouraged the view that recessionary tendencies have been overcome by forces making for recovery and expansion."

INVENTORIES

Sales of new homes were on the increase. The Census Bureau reported $1.6 billion was spent on new residential construction in April, a gain of 15 per cent over March.

The $10-billion electronics industry, whose growth had just about halted during the past six months was reported to have begun a major turnabout.

The government reported what it called a significant gain in the factory work week and modest employment increases in many industries.

This, said Labor Department manpower chief Seymour Wolfbein, shows promising over-all economic improvement.

The average factory work week increased six minutes to 39.2 hours. Usually there is a decline in April. There were small employment increases, instead of seasonally expected declines, in such industries as primary metals, metal fabricating and machinery manufacturing.

ANOTHER USE

The steel industry expected to rack up its ninth consecutive weekly increase in production this week.

"Steel mills report orders are on the increase," said the trade publication, Iron Age. "While the gains are the strongest in the midlands of the nation, they are general from coast to coast. And the recovery is considered basically solid. There is little or no inventory accumulation."

The previous week, the latest period for which figures were available, output increased 4.6 per cent over the previous week to 1,943,000 tons, the heaviest in a year.

Steel orders from the automobile industry, where the current week's production was the biggest of the year, were a major factor in the increase.

Automakers assembled an estimated 131,000 passenger cars, up 5 per cent from last week's 124,454 but 10 per cent under the 145,917 built a year ago.

Possibilities of further increases in government spending for space and defense projects lifted electronics and aircraft-missile issues on the stock market.

President Kennedy was reported considering a $600 million increase in the proposed budget for spaces programs in the fiscal year beginning July 1. The Senate Armed Services Committee voted to add $525 million for production of long-range heavy bombers to the military procurement authorization bill for the next fiscal year.

The Commerce Department reported the country's international finances are in the best condition since 1957. It estimated that in the first three months of this year the balance of payments deficit fell to an annual rate of about $1 billion. In 1960 the deficit was a record $3.8 billion.

Retail trade in April dipped one per cent from the March level but one of the industry's leaders, Charles H. Kellstadt, the chairman of Sears Roebuck Co. said "There is reason to believe 1961 will show improvement over 1960 in retail sales."

Wholesale food pricess declined to their lowest level since last Aug. 17.

Texas Oilmen Set To Hold Special Meet

Texas crude production allowables will be at a record low as the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) begins its 15th annual meeting.

The Texas allowables have been held to a record low of only 44 days the first five months of 1961.

Sagging allowables, imports, and natural gas price controls will be major problems under discussion as TIPRO charts its policy program for 1961-62.

WILL INCLUDED

There is indication TIPRO's solution will include:

1. A request that crude purchasers aid in returning to Texas its share of the domestic crude market.

2. A renewed plea for a stronger mandatory program to control imports of crude and petroleum products.

3. A refusal to endorse President Kennedy's request that Congress exempt from federal price controls the small gas producer who sells less than two billion cubic feet a year into interstate commerce.

4. Renewed endorsement of the Federal Power Commission's area formula for controlling wellhead prices of gas as a "genuine step forward out of the regulatory morass."

TIPRO traditionally has contended an equalization tariff would be the most effective method for controlling imports but has endorsed the mandatory controls program and has asked frequently that it be strengthened.

Foreign oil, however, has not drawn all the blame for sagging Texas allowables. TIPRO believes part of Texas' fair share of the domestic market has shifted to other states. The Texas independents contend the state lost 50 million barrels in domestic markets last year while other producing states added 40 million barrels.

Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass., will discuss President Kennedy's small producer exemption plan at a Tuesday luncheon. MacDonald is sponsoring the plan in the House.

John G. Hurd, TIPRO president from Laredo, this week indicated TIPRO's reaction to the plan when he said:

"While we can't agree the suggestion for decontrol by size is sound, we can welcome the fact the administration recognizes the present situation is intolerable."

Hurd suggested the time may be ripe for all segments of the industry to get together and place before Congress a plan for relieving wellhead prices of gas from federal controls.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) called for such action last week at its mdiyear meeting in New Orleans. IPAA rejected President jKennedy's plan, and, unlike TIPRO, refused to endorse FPC's area pricing formula.

Two other government officials are among the Midland speakers. They are Frank B. Ellis, director of the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, and Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., oil imports administrator.

O'Connor, a former Houston oil operator, will take part in a panel discussion on fuels policy. Also on the panel will be Joseph E. Moody, president of the national coal policy conference in Washington, and Dr. Bruce C. Netshort, a Washington energy research specialist.

STUDENTS SMASH PIANO

DERBY, England (AP) — Students of Derby Technical College set a record Saturday for smashing a piano into pieces small enough to go through a nine-inch hole. They used sledgehammers and took 14 minutes. The previous record, set by two Manchester University students last year, was 32 minutes.

Mattesich also has his own ideas on how he likes to see the Alpine country — driving yourself.

"If you see a side valley that appeals to you, you can go into it."

Although a skiing addict, and from a region noted for its winter sports, Mattesich is quick to tick off the many activities once available winter departs the Alps: Camping at any of the hundreds of developed camp grounds, climbing, fishing (the mountain brook trout is best, he says), canoeing in the mountain rivers, sailing and aerial gliding, as well as the expected swimming and golf.

He poined out another interesting way to see the Alps — by horse. A two - week, all-expense pack trip can be taken for about $170.

The coming of spring also brings out the festival in the populace — fo rexample, the Vienna Festival from late May to late June, Rose Weeks in Geneva in mid-June and the International Folklore Festival at Annemasse, France, beginning at the end of June. Festivals continue all through the summer and into fall.

Mattesich favors searching out festivals in the smaller villages, because the "peasants love to have a good time, and it is the best way to get to meet the people."

Auto Industry Has Decisions On Each Day

DETROIT (AP)—With a little luck a man probably could make a living in Detroit selling crystal balls and aspirin to the automobile industry.

Within a single week a major manufacturer may have to give final approval to a future model to be built three years hence; decide whether to buy or make vital parts for a model still two years from production and render final approval prior to manufacture on last-minute changes in next year's car.

Some critics criticize all this as "new model madness."

The industry, and certainly the three big automakers, have a fairly standard answer.

"If we didn't change models, the sales of new cars would drop appreciably and overhead costs per car would be considerably higher for manufacturer, dealer and customer," they say.

But while they favor such change, the industry executives would be the first to admit it causes many anxious moments.

Take this year for example. It hasn't been a good one for the auto business.

The past two years, and especially 1960 with sales of 6.7 million cars, were good years. In the flush of the holiday season last December Frederic Donner, chairman of General Motors, said: "The industry's and General Motors' 1960 sales could be matched or even exceeded in 1961."

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., said: "I expect new car sales in 1961 will approximate those of 1960."

L. L. Colbert, chairman of Chrysler Corp., said: "There is an excellent chance that retail sales of automotive vehicles in 1961 will reach or exceed the level attained during the near-record year now closing."

Almost at the same time as those statements, the bottom fell out of the retail auto market. From average sales of almost 18,000 cars daily in the period prior to Christmas, business dropped to less than 14,500 sales daily one month later.

The problem now is the approach of the 1962 model year. The products are all set and in most cases even the exact introduction dates have been chosen. Advertising campaigns are in the works.

A typical volume manufacturer may have 21 models of one brand name and 6,000 dealers. It would be neither necessary nor possible to supply each dealer with every model.

So a choice has to be made. A four-door sedan is a safe one since it is the most popular body style. Then pick a color, the special factory equipment such as automatic transmission, power brakes and the like.

If the guess is wrong the dealer may be stuck and the public unhappy. Meanwhile, a buyer wanting something special has to wait.

Grain Futures Show Mixed On Chicago Board

CHICAGO (AP) — Trade in soybean futures was at its usual fest clip on two days this week but on the others it showed signs of leveling off at more moderate fluctuations.

Prices were relatively little changed for the commodity this week although it posted broad setbacks and gains. Until the May and July deliveries moved up 9 to 10 cents a bushel on Wednesday both contracts had been under stiff pressure for five consecutive days in which losses amounted to about 30 cents a bushel.

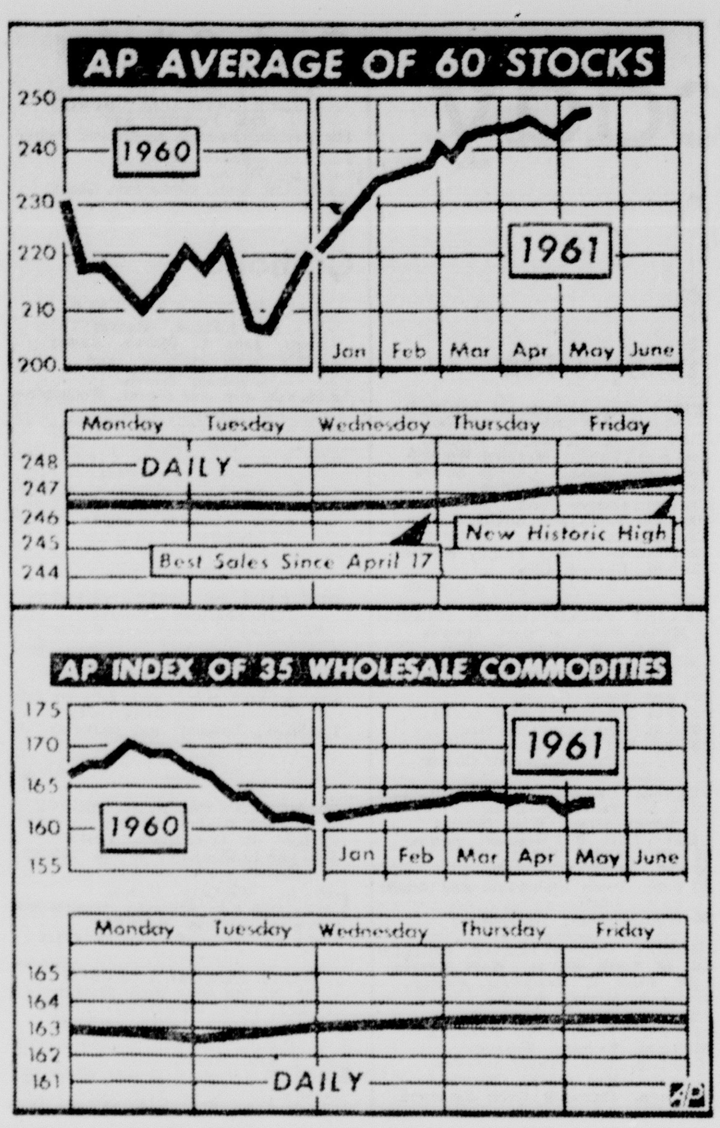
At the end of the week, soybeans were 2 cents a bushel higher to 1¼ lower, May 3.13¼-12¾; wheat 1⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, May 1.86½; corn 1⅜-2⅝ higher, May 1.14; oats 1¼-2¼ higher, May 67⅞-⅝; rye 4-5½ higher, May 1.16½.

Monroe Chapter Of API To Hold Final '61 Meet

The Monroe chapter of the American Petroleum Institute will conclude its first year of activity with a barbeue picnic Friday night. The picnic will be held at Bancroft's Camp on Cheniere Lake at 7 p.m. with a refreshment hour preceding.

The group will be entertained by Bud Fletcher who is better known as Cyprienne Robespierre. Fletcher is a Cajun dialect artist and has appeared before many oil men's groups in the Gulf Coast and has recorded an album of tall tales.

This meeting is open to the wives and men of the oil, gas and related industries in the Monroe area. on-members who did not receive a notice card should contact Harold Woods, Jr. at Crescent Petroleum about ticket information.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks, advancing for the second straight week, closed at new historic peak of 247.5. It closed at 246.8 a week earlier. The Commodity Index also advanced for the second straight week, closing at 163.2 from 163.0 a week ago. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

DURING PAST WEEK

Business Keeps Moving Upward

This statement by T. F. Patton, president of Republic Steel Corp., seemed to pretty well sum up the situation: "The recovery in general business is turning out to be more vigorous than most people anticipated."

The New York Federal Reserve Bank said, "Preliminary data for April suggests that the March gains have generally been maintained or broadened."

The Northern Trust Co. of Chicago found that signs of improvement in demand and output in important industries "have lifted business sentiment and have encouraged the view that recessionary tendencies have been overcome by forces making for recovery and expansion."

INVENTORIES

Sales of new homes were on the increase. The Census Bureau reported $1.6 billion was spent on new residential construction in April, a gain of 15 per cent over March.

The $10-billion electronics industry, whose growth had just about halted during the past six months was reported to have begun a major turnabout.

The government reported what it called a significant gain in the factory work week and modest employment increases in many industries.

This, said Labor Department manpower chief Seymour Wolfbein, shows promising over-all economic improvement.

The average factory work week increased six minutes to 39.2 hours. Usually there is a decline in April. There were small employment increases, instead of seasonally expected declines, in such industries as primary metals, metal fabricating and machinery manufacturing.

ANOTHER USE

The steel industry expected to rack up its ninth consecutive weekly increase in production this week.

"Steel mills report orders are on the increase," said the trade publication, Iron Age. "While the gains are the strongest in the midlands of the nation, they are general from coast to coast. And the recovery is considered basically solid. There is little or no inventory accumulation."

The previous week, the latest period for which figures were available, output increased 4.6 per cent over the previous week to 1,943,000 tons, the heaviest in a year.

Steel orders from the automobile industry, where the current week's production was the biggest of the year, were a major factor in the increase.

Automakers assembled an estimated 131,000 passenger cars, up 5 per cent from last week's 124,454 but 10 per cent under the 145,917 built a year ago.

Possibilities of further increases in government spending for space and defense projects lifted electronics and aircraft-missile issues on the stock market.

President Kennedy was reported considering a $600 million increase in the proposed budget for spaces programs in the fiscal year beginning July 1. The Senate Armed Services Committee voted to add $525 million for production of long-range heavy bombers to the military procurement authorization bill for the next fiscal year.

The Commerce Department reported the country's international finances are in the best condition since 1957. It estimated that in the first three months of this year the balance of payments deficit fell to an annual rate of about $1 billion. In 1960 the deficit was a record $3.8 billion.

Retail trade in April dipped one per cent from the March level but one of the industry's leaders, Charles H. Kellstadt, the chairman of Sears Roebuck Co. said "There is reason to believe 1961 will show improvement over 1960 in retail sales."

Wholesale food pricess declined to their lowest level since last Aug. 17.

Texas Oilmen Set To Hold Special Meet

Texas crude production allowables will be at a record low as the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) begins its 15th annual meeting.

The Texas allowables have been held to a record low of only 44 days the first five months of 1961.

Sagging allowables, imports, and natural gas price controls will be major problems under discussion as TIPRO charts its policy program for 1961-62.

WILL INCLUDED

There is indication TIPRO's solution will include:

1. A request that crude purchasers aid in returning to Texas its share of the domestic crude market.

2. A renewed plea for a stronger mandatory program to control imports of crude and petroleum products.

3. A refusal to endorse President Kennedy's request that Congress exempt from federal price controls the small gas producer who sells less than two billion cubic feet a year into interstate commerce.

4. Renewed endorsement of the Federal Power Commission's area formula for controlling wellhead prices of gas as a "genuine step forward out of the regulatory morass."

TIPRO traditionally has contended an equalization tariff would be the most effective method for controlling imports but has endorsed the mandatory controls program and has asked frequently that it be strengthened.

Foreign oil, however, has not drawn all the blame for sagging Texas allowables. TIPRO believes part of Texas' fair share of the domestic market has shifted to other states. The Texas independents contend the state lost 50 million barrels in domestic markets last year while other producing states added 40 million barrels.

Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass., will discuss President Kennedy's small producer exemption plan at a Tuesday luncheon. MacDonald is sponsoring the plan in the House.

John G. Hurd, TIPRO president from Laredo, this week indicated TIPRO's reaction to the plan when he said:

"While we can't agree the suggestion for decontrol by size is sound, we can welcome the fact the administration recognizes the present situation is intolerable."

Hurd suggested the time may be ripe for all segments of the industry to get together and place before Congress a plan for relieving wellhead prices of gas from federal controls.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) called for such action last week at its mdiyear meeting in New Orleans. IPAA rejected President jKennedy's plan, and, unlike TIPRO, refused to endorse FPC's area pricing formula.

Two other government officials are among the Midland speakers. They are Frank B. Ellis, director of the office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, and Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., oil imports administrator.

O'Connor, a former Houston oil operator, will take part in a panel discussion on fuels policy. Also on the panel will be Joseph E. Moody, president of the national coal policy conference in Washington, and Dr. Bruce C. Netshort, a Washington energy research specialist.

STUDENTS SMASH PIANO

DERBY, England (AP) — Students of Derby Technical College set a record Saturday for smashing a piano into pieces small enough to go through a nine-inch hole. They used sledgehammers and took 14 minutes. The previous record, set by two Manchester University students last year, was 32 minutes.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Jackson Parish Baseball Clinic

Baseball is looking forward to probably the biggest day it has ever had in Jonesboro. Except for some possibly minor alterations, plans are now complete for the first annual Jackson Parish Baseball Clinic to be conducted at the Jonesboro-Hodge Athletic Field on June 10.

Ira D. Reeves, chairman of the committee in charge of clinic plans, the past week announced completion of several wees of work in arranging for the event and lining up an impressive array of "professors."

Instructors already secured include Atley Donald, West Monroe, New York Yankees scout; Buddy Blair, Monroe, formerly of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics; Ed Head, Bastrop, ex-Brooklyn Dodger pitcher and Cotton States and Evangeline League manager now president of the La-Ark League; Bob Caster, Monroe, Los Angeles Dodger scout; George Luffey, Monroe, Northeast State baseball coach; Earl Harrist, Simsboro, Houston scout; Walker Cress, Baton Rouge, San Francisco Giants scout; Johnny Fetzer, Shreveport, Boston Red Sox scout; Mel Didier, Opelousas, Milwaukee Braves scout; Buddy Haucken, Beaumont, Tex., Minnesota Twins scout; Clyde Berry, Ruston, American Legion Junior coach; Bill Bagwell, Dubach, Houston scout; and a few others yet to be named.

The clinic, similiar to the Boys Baseball Clinic that was conducted in Monroe during February for about three years before being discontinued a couple of years ago, is certain to have a strong appeal for all young baseball talent of this area.

It is not a tryout camp, and the scouts participating are not making the trip to Jonesboro as a talent hunt. It's a clinic to help boys learn some of the finer points of baseball, and the attending scouts are only too happy to lend their aid in putting some boy on the right track toward a baseball career if that is in the youth's future.

Boys eight through 18 years of age interested in advancing their knowledge of the fundamentals and skills of baseball will be attending two separate sessions.

The eight through 13-year group will have its session the morning of June 10 between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30 o'clock. The 14 - through - 18 class will be conducted in the afternoon from 1 until 3 o'clock.

"The only essential item of equipment that a boy should bring with him is the glove," Reeves said. "Boys may bring uniforms if they have them. The main thing is to come if you want to learn more about baseball."

Coaches or managers of any area boys teams, or parents desiring to bring groups or individuals are invited to contact Reeves for any information. Communications should be addressed to "Ira D. Reeves, 504 North Polk Avenue, Jonesboro, La."

Adult followers of baseball and youth sports will be welcomed to the clinic as spectators.

Lake Bruin Boat Races

The town of St. Joseph and the St. Joseph Rotary Club will be in the boat racing business next Sunday on beautiful Lake Bruin, three miles north of St. Joseph in Tensas parish.

Tom Gilhula, doing some advanced publicity work in behalf of the races, promises a "full afternoon of entertainment" on the racing program.

The races, in cooperation with the Vicksburg Boat Racing Association, will begin at 1 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

The spectators' viewing point will be at the Lake Bruin State Park where complete facilities for family outings, fishing, and picnics are available. Also swimming, water skiing.

Lake Bruin, just off U. S. highway 65 about midway between St. Joseph and Newellton is a Mississippi river lake 12 miles long and about a mile wide. It's considered one of Louisiana's most beautiful recreation spots.

Shooting At Pine Hills

Shotgun enthusiasts take the wraps off their weapons today for the season's first big day of shooting by Pine Hills Gun Club over its trap and skeet ranges at Bancroft Camp on Cheniere Lake.

It's the occasion of the second annual Competitive Trap and Skeet Shoot that begins at 9 o'clock this morning.

Four fine trophies await winners in various divisions of the meet that includes A, B and C class shooting at 50 skeet targets, 50 targets of 16 - yard traps, and 25 targets handicap. Entries are permitted to shoot all or part of the events.

Practice shooting will be allowed for one hour before the official targets begin to fly.

ALLISON STARS

Minnesota Twins Top Angels, 13-6

ST. PAUL—MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Battering Bob Allison, regaining his old batting eye, smashed two home runs and drove in five runs Saturday in Minnesota's 13-6 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

They were the sixth and seventh homers for the hefty Twins' rightfielder and kept him on the heels of teammate Harmon Killebrew, who also clouted his eighth into the left field bleachers.

Also joining in the homer parade for the winners was Dan Dobbek, who got his first round tripper in the eighth inning when Minnseota pushed across six runs.

The winning pitcher was Ed Palmquist, who gained his first decision after joining the Twins this week from the Los Angeles Dodgers. Ryne Duren dropped his second decision. He is winless.

In addition to his homer, Killebrew hit two singles and drove in three runs and Earl Battey connected for three singles.

Los Angeles made a game of it until the eighth inning. They were led by Ken Hunt, who had a pair of singles and run-scoring fly for three RBI.

The Angels used seven pitchers and the Twins three, with both teams knocking out the starters early—Ron Kline of the Angels and Don Lee, making his first start for the Twins.

Minnesota rapped four singles for a 3-0 lead in the first inning and Los Angeles evened it at 3-0 with a quartet of singles in the second inning.

Auburn Is SEC Track Champion

By TEX THOMAS

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn, scoring in every event but the pole vault, won the Southeastern Conference track meet Saturday despite Doug Constant's heroic effort to return the championship to Louisiana State.

LSU had a chance to tie Auburn, but Constant had to settle for second-place in the high jump and Auburn finished the meet with 56 points while LSU collected 55.

Besides clearing 6 feet 6 inches in the high jump, Constant won the 100-and 220-yard dashes, ran one leg on the winning 440-yard and mile relay teams and placed third in the broad jump.

Auburn won the title with only three first-place finishes. Richard Crane set a conference record of 57 feet 6½ inches in the shot put and won the discus with a throw of 170-2.

Crane broke the record in the preliminaries Friday but it did not become final until he had a chance to beat it Saturday which he failed to do.

Jim Dozier posted Auburn's other winning performance in the mile run and came in second in the 880.

Alabama took third place in the SEC meet with 36½ points, while three first-place performances by Ron Ablowich put Georgia Tech in fourth place with 25 points.

Ablowich won the 440yard dash, the 120-yard high hurdles and set an SEC record of 23.1 seconds in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Three SEC records fell during the day. Jess Fatheree and Joe Harris, both of LSU, pole vaulted 14 feet 4½ inches for a first-place tie, beating the 1951 record of 14-2⅞ set by Leroy Boucher of Florida.

Auburn's victory was a dramatic climax to a tribute paid by fellow coaches and Auburn students and alumni to the Tigers' veteran track coach, Wilber Hutsell. Friends of Hutsell presented him a new automobile to commemorate 40 years on the Auburn coaching staff.

Giants Beat Milwaukee By 8-5 Score

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays boomed two home runs Saturday and drove in six runs as San Francisco beat Milwaukee 8-5.

Stu Miller, the Giants third pitcher, didn't give up a hit over the four innings he worked and was credited with the victory, his first.

Both Mays' homers were hit off Brave starter Bob Buhl, the losing pitcher who is now 1-3.

Mays now has eight home runs and 23 runs batted in and six of those four baggers and 14 of the runs driven in have been at the expense of Milwaukee hurlers.

The 29,150 fans saw a record home run output for two-year-old Candlestick Park. Willie McCovey of the Giants belted his sixth with the bases empty in the eighth, and all five of the Braves runs were the result of three homers.

The two-team total of six eclipsed the old mark of four, equalled several times.

Bulldogs Barely Upend Northeast

By JERRY HARKNESS
World Sports Writer

Louisiana Tech, powered by jet-propelled sprint relay teams and depth to spare, knocked off defending champion Northeast State and climaxed a fine year in sports by winning the GSC track and field meet at Brown Stadium last night.

Jimmy Mize's Bulldogs won first in only four events but finished near the top in almost all of them, taking four seconds and three thirds to score 73½ points to 67 2-3 for the Indians.

McNeese State's Cowboys held fast to third place when the dust had cleared, in spite of a desperate effort by Southeastern to climb into the top three. The Pokes scored 58 points, Southeastern 47½, Northwestern State 33 2-3 and USL 17 2-3.

Tech, a team that had stopped Northeast twice before, this season, but were underdogs in last night's meet, threw all their weapons at the Indians including a record-breaking performance in the 880 yard relay, and led from start to finish.

It was a fitting finish to Tech's sports program. The Bulldogs were presented with half the league football championship, the baseball award and golf title.

A packed Brown Stadium crowd watched as seven conference records fell and some fine individual duals fought down to the wire.

Outstanding performers for the night turned out to be Southeastern's wiry sprinter Bob Fanning who won the 100 yard dash in record time of 9.5 and the 220 yard dash with a good clocking of 21.3.

Northeast's durable distance man Buddy Eiland turned in two of the night's best runs in the 880 yard and mile races. Eiland was caught in 1:52.2 in the half mile and 4:11.1 in the mile, both times breaking his old marks of last year.

Randall Walker of Northeast won the 180 yard high hurdles and also finished ahead of the field in the 440 yard dash.

Hardy Hoy Rogers of the host Indians took two field firsts, winning the discus with a throw of 153 ft., 8 in., and the shot put with a heave of 52 ft., 5 inches. The shot mark broke his old record of 51 ft., 5¾ in. set last year.

The score read Louisiana Tech 72, Northeast 62½, McNeese 53, SLC 47½, NSC 33 2-3 and USL 13 2-3 with only the pole vault left on the schedule. The Bulldogs of Tech didn't win the last event to come in but they placed three men in the tie for second place, good enough to claim the GSC crown and unseat conference [illegible] Northeast [illegible] won [illegible]ars

Dodgers Keep On Winning; Top Cubs 7-3

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers ran their winning streak to six games and Chicago's losing streak to eight by defeating the Cubs 7-3 Saturday night.

The Dodgers settled the issue in the first inning when they scored four runs on five singles and a walk. All the runs were charged to Bob Anderson, who was removed after he gave up a walk and three hits without getting a man out.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Jackson Parish Baseball Clinic

Baseball is looking forward to probably the biggest day it has ever had in Jonesboro. Except for some possibly minor alterations, plans are now complete for the first annual Jackson Parish Baseball Clinic to be conducted at the Jonesboro-Hodge Athletic Field on June 10.

Ira D. Reeves, chairman of the committee in charge of clinic plans, the past week announced completion of several wees of work in arranging for the event and lining up an impressive array of "professors."

Instructors already secured include Atley Donald, West Monroe, New York Yankees scout; Buddy Blair, Monroe, formerly of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics; Ed Head, Bastrop, ex-Brooklyn Dodger pitcher and Cotton States and Evangeline League manager now president of the La-Ark League; Bob Caster, Monroe, Los Angeles Dodger scout; George Luffey, Monroe, Northeast State baseball coach; Earl Harrist, Simsboro, Houston scout; Walker Cress, Baton Rouge, San Francisco Giants scout; Johnny Fetzer, Shreveport, Boston Red Sox scout; Mel Didier, Opelousas, Milwaukee Braves scout; Buddy Haucken, Beaumont, Tex., Minnesota Twins scout; Clyde Berry, Ruston, American Legion Junior coach; Bill Bagwell, Dubach, Houston scout; and a few others yet to be named.

The clinic, similiar to the Boys Baseball Clinic that was conducted in Monroe during February for about three years before being discontinued a couple of years ago, is certain to have a strong appeal for all young baseball talent of this area.

It is not a tryout camp, and the scouts participating are not making the trip to Jonesboro as a talent hunt. It's a clinic to help boys learn some of the finer points of baseball, and the attending scouts are only too happy to lend their aid in putting some boy on the right track toward a baseball career if that is in the youth's future.

Boys eight through 18 years of age interested in advancing their knowledge of the fundamentals and skills of baseball will be attending two separate sessions.

The eight through 13-year group will have its session the morning of June 10 between the hours of 9:30 and 11:30 o'clock. The 14 - through - 18 class will be conducted in the afternoon from 1 until 3 o'clock.

"The only essential item of equipment that a boy should bring with him is the glove," Reeves said. "Boys may bring uniforms if they have them. The main thing is to come if you want to learn more about baseball."

Coaches or managers of any area boys teams, or parents desiring to bring groups or individuals are invited to contact Reeves for any information. Communications should be addressed to "Ira D. Reeves, 504 North Polk Avenue, Jonesboro, La."

Adult followers of baseball and youth sports will be welcomed to the clinic as spectators.

Lake Bruin Boat Races

The town of St. Joseph and the St. Joseph Rotary Club will be in the boat racing business next Sunday on beautiful Lake Bruin, three miles north of St. Joseph in Tensas parish.

Tom Gilhula, doing some advanced publicity work in behalf of the races, promises a "full afternoon of entertainment" on the racing program.

The races, in cooperation with the Vicksburg Boat Racing Association, will begin at 1 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

The spectators' viewing point will be at the Lake Bruin State Park where complete facilities for family outings, fishing, and picnics are available. Also swimming, water skiing.

Lake Bruin, just off U. S. highway 65 about midway between St. Joseph and Newellton is a Mississippi river lake 12 miles long and about a mile wide. It's considered one of Louisiana's most beautiful recreation spots.

Shooting At Pine Hills

Shotgun enthusiasts take the wraps off their weapons today for the season's first big day of shooting by Pine Hills Gun Club over its trap and skeet ranges at Bancroft Camp on Cheniere Lake.

It's the occasion of the second annual Competitive Trap and Skeet Shoot that begins at 9 o'clock this morning.

Four fine trophies await winners in various divisions of the meet that includes A, B and C class shooting at 50 skeet targets, 50 targets of 16 - yard traps, and 25 targets handicap. Entries are permitted to shoot all or part of the events.

Practice shooting will be allowed for one hour before the official targets begin to fly.

ALLISON STARS

Minnesota Twins Top Angels, 13-6

ST. PAUL—MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Battering Bob Allison, regaining his old batting eye, smashed two home runs and drove in five runs Saturday in Minnesota's 13-6 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

They were the sixth and seventh homers for the hefty Twins' rightfielder and kept him on the heels of teammate Harmon Killebrew, who also clouted his eighth into the left field bleachers.

Also joining in the homer parade for the winners was Dan Dobbek, who got his first round tripper in the eighth inning when Minnseota pushed across six runs.

The winning pitcher was Ed Palmquist, who gained his first decision after joining the Twins this week from the Los Angeles Dodgers. Ryne Duren dropped his second decision. He is winless.

In addition to his homer, Killebrew hit two singles and drove in three runs and Earl Battey connected for three singles.

Los Angeles made a game of it until the eighth inning. They were led by Ken Hunt, who had a pair of singles and run-scoring fly for three RBI.

The Angels used seven pitchers and the Twins three, with both teams knocking out the starters early—Ron Kline of the Angels and Don Lee, making his first start for the Twins.

Minnesota rapped four singles for a 3-0 lead in the first inning and Los Angeles evened it at 3-0 with a quartet of singles in the second inning.

Auburn Is SEC Track Champion

By TEX THOMAS

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn, scoring in every event but the pole vault, won the Southeastern Conference track meet Saturday despite Doug Constant's heroic effort to return the championship to Louisiana State.

LSU had a chance to tie Auburn, but Constant had to settle for second-place in the high jump and Auburn finished the meet with 56 points while LSU collected 55.

Besides clearing 6 feet 6 inches in the high jump, Constant won the 100-and 220-yard dashes, ran one leg on the winning 440-yard and mile relay teams and placed third in the broad jump.

Auburn won the title with only three first-place finishes. Richard Crane set a conference record of 57 feet 6½ inches in the shot put and won the discus with a throw of 170-2.

Crane broke the record in the preliminaries Friday but it did not become final until he had a chance to beat it Saturday which he failed to do.

Jim Dozier posted Auburn's other winning performance in the mile run and came in second in the 880.

Alabama took third place in the SEC meet with 36½ points, while three first-place performances by Ron Ablowich put Georgia Tech in fourth place with 25 points.

Ablowich won the 440yard dash, the 120-yard high hurdles and set an SEC record of 23.1 seconds in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Three SEC records fell during the day. Jess Fatheree and Joe Harris, both of LSU, pole vaulted 14 feet 4½ inches for a first-place tie, beating the 1951 record of 14-2⅞ set by Leroy Boucher of Florida.

Auburn's victory was a dramatic climax to a tribute paid by fellow coaches and Auburn students and alumni to the Tigers' veteran track coach, Wilber Hutsell. Friends of Hutsell presented him a new automobile to commemorate 40 years on the Auburn coaching staff.

Giants Beat Milwaukee By 8-5 Score

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays boomed two home runs Saturday and drove in six runs as San Francisco beat Milwaukee 8-5.

Stu Miller, the Giants third pitcher, didn't give up a hit over the four innings he worked and was credited with the victory, his first.

Both Mays' homers were hit off Brave starter Bob Buhl, the losing pitcher who is now 1-3.

Mays now has eight home runs and 23 runs batted in and six of those four baggers and 14 of the runs driven in have been at the expense of Milwaukee hurlers.

The 29,150 fans saw a record home run output for two-year-old Candlestick Park. Willie McCovey of the Giants belted his sixth with the bases empty in the eighth, and all five of the Braves runs were the result of three homers.

The two-team total of six eclipsed the old mark of four, equalled several times.

Bulldogs Barely Upend Northeast

By JERRY HARKNESS
World Sports Writer

Louisiana Tech, powered by jet-propelled sprint relay teams and depth to spare, knocked off defending champion Northeast State and climaxed a fine year in sports by winning the GSC track and field meet at Brown Stadium last night.

Jimmy Mize's Bulldogs won first in only four events but finished near the top in almost all of them, taking four seconds and three thirds to score 73½ points to 67 2-3 for the Indians.

McNeese State's Cowboys held fast to third place when the dust had cleared, in spite of a desperate effort by Southeastern to climb into the top three. The Pokes scored 58 points, Southeastern 47½, Northwestern State 33 2-3 and USL 17 2-3.

Tech, a team that had stopped Northeast twice before, this season, but were underdogs in last night's meet, threw all their weapons at the Indians including a record-breaking performance in the 880 yard relay, and led from start to finish.

It was a fitting finish to Tech's sports program. The Bulldogs were presented with half the league football championship, the baseball award and golf title.

A packed Brown Stadium crowd watched as seven conference records fell and some fine individual duals fought down to the wire.

Outstanding performers for the night turned out to be Southeastern's wiry sprinter Bob Fanning who won the 100 yard dash in record time of 9.5 and the 220 yard dash with a good clocking of 21.8.

Northeast's durable distance man Buddy Eiland turned in two of the night's best runs in the 880 yard and mile races. Eiland was caught in 1:52.2 in the half mile and 4:11.1 in the mile, both times breaking his old marks of last year.

Randall Walker of Northeast won the 180 yard high hurdles and also finished ahead of the field in the 440 yard dash.

Hardy Hoy Rogers of the host Indians took two field firsts, winning the discus with a throw of 153 ft., 8 in., and the shot put with a heave of 52 ft., 5 inches. The shot mark broke his old record of 51 ft., 5¾ in. set last year.

The score read Louisiana Tech 72, Northeast 62½, McNeese 53, SLC 47½, NSC 33 2-3 and USL 13 2-3 with only the pole vault left on the schedule. The Bulldogs of Tech didn't win the last event to come in but they placed three men in the tie for second place, good enough to claim the GSC crown and unseat conference [illegible] Northeast [illegible] won [illegible]

Dodgers Keep On Winning; Top Cubs 7-3

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers ran their winning streak to six games and Chicago's losing streak to eight by defeating the Cubs 7-3 Saturday night.

The Dodgers, who hadn't won six in a row since 1959, finished the night 19 percentage points behind the league-leading San Francisco Giants, who defeated Milwaukee earlier in the day.

Dodger outfielder Wally Moon added two more hits to his remarkable Coliseum hitting record, driving in two runs with a single and a double. In 55 at bats here this season, Moon has picked up 27 hits and driven in 18 runs.

The Dodgers settled the issue in the first inning when they scored four runs on five singles and a walk. All the runs were charged to Bob Anderson, who was removed after he gave up a walk and three hits without getting a man out.

Sturdivant One-Hits Old Clubmates 4-0

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tom Sturdivant, put on the expansion draft list by the Boston Red Sox last winter, came back to haunt them Saturday with a one-hitter, as the Washington Senators won, 4-0.

His chance at no-hit fame was ruined in the fifth inning by a leadoff double to the right field corner by Vic Wertz. Sturdivant walked one—Gary Geiger in the first inning.

The Sox were playing without shortstop Pumpsie Green, who is in Georgetown Hospital here recuperating from an emergency appendectomy. He was operated on Saturday morning. He will be out of action two to four weeks. The Senators sent Gene Conley down to his third loss.

League Leading Tigers Dump New York Again 8-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Rocky Colavito, ejected Friday night for chasing into the stands after a spectator, Saturday chased New York outfielders all over Yankee Stadium. The Detroit outfielder smashed two home runs and a pair of singles as the American League - leading Tigers drubbed the Yankees 8-3.

Dick Brown also starred at bat for the Tigers. The 26-year-old catcher drove in three runs with a home run and a single. Brown's four-bagger, his fifth, snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning.

Colavito's homers were his sixth and seventh. The first homer was a solo in the fifth but the second came with two teammates aboard to clinch the Tigers' second straight victory over New York and widen their lead to 1½ games over the Yankee.

Phil Regan, a 24-year-old right-hander, went all the way for Detroit to record his third triumph without a defeat. He permitted only five hits, but two were home runs. Johnny Blanchard walloped his second in the fifth, and Yogi Berra temporarily tied the score at 3-3, with a solo smash, in the sixth.

The homer was the 321st of Yogi's career, 21 of which he has hit as an outfielder, a position he played Saturday.

Bob Turley was the Yankee starter and loser. The big right-hander yielded 10 of the Tigers' 12 hits before he was replaced by Danny McDevitt in the ninth. Colavito's second homer was hit off McDevitt.

Pittsburg Blasts Redleg Nine 13-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Virdon rapped three hits including a solo home run, and walked twice Saturday in leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a free-wheeling 13-5 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

The fleet outfielder lashed his fourth homer in the sixth inning Jay Hook, fourth of five Redleg pitchers. He also had a triple and a single, and scored two other runs.

Clem Labine received credit for his first triumph against no losses. He came on in the fifth after starter Joe Gibbon was struck on the head by a batted ball, and held the Redlegs scoreless.

The Pirates broke open the game in the third, tallying six runs on six hits, a walk, a sacrifice fly and an error.

Cincinnati tried to make a contest of it in the fifth, coming back with four runs to make the score 7-5. But the Pirates bunched three runs each in the sixth and eighth.

Gibbon was taken to a hospital for X-rays. He complained of a headache and his head was slightly swollen.

Orioles Hang Trouncing On Cleveland, 4-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Hector (Skinny) Brown shackled Cleveland with five hits and Jim Gentile raised his league-leading home run total to 11 Saturday as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Indians 4-1.

Brown, a 36-year-old right-hander, walked only two and didn't strike out a man, as he scattered five hits in seven innings for his second victory against a lone defeat.

Hoyt Wilhelm gave Brown relief help by retiring the last six Indians in order.

Gentile's solo shot in the eighth came off reliever Bob Allen. It was his second homer against the Tribe in as many days and raised his league-leading RBI total to 37.

Baltimore got only seven hits including singles by Brooks Robinson and a single and a double by Russ Snyder.

Baltimore got three runs in the fourth. Whitey Herzog walked, Snyder beat out a bunt and Brook Robinson singled to fill the bases. Herzog scored on an infield out, and Snyder came across on Gus Triandos' fly to center. After Ron Hansen beat out an infield hit, Gentile scored when Hawkins covering first, dropped a throw.

Three Cleveland hits were doubles—one each by Jim Piersall, Woodie Held and Tito Francona. Francona the only man to get more than one hit off Brown, also got a single.

Cleveland got its run in the sixth on doubles by Piersall and Francona and Vic Power's infield out, which scored Piersall from third.

Chisox Drop 10-1 Bomb On Kansas City

CHICAGO (AP) — A homer-spiced Chicago White Sox attack, including two bleacher clouts by Minnie Minoso, led lefty Billy Pierce to his first 1961 victory Saturday with a verdict over the Kansas City Athletics 10-1.

Pierce, a 14-game winner last season, had been beaten twice in four previous starts.

Pierce, who had a busy day—also spanking a pair of singles to drive in two runs—was replaced by Frank Baumann at the start of the ninth.

The boisterous 12-hit White Sox attack included the first major league homer by rookie outfielder Floyd Robinson as he led off the first inning against A's starter, Jerry Walker.

Minoso's first homer, his No. 3 of the season, also came in the first off Walker. Minnie's second blast came in the sixth off the third Kansas City pitcher, Bill Kunkel.

Walker's goose was cooked in a five-run White Sox second in which four hits and three Kansas City errors plagued Walker and his relief pitchers Ed Rakow.

The five-run burst included a double error by center fielder Bill Tuttle, who bobbled a single by Nellie Fox and then uncorked a throw which flattened Fox going into second. Stunned, Fox finally was revived and resumed play. However, he left the game at the start of the sixth complaining of a slight headache.

A third A's error in the fifth came as third baseman Andy Carey slipped and dropped the ball after catching Roy Siever's tall pop near the plate.

Ed Sachs Grabs Pole Position For Top Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eddie Sachs Saturday came back from a bad 1960 wreck and won the pole position for the 500-mile auto race for the second straight year.

The feat had been accomplished only twice before since the first Memorial Day speed classic 50 years ago.

The late Ralph DePalma earned the No. 1 starting spot in 1920-21 and the late Rex Mays did it in 1935-36.

The Center Valley, Pa., veteran, hospitalized a month last fall after crashing at Sacremento, Calif., came back with the second-fastest 10-mile qualification in Speedway history. He wheeled his white Dean special through the four laps at an average speed of 147.481 miles an hour.

The day's 22 qualifiers, including world road racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia among six rookies, failed to approach the qualifying record of 149.056 set last year by Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif. Hurtubise, in a different car this year, had the day's third-best speed of 146.306.

Possibly 150,000 speed fans saw a full day of almost accident-free competition on the dangerous old track where veteran Tony Bettenhausen was killed Friday in a practice run. No one was hurt Saturday, although three cars nicked the walls.

Littler Leads In Colonial Golf Tourney

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Gene Littler charged past stumbling Mike Souchak into the lead at 54 holes in the $40,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday.

Littler shot a 3-under-par 67 for a 209 total as Souchak followed a disastrous trail that included a triple bogey and wound up with a 73 for 212.

Arnold Palmer and big Billy Casper also moved ahead of the floundering Souchak and tied for second place with 210, each shooting a 69.

It was the tightest round in Colonial's history with the lead fluctuating through the first nine holes with Palmer's 32 putting him ahead by two strokes. Then Littler, who was on a hot-putting streak, one-putting six holes in a row, moved ahead on the 11th hole.

The Singing Hills, Calif., professional who hasn't yet won a tournament this year, birdied 10 and 11. Palmer bogeyed 12 when he was in a trap and Littler never had any trouble staying ahead the rest of the way.

Casper at this point appeared to be shooting himself out of it. He bogeyed 13 and double bogeyed 14 and Littler was three strokes to the good.

But Littler bogeyed 14 when he was in a trap and bogeyed 16 where he missed a short putt and he was only one stroke over Palmer. Casper moved back into contention with a birdie on 17.

Sturdivant One-Hits Old Clubmates 4-0

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tom Sturdivant, put on the expansion draft list by the Boston Red Sox last winter, came back to haunt them Saturday with a one-hitter, as the Washington Senators won, 4-0.

His chance at no-hit fame was ruined in the fifth inning by a leadoff double to the right field corner by Vic Wertz. Sturdivant walked one—Gary Geiger in the first inning.

The Sox were playing without shortstop Pumpsie Green, who is in Georgetown Hospital here recuperating from an emergency appendectomy. He was operated on Saturday morning. He will be out of action two to four weeks. The Senators sent Gene Conley down to his third less.

The rush to Europe will be on in another two months, but until then it is "getting in ahead of the crowd season."

With most of Europe expecting a stay - abreast - of - last- year season — considering the record-breaker 1960 was — the heartland of the continent, the Alpine region, is looking to a 9 per cent increase in tourist business this year.

The expectation was stated by Rudolf Mattesich, chairm[illegible] the Alpine [illegible] in [illegible]

League Leading Tigers Dump New York Again 8-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Rocky Colavito, ejected Friday night for chasing into the stands after a spectator, Saturday chased New York outfielders all over Yankee Stadium. The Detroit outfielder smashed two home runs and a pair of singles as the American League - leading Tigers drubbed the Yankees 8-3.

Dick Brown also starred at bat for the Tigers. The 26-year-old catcher drove in three runs with a home run and a single. Brown's four-bagger, his fifth, snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning.

Colavito's homers were his sixth and seventh. The first homer was a solo in the fifth but the second came with two teammates aboard to clinch the Tigers' second straight victory over New York and widen their lead to 4½ games over the Yankee.

Phil Regan, a 24-year-old right-hander, went all the way for Detroit to record his third triumph without a defeat. He permitted only five hits, but two were home runs. Johnny Blanchard walloped his second in the fifth, and Yogi Berra temporarily tied the score, at 3-3, with a solo smash, in the sixth.

The homer was the 321st of Yogi's career, 21 of which he has hit as an outfielder, a position he played Saturday.

Bob Turley was the Yankee starter and loser. The big right-hander yielded 10 of the Tigers' 12 hits before he was replaced by Danny McDevitt in the ninth. Colavito's second homer was hit off McDevitt.

Chisox Drop 10-1 Bomb On Kansas City

CHICAGO (AP) — A homer-spiced Chicago White Sox attack, including two bleacher clouts by Minnie Minoso, led lefty Billy Pierce to his first 1961 victory Saturday with a verdict over the Kansas City Athletics 10-1.

Pierce, a 14-game winner last season, had been beaten twice in four previous starts.

Pierce, who had a busy day—also spanking a pair of singles to drive in two runs — was replaced by Frank Baumann at the start of the ninth.

The boisterous 12-hit White Sox attack included the first major league homer by rookie outfielder Floyd Robinson as he led off the first inning against A's starter, Jerry Walker.

Minoso's first homer, his No. 3 of the season, also came in the first off Walker. Minnie's second blast came in the sixth off the third Kansas City pitcher, Bill Kunkel.

Walker's goose was cooked in a five-run White Sox second in which four hits and three Kansas City errors plagued Walker and his relief pitchers Ed Rakow.

The five-run burst included a double error by center fielder Bill Tuttle, who bobbled a single by Nellie Fox and then uncorked a throw which flattened Fox going into second. Stunned, Fox finally was revived and resumed play. However, he left the game at the start of the sixth complaining of a slight headache.

A third A's error in the fifth came as third baseman Andy Carey slipped and dropped the ball after catching Roy Siever's tall pop near the plate.

Pittsburg Blasts Redleg Nine 13-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Virdon rapped three hits including a solo home run, and walked twice Saturday in leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a free-wheeling 13-5 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

The fleet outfielder lashed his fourth homer in the sixth inning Jay Hook, fourth of five Redleg pitchers. He also had a triple and a single, and scored two other runs.

Clem Labine received credit for his first triumph against no losses. He came on in the fifth after starter Joe Gibbon was struck on the head by a batted ball, and held the Redlegs scoreless.

The Pirates broke open the game in the third, tallying six runs on six hits, a walk, a sacrifice fly and an error.

Cincinnati tried to make a contest of it in the fifth, coming back with four runs to make the score 7-5. But the Pirates bunched three runs each in the sixth and eighth.

Gibbon was taken to a hospital for X-rays. He complained of a headache and his head was slightly swollen.

Orioles Hang Trouncing On Cleveland, 4-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Hector (Skinny) Brown shackled Cleveland with five hits and Jim Gentile raised his league-leading home run total to 11 Saturday as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Indians 4-1.

Brown, a 36-year-old right-hander, walked only two and didn't strike out a man, as he scattered five hits in seven innings for his second victory against a lone defeat.

Hoyt Wilhelm gave Brown relief help by retiring the last six Indians in order.

Gentile's solo shot in the eighth came off reliever Bob Allen. It was his second homer against the Tribe in as many days and raised his league-leading RBI total to 37.

Baltimore got only seven hits including singles by Brooks Robinson and a single and a double by Russ Snyder.

Baltimore got three runs in the fourth. Whitey Herzog walked, Snyder beat out a bunt and Brook Robinson singled to fill the bases. Herzog scored on an infield out, and Snyder came across on Gus Triandos' fly to center. After Ron Hansen beat out an infield hit, Gentile scored when Hawkins covering first, dropped a throw.

Three Cleveland hits were doubles—one each by Jim Piersall, Woodie Held and Tito Francona. Francona the only man to get more than one hit off Brown, also got a single.

Cleveland got its run in the sixth on doubles by Piersall and Francona and Vic Power's infield out, which scored Piersall from third.

Ed Sachs Grabs Pole Position For Top Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eddie Sachs Saturday came back from a bad 1960 wreck and won the pole position for the 500-mile auto race for the second straight year.

The feat had been accomplished only twice before since the first Memorial Day speed classic 50 years ago.

The late Ralph DePalma earned the No. 1 starting spot in 1920-21 and the late Rex Mays did it in 1935-36.

The Center Valley, Pa., veteran, hospitalized a month last fall after crashing at Sacramento, Calif., came back with the second-fastest 10-mile qualification in Speedway history. He wheeled his white Dean special through the four laps at an average speed of 147.481 miles an hour.

The day's 22 qualifiers, including world road racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia among six rookies, failed to approach the qualifying record of 149.056 set last year by Jim Hurtubise of Lennox, Calif. Hurtubise, in a different car this year, had the day's third-best speed of 146.306.

Possibly 150,000 speed fans saw a full day of almost accident-free competition on the dangerous old track where veteran Tony Bettenhausen was killed Friday in a practice run. No one was hurt Saturday, although three cars nicked the walls.

Six-Man Tag Team Match At Roll-Arena

Tony Neopolitan and Prince Omar, a pair of villians who won over Jim Quinn and Marco Polo at Roll-Arena last week, have added Gene Bowman to their side for a six-man tag team main event tomorrow night at the Arena.

The trio will face Quinn and his two buddies, Rod Rivera and Frankie Kovacs in the spotlight battle. Quinn and Rivera are well known to local fans and Kovacs makes his popular return to the Twin Cities.

The six - man tag team affair will be a one-hour, two falls to win match.

Two 15-minute matches will be held. In the first Frankie Kovacs, a favorite of the fans, will meet Tony Neopolitan, who made a name for himself in the Twin Cities under the name of the Black Panther. One fall will win the match.

In the second 15-minute, one-fall match Jim Quinn will battle Prince Omar. Omar pinned Quinn last week to win a tag - team match for his side in the main event at the Arena, and Jim will be out for revenge tomorrow night.

Littler Leads In Colonial Golf Tourney

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Gene Littler charged past stumbling Mike Souchak into the lead at 54 holes in the $40,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday.

Littler shot a 3-under-par 67 for a 209 total as Souchak followed a disastrous trail that included a triple bogey and wound up with a 73 for 212.

Arnold Palmer and big Billy Casper also moved ahead of the floundering Souchak and tied for second place with 210, each shooting a 69.

It was the tightest round in Colonial's history with the lead fluctuating through the first nine holes with Palmer's 32 putting him ahead by two strokes. Then Littler, who was on a hot-putting streak, one-putting six holes in a row, moved ahead on the 11th hole

The Singing Hills, Calif., professional who hasn't yet won a tournament this year, birdied 10 and 11. Palmer bogeyed 12 when he was in a trap and Littler never had any trouble staying ahead the rest of the way.

Casper at this point appeared to be shooting himself out of it. He bogeyed 13 and double bogeyed 14 and Littler was three strokes to the good.

But Littler bogeyed 14 when he was in a trap and bogeyed 16 where he missed a short putt and he was only one stroke over Palmer. Casper mover back into contention with a birdie on 17.

TAYLOR, DYKES NAMED

Confederates Put 2 On 1-AAA Nine

By JIM DAWSON
Shreveport Times
(Written For the Louisiana Sportswriters Assn.)

District champion Fair Park landed five berths on the 1-AAA all-star team selected by the league's seven coaches.

Voting on the team were coaches Milford Andrews of Fair Park, Bobby Ray McHalffey of Bossier, Nicky Lester of Byrd, Jerry Adams of Woodlawn, Bob Carter of Ouachita, Dan McClure of West Monroe, and Bob Brasher of Bastrop.

The usual 12-man roster was boosted to 14 because of a three-way tie at a pitching position.

Others named to the team were pitchers Floyd Murray of Bastrop, Charles Taylor of West Monroe, and Ray Lee of Bossier, first baseman Charles McGee of Bastrop, second baseman Billy Sneed of Fair Park, third baseman Charley Dyks of West Monroe, utility infielder David Worthington of Fair Park, outfieldiers Alton Thomas and Bill McCullar of Byrd, and Larry Tulley of Fair Park and utility outfielder Eddie Cason of Bossier.

Murray and McGee made the honorable mention list last season.

Runner-up Bossier nailed down three positions on the all-star team, while Bastrop, Byrd, and West Monroe had two each. Ouachita and Woodlawn failed to land a first team vote.

TAYLOR, DYKES NAMED

Confederates Put 2 On 1-AAA Nine

By JIM DAWSON
Shreveport Times
(Written For the Louisiana Sportswriters Assn.)

District champion Fair Park landed five berths on the 1-AAA all-star team selected by the league's seven coaches.

Voting on the team were coaches Milford Andrews of Fair Park, Bobby Ray McHalffey of Bossier, Nicky Lester of Byrd, Jerry Adams of Woodlawn, Bob Carter of Ouachita, Dan McClure of West Monroe, and Bob Brasher of Bastrop.

The usual 12-man roster was boosted to 14 because of a three-way tie at a pitching position.

Others named to the team were pitchers Floyd Murray of Bastrop, Charles Taylor of West Monroe, and Ray Lee of Bossier, first baseman Charles McGee of Bastrop, second baseman Billy Sneed of Fair Park, third baseman Charley Dyks of West Monroe, utility infielder David Worthington of Fair Park, outfieldiers Alton Thomas and Bill McCullar of Byrd, and Larry Tulley of Fair Park and utility outfielder Eddie Cason of Bossier.

Murray and McGee made the honorable mention list last season.

Runner-up Bossier nailed down three positions on the all-star team, while Bastrop, Byrd, and West Monroe had two each. Ouachita and Woodlawn failed to land a first team vote.

Suicide Prevention Center Saves Lives

CHICAGO (AP)—You're a professional suicide stopper. Your telephone rings and an excited caller says, "I've made up my mind. I've got a razor and I'm going to slash my wrists."

What do you do?

First, you maintain telephone contact, one way or another. If that person hangs up, its probably all over.

Then you try to get enough information to size up the emergency.

If the caller is a woman and fairly youngish, your chances of saving a life are better than if it had been a middle aged man. Men generally are greater suicide risks.

You know you have one ace up your sleeve. If the caller desperately wanted to commit suicide, no telephone call would have made.

The call actually is an appeal for help, so you offer it—fast.

In a calm and hopeful tone, you tell the caller that things rarely are as bad as they seem that there should be one more real effort to find a solution before calling it quits.

Your best chance of stopping a suicide is to motivate the caller to take some other form of action—to talk over the problems first with you.

Then, as a safeguard, you remind the caller the telephone connection might be broken off by accident. You try to get his telephone number and name. Next, the names of relatives or friends, just in case persuasion doesn't work.

The operation of the Suicide Prevention Center of Los Angeles was described at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association Friday by Marvin N. Kaphan, a psychiatric social worker, and Dr. Robert E. Litman, psychiatrist-director. The center was established in 1958 as an experiment with the support of a five-year grant from the U. S. Public Health Service.

The center has become widely known in three years and receives a fairly large number of calls for help, from persons threatening suicide, and from anxious relatives of persons acting suspiciously.

The calls are taken routinely by a social worker who can consult—if there is time—with a psychiatrist in the center.

No caller committed suicide on the spot, but one man and one woman did later. On the original call, 58 per cent of the 48 males involved were evaluated as serious risks, but only 33 per cent of the 52 women callers fell into that class.

This has been a great week for clothes-watchers. Milady Monroe was out in her finest at several gala affairs. Last Friday afternoon at the annual Junior Charity League Silver Tea, gaily dressed ladies called in such numbers that your reporter became quite dizzy with trying to remember color styles.

The tea itself was an elegant affair at the R. W. DICKENHORST home. Flowers, everywhere in evidence, reflected the lovely decor of the house. And the guests DRESSED UP for the lovely party. MILDRED LANCE was the essence of chic in a pink silk suit and a hat that matched exactly. ... With a beige silk suit, DONNA LEWIS wore an orange "Jacquelyn bubble" on the back of her head. ... A green [illegible] topped MABEL BAILIFF's green silk dress. With this, she wore one of the new [illegible] hats of beige straw wreathed with green cherries.

With her new [illegible] green dress, TEDDEL DIXON sported a mint green and beige hat of plaited grass straw. ... Black accessories were worn by SALLY MARCHMAN with a black silk sheath with cafe au lait [illegible]. ... VELMA WILLEY chose rough - textured linen in an oatmeal shade, with which she wore a green straw cartwheel.

With all white, PAT LARY wore an orange hat and orange gloves. ... Blue, green, and lavender were the [illegible] shades of JEAN WALLACE's plaid organza [illegible].

Saturday night, the JACK MASURS entertained with open house ... their home on [illegible] Drive. Dot wore for her party an after - five dress of cafe au lait silk printed with black polka dots. It was styled with a tippled tunic over a sheath skirt.

Among the guests at this party we noted JANICE STRAUSS in reembroidered lace with chiffon skirt, the color of rich cream. ... JULIA KERN SOLOMON's black silk was cut high in front, down to HERE in back. The skirt was of white chiffon with black polka dots. ... White lace and [illegible] with pearls formed the bodice of MILDRED VANDERPOOL's beige silk. ... LOUISE KLAM accented the interesting neckline of her black silk with a large rhinestone clip. ... Blue embroidery formed the cummerbund of JANE SHERROUSE's white silk, and [illegible] the side pocket at the hemline.

There was some really delicious cooking going on over the [illegible] last week. MARIE LOUISE SNELLINGS, one of our [illegible] cooks, [illegible] the luncheon she served in honor of JAN ALCOCK. Rounding out the menu were [illegible], artichokes stuffed with shrimp salad, tomato [illegible] biscuits, and tarts filled with homemade mincemeat for dessert.

Meanwhile over at BETZA BROWN's, there was in progress one of the most elaborate covered - dish luncheons ever held hereabouts. A group of some thirty ladies, members of the [illegible] exercise class, have become so trim and svelte that they felt justified in indulging in some wild feasting. Each came bearing a specialty of her house.

The party was held by the swimming pool, and guests swam to whet their appetites. Space prevents the listing of thirty cooks and the entire menu, but included were fried chickens and ham loaf, BETH McGOUGH's shrimp and asparagus casserole; baked beans and green beans with mushrooms, a large assortment of salads including SARA RHYMES congealed peach, and EZELL GENTRY's raspberry. ... MARGARET FAULK brought homemade bread with mayhaw jelly and home - churned butter. ... Desserts were enough to make strong men weak. HELEN CAMPBELL's chocolate layer cake, fudge and assorted pies; HELEN WALLACE's German chocolate cake. Homemade ice creams included WAVA FRAZER's boiled custard and JEAN HAMILTON's fresh peach.

This coming Friday Town and Country garden club will have their first competitive flower show carrying out the theme "A Study of Flowers in Scenic Monroe from Past to Present." The event will be open to the public from noon until three in the Louis Locke room of Ouachita Parish public library.

Wednesday afternoon SANCI MADISON, LORETTA RIVERS, and DORIS STEPHENS were hostesses at a dessert bridge at Bayou DeSiard country club. It was also a big week for birthdays hereabouts. Last Saturday, EUGENE MONTGOMERY and MARK ANDERSON celebrated their joint fifth birthday with an outdoor party at Grecian Bend plantation. Sixteen little boys enjoyed a day of horseback riding and hayrides. Hotdogs with potato chips, bottled drinks, and birthday cake comprised the meal served.

Baseball was the theme for RICKY CLAY's eighth birthday party, at home Thursday. Sixteen little friends gathered for the game. "Daddy BOB pitched." Ice cream, birthday cake, and lemonade were refreshments, and bags of marbles favors.

Another eight-year-old, CINDY EASTERLING was honored at a skating party Thursday afternoon. Stop - the - Music winners were JERELYN RYAN and RICKY CORERO. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to about fifty youngsters.

Cindy's cousin, BARBIE EASTERLING, was also eight, and also had a skating party, on Saturday. LARRY JONES won Stop - the - Music. Races were held, with STEVE PEARCE winning for the boys, NELL KELLY for the girls. Thirty-six children attended.

A skating party marked SADIE HADDADs tenth birthday Thursday. Prizes were awarded to best skaters, PAULA HADDADs and PAT HASSION. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to forty children.

In lieu of a poem, Kay Nelson reminisces about "Mothers Days I Have Known:

1960: Second telephone
"It was Dad's idea. He's going to help on the bill."

Burlap Makes Fashion News

Every so often the customers pick up the fashion ball and run away with it. Burlap is a present example. Starting in the little Greenwich Village shops, where they design their own things, and go in for the unusual, burlap has proved such a success that it has gone like wildfire through the uptown New York stores, and is now spreading over the country.

There are burlap coats, dresses, skirts, little suits and shorts. Refined, dyed in hot colors, and lined to remove the scratchiness, burlap's textured open weave seems right in line with the current fashion emphasis on fabric interest.

Burlap lends itself to present - day simple silhouettes such as boxy jackets, straight - line overblouses and flared coats. It takes heavy fringe well, and fringe is big in trimmings. Oversize buttons, another trim craze, look great on burlap.

Just about getting started for spring, burlap ought to be a runaway sensation for fall, particularly as it is reasonably priced.

Cornbread Mix

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sprinkle 2 teaspoons of sesame seeds over the batter for cornbread. Bake according to package - mix directions and serve with crabmeat salad.

SUNDAY, JUNE 11 is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Bettie Mae Wailes and Richard Young Waldrop, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wailes of Ferriday. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Waldrop of Natchez, Mississippi. The ceremony will be performed at 3 p.m. in Sevier Memorial Methodist church at Ferriday, in the presence of the immediate families.

MISS KATIE ARRANT, daughter of L. V. Arrant of Monroe, will become the bride of Roy Glynn Sivils of Benton, Arkansas on Saturday, June 17. Mr. Sivils is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sivils of Wilmont, Ark. The ceremony will take place in Monroe, where the couple plans to establish a home, while Mr. Sivils is attending a business college. Miss Arrant was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school.

Luncheon Meats

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Pre - cured luncheon meats can be frozen for an indefinite time and they are safer to eat than when stored for a short thime at refrigerator temperatures above freezing, researchers at Kansas State University report.

William A. Miller, associate professor of bacteriology, said his research shows that even cold-loving bacteria will not multiply in frozen food.

In his investigation of the bacteria, Miller also found that they will not grow well at body temperatures. But at refrigerator temperatures above freezing, they multiply rapidly and eventually cause the meat to spoil.

Fruit Juice

NEW YORK (UPI) — Use up leftover fruit juices, such as orange, grapefruit and - or pineapple by adding fresh strawberries and sherbert. To serve 4, combine 1½ cups of fruit juices with ¾ cup of fresh strawberries. Divide into 4 glasses and top each with lemon or orange sherbet.

Wedding Day Formal Affair

NEW YORK (UPI) — Who said the American way of life is strictly toward informality? Turns out that brides at least are getting more formal.

So reports the Bridal Fashion Council, an organization of manufacturers of bridal fashions, retailers and textile people. The council said that of the 1.7 million U.S. brides in 1959, 49 per cent will purchase formal gowns for their big day. This represents an increase of three per cent over the number of formal weddings fives years ago.

Knee Pants

Knee length pants will be giving tapered pants the proverbial run for their money this spring and summer, according to fashion experts. The newcomers, known as Jamaica length shorts, come in bold floral prints, diagonal stripes and jacquards. Some firms are making them with playshoes to match.

Silver-Haired Females Over 40 In Ample Supply

NEW YORK (UPI) — What this nation has in ample supply is silver-haired and over 40 females itching to be models.

The ex-cover girl who now runs a charm school in New York told about the need for older models in a recent interview.

Most of the women who replied are around 50 years of age. Most also have friends who claim they don't look a day over 20.

Included in the avalanche of letters from practically every American state and cities in Canada was one from an 88 year woman, and even a letter from a round, but not fat, male with gray hair.

MRS. STANLEY ELMER SMITH

Shirley Nobles Becomes Bride Of S. E. Smith

In a double ring ceremony performed Saturday, May 6 at 2 p.m. Miss Shirley Marie Nobles became the bride of Stanley Elmer Smith. The vows were exchanged in the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Nobles, Monroe, Rt. 2. Mr. Smith is the son of Mrs. Stanley H. Smith and the late Mr. Smith of Grayson.

Rev. Bob Nobles, of Mangham, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony before an arch of green foliage, entwined with roses. Similar bouquets were used elsewhere about the living room.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The brides table, covered with a pink cloth, held a central arrangement of pink roses. The three - tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, and pink punch were served from opposite ends of the table.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida, the bride was wearing a black and white checked suit with white accessories and a white orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Mangham high school and is presently employed in Monroe. Mr. Smith, a graduate of Grayson high school, is employed by the highway department.

Upon their return the couple will be at home in Monroe.

First Lady

The "Jacqueline Kennedy look" is even catching on with toddlers. Overblouses, which button down the back, are becoming popular with the pre - kindergarten group. The look is the easy, uncluttered one, worn often by the First Lady.

Soup Mix

NEW YORK (UPI) — High vacuum processing and the freeze-dry process have produced a new tomato flavor dry soup mix with freshly - made taste. The processing retains more flavor, color and vitamin C content than previous methods. The mix can be reconstituted as puree or cream soup, sauce, or used in dry form as a cooking ingredient in dips, dumplings, stews, casseroles and other dishes calling for tomato flavor. A box of 2 foil envelopes yields 6 measuring cups of soup.

Girl Scout News

Last Saturday saw two playdays in full swing, one at Pine Wood, one at Woodland Acres, Bastrops' day camp site. The latter had not been used since last summer, so the girls spent the morning improving the site. Work like this is part of the fun for Scouts.

One patrol can claim an accomplishment that no other can, as far as we know. They chose a tall, straight ,pine growing where it didn't have a chance to develop, and cut it down, observing safety precautions while using the axe. They stripped off the limbs, lashed a pulley to the top, and attached a rope with clasps to hold the flag. With four guy ropes fastened to tent pegs, the flag pole centered the open space. The proud patrol then raised the flag ceremoniously, with the rest of the girls standing at attention.

At the close of the day each girl in the circle told what she had learned that day and the flag pole rated first. Others mentioned were recognition of poisoning, folding the flag, scrubbing the latrine, chopping ice with a screwdriver when an ice pick couldn't be found.

Several troops of the Southside neighborhood held a playday at Pine Wood Saturday, with Troop 35 spending the night. Mrs. Harold Fike, leader, says the girls tried hole cooking for the first time, with great success. They put meat and vegetables for a stew into a dutch oven, wired the lid on, and lowered it into a hole half filled with hot coals. They shoveled coals over the pot, then filled the hole with dirt. When noontime came, the hungry campers dug up the container and enjoyed a delicious stew.

Brownie troop 103, Mrs. Quitman Hudnall. leader, also had a cookout at camp, making campfire stew, or "Brownie stew," as the girls sometimes call it, and pronouncing it delicious.

Next week we'll have details of Friday's court-of-awards.

Registrations for swimming, cooking, and day camping should come in soon. Quotas for sewing and pottery have already been filled. These are busy days for everyone, but parents need to give thought to daughter's summer plans, or she'll be left out.

Wedding Day Formal Affair

NEW YORK (UPI) — Who said the American way of life is strictly toward informality? Turns out that brides at least are getting more formal.

So reports the Bridal Fashion Council, an organization of manufacturers of bridal fashions, retailers and textile people. The council said that of the 1.7 million U.S. brides in 1959, 49 per cent will purchase formal gowns for their big day. This represents an increase of three per cent over the number of formal weddings fives years ago.

A baby can't call his layette his own any more.

It was bad enough with mother using his baby oil, lotion and shampoo and ulcer-ridden father eating his food. Now light-fingered adults — both men and women — are walking off with his cotton swabs.

A party-giving resident of Beverly Hills, Calif., uses them to clean the hollow stems in champagne glasses.

Soldiers use them to clean the gun sights on rifles.

Trout fishermen lubricate reels.

Snappy dressers use cotton swabs to make neat demarcations between the brown and white of their two-tone shoes.

Hot rodders lubricate small gears.

And cotton swabs may spell technological unemployment for bees. Amateur gardeners are using them to cross-pollinate flowers.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Is it possible to put a lapped slide fastener at the center back of a dress the way they are used on the sdie seam?

Mrs. A.B.V.

Dear Mrs. A.B.V.:

Most dresses should have a lapped slide fastener closing so you won't be able to see the teeth of the fastener. The fastener is not an attractive detail of your garment and should be concealed wherever possible.

If the fastener gaps slightly at the waistline, sew a small hook and eye at the waistline of your dress and it will lay flat.

STAY-STITCH

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"You mentioned in one of your columns that 'stay-stitching should always be done with the grain.' Since I am only a beginner, I don't know how to tell the direction of the grain.

Alice M.

Dear Alice:

Stay-stitching is a row of machine stitching that is put in exactly ½" from the cut edge of your fabric with the regular length stitch. The direction is indicated with arrows on the sketch below. Only the sections illustrated must be stay - stitched.

NSERT MAT INSERT

DECORATIVE STITCHES

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"The machine stitching that appears about 1" from the finished edge of jackets and collars looks like it is done with a heavy thread. Do you use embroidery floss?"

Mrs. M.E.K.

Dear Mrs. M.E..K:

This decorative top stitching is usually done with silk Buttonhole-twist in a matching color to your fabric. You will also find that it is usually done with a very large machine stitch, sometimes there are two rows fairly close together.

Dear Sewing Fans:

Now that we are all making summer clothes for ourselves and our children, remember that as a rule, they must be washable. A great deal of rick-rack and braid trim is being used for detail this year. If you are not careful with the way you apply it, it will pull your garment out of shape after it is laundered.

Do not pull this type trim as you sew it on, but rather, ease it a little as you stitch. Also, wet the rick-rack and braid trim in hot water and allow to dry. This can be done nicely without taking it off the cardboard it is wrapped around. May I also suggest doing the same with hem tape to be used on clothes that will be washed instead of dry-cleaned.

This is YOUR column, we need YOUR questions. Write to Eunice Farmer, in care of Sew Simple, this newspaper.

If sleeves, give you trouble, you'll want a copy of Eunice Farmers 10-cent leaflet, "All About Sleeves." Obtain it by sending 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

Silver-Haired Females Over 40 In Ample Supply

NEW YORK (UPI) — What this nation has in ample supply is silver-haired and over 40 females itching to be models.

The ex-cover girl who now runs a charm school in New York told about the need for older models in a recent interview.

Most of the women who replied are around 50 years of age. Most also have friends who claim they don't look a day over 20.

Included in the avalanche of letters from practically every American state and cities in Canada was one from an 88 year woman, and even a letter from a round, but not fat, male with gray hair.

MRS. STANLEY ELMER SMITH

Shirley Nobles Becomes Bride Of S. E. Smith

In a double ring ceremony performed Saturday, May 6 at 2 p.m. Miss Shirley Marie Nobles became the bride of Stanley Elmer Smith. The vows were exchanged in the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Nobles, Monroe, Rt. 2. Mr. Smith is the son of Mrs. Stanley H. Smith and the late Mr. Smith of Grayson.

Rev. Bob Nobles, of Mangham, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony before an arch of green foliage, entwined with roses. Similar bouquets were used elsewhere about the living room.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The brides table, covered with a pink cloth, held a central arrangement of pink roses. The three - tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and groom, and pink punch were served from opposite ends of the table.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida, the bride was wearing a black and white checked suit with white accessories and a white orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Mangham high school and is presently employed in Monroe. Mr. Smith, a graduate of Grayson high school, is employed by the highway department.

Upon their return the couple will be at home in Monroe.

First Lady

The "Jacqueline Kennedy look" is even catching on with toddlers. Overblouses, which button down the back, are becoming popular with the pre - kindergarten group. The look is the easy, uncluttered one, worn often by the First Lady.

Soup Mix

NEW YORK (UPI) — High vacuum processing and the freeze-dry process have produced a new tomato flavor dry soup mix with freshly - made taste. The processing retains more flavor, color and vitamin C content than previous methods. The mix can be reconstituted as puree or cream soup, sauce, or used in dry form as a cooking ingredient in dips, dumplings, stews, casseroles and other dishes calling for tomato flavor. A box of 2 foil envelopes yields 6 measuring cups of soup.

Girl Scout News

Last Saturday saw two play-days in full swing, one at Pine Wood, one at Woodland Acres, Bastrops' day camp site. The latter had not been used since last summer, so the girls spent the morning improving the site. Work like this is part of the fun for Scouts.

One patrol can claim an accomplishment that no other can, as far as we know. They chose a tall, straight pine growing where it didn't have a chance to develop, and cut it down, observing safety precautions while using the axe. They stripped off the limbs, lashed a pulley to the top, and attached a rope with clasps to hold the flag. With four guy ropes fastened to tent pegs, the flag pole centered the open space. The proud patrol then raised the flag ceremoniously, with the rest of the girls standing at attention.

At the close of the day each girl in the circle told what she had learned that day and the flag pole rated first. Others mentioned were recognition of poisoning, folding the flag, scrubbing the latrine, chopping ice with a screwdriver when an ice pick couldn't be found.

Several troops of the Southside neighborhood held a playday at Pine Wood Saturday, with Troop 35 spending the night. Mrs. Harold Fike, leader, says the girls tried hole cooking for the first time, with great success. They put meat and vegetables for a stew into a dutch oven, wired the lid on, and lowered it into a hole half filled with hot coals. They shoveled coals over the pot, then filled the hole with dirt. When noontime came, the hungry campers dug up the container and enjoyed a delicious stew.

Brownie troop 103, Mrs. Quitman Hudnall, leader, also had a cookout at camp, making campfire stew, or "Brownie stew," as the girls sometimes call it, and pronouncing it delicious.

Next week we'll have details of Friday's court-of-awards.

Registrations for swimming, cooking, and day camping should come in soon. Quotas for sewing and pottery have already been filled. These are busy days for everyone, but parents need to give thought to daughter's summer plans, or she'll be left out.

MISS MARY HARRIET KINCAID

A graduate of Winnsboro high school, the bride-elect is at present a student at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston, where she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Cotton Sails Into Summer

Sailcloth, duck and cotton knit are the fabric favorites, and these are frequently detailed with brass button closings and middy collars to emphasize the sea - going look. Colors are predominantly bright shades of red and blue combined with white.

Sportswear adopts this theme with particular enthusiasm, providing coordinates such as cotton duck "cabin boy's pants which hit just below the knee; and loose-fitting middy - collared jackets in denim.

Baby Can't Keep Layette

AP Newsfeatures

A baby can't call his layette his own any more.

It was bad enough with mother using his baby oil, lotion and shampoo and ulcer-ridden father eating his food. Now light-fingered adults — both men and women — are walking off with his cotton swabs.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Is it possible to put a lapped slide fastener at the center back of a dress the way they are used on the side seam?

Mrs. A.B.V.

Dear Mrs. A.B.V.:

Most dresses should have a lapped slide fastener closing so you won't be able to see the teeth of the fastener. The fastener is not an attractive detail of your garment and should be concealed wherever possible.

If the fastener gaps slightly at the waistline, sew a small hook and eye at the waistline of your dress and it will lay flat.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"You mentioned in one of your columns that 'stay-stitching should always be done with the grain.' Since I am only a beginner, I don't know how to tell the direction of the grain.

Alice M.

Dear Alice:

Stay-stitching is a row of machine stitching that is put in exactly 1/2" from the cut edge of your fabric with the regular length stitch. The direction is indicated with arrows on the sketch below. Only the portions illustrated must be stay-stitched.

INSERT MAT INSERT

DECORATIVE STITCHES

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"The machine stitching that appears about 1" from the finished edge of jackets and collars looks like it is done with a heavy thread. Do you use embroidery floss?"

Mrs. M.E.K.

Dear Mrs. M.E.K.:

This decorative top stitching is usually done with silk Buttonhole twist in a matching color to your fabric. You will also find that it is usually done with a very large machine stitch, sometimes there are two rows fairly close together.

Dear Sewing Fans:

Now that we are all making summer clothes for ourselves and our children, remember that as a rule, they must be washable. A great deal of rick-rack and braid trim is being used for detail this year. If you are not careful with the way you apply it, it will pull your garment out of shape after it is laundered.

Do not pull this type trim as you sew it on, but rather, ease it a little as you stitch. Also, wet the rick-rack and braid trim in hot water and allow to dry. This can be done nicely without taking it off the cardboard it is wrapped around. May I also suggest doing the same with hem tape to be used on clothes that will be washed instead of dry-cleaned.

This is YOUR column, we need YOUR questions. Write to Eunice Farmer, in care of Sew Simple, this newspaper.

If sleeves give you trouble, you'll want a copy of Eunice Farmers 10-cent leaflet, "All About Sleeves." Obtain it by sending 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

Author Airs Philosophy About Love

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The great French writer Colette devoted most of her life to writing about l'amour.

Her daughter hasn't set down on paper any of her thoughts on the subject. But, in an interview, she said she has a philosophy about love — "It is that you can't be objective about the subject until you're 100 and detached from it."

Colette de Jouvenal is the only child of the author of "Gigi" and "Cheri" and numerous other works. She is in the United States on business. It is her second visit to New York and her first to other parts of the country which will include stops in Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Mrs. de Jouvenal, a divorcee, is a pert - faced woman with merry brown eyes and an interest in a multitude of things.

She said that when she is at home she is busy scouting for furnishings for a "broken-down chateau." "France is full of broken-down chateaus" which she is refurbishing in the period of Louis XIV when it was built. The crumbling structure is at Herouville, about 20 miles from Paris.

She and her step - father (she is the child from the second of her mother's three marriages) also are editing Colette's voluminous correspondence and supervising theater and movie adaptations of her mother's works. And, on this trip, she is promoting the French perfume industry, in a trip sponsored by Harper's Bazaar and Air France Airlines.

"It would be rude of me to come to America and tell your women how to use perfume," she said. "But we French women do have a special way of using and choosing," according to the mood, the season, the clothes. Everything has to be improved in life, including our scents sense.

"I say, follow the advice of friends and husbands.

"And lovers . . ."

Cotton Is Most Versatile For Travel Costume

Cotton's taking a vacation this Summer, but not lying down! To the contrary, cotton sets a dizzying pace of color and free-swinging silhouettes whether you're going to the Alps, the tropics or staying in your own backyard.

High on the traveler's wardrobe agenda is the elegant, versatile travel costume in cotton pique, suiting or knit. Increasingly important in ensembles is the sleeveless, side slashed coat worn over an understated sheath, either slightly bloused or plumbline straight. Ensembles are multi-purpose, on-the-go clothes that insure a busy traveler of a non-stop fashion throughout the day. Jackets ensembled with dresses are also ideal fashion traveling companions for they go from day jacket to transform the sleeveless dress into a perfectly geared date frock. Cotton knits come to the fore this season, being newly styled by fine designers into jacket and dress ensembles. Also important is the cotton tweed ensemble in red and white plaid shown in a sleeveless dress with interesting side belt treatment and worn with a jacket that faintly indicates a natural waistline.

Cotton's versatile two - time styling aids and abets the traveler to keep well within airline luggage requirements. In the sports picture, coordinates and separates lead double lives. Matching printed skirts and dressmaker suits allow for active beach hours as well as for pretty coverage during lunch and on sightseeing trips. "Cold shoulder" styling is new for swimsuits and the one shouldered suit in print looks great on the beach and doubles for a dress with matching skirt.

Cotton knit separates in prints, plains and brilliant stripes are featured in shorts, pants, overblouses and jackets. These mix and match to a traveler's delight. A minimum number of separates transform into a maximum number of outfits, making it easy to conform to weight requirements.

Cotton Sails Into Summer

Sailcloth, duck and cotton knit are the fabric favorites, and these are frequently detailed with brass button closings and middy collars to emphasize the sea-going look. Colors are predominantly bright shades of red and blue combined with white.

Sportswear adopts this theme with particular enthusiasm, providing coordinates such as cotton duck "cabin boy's pants which hit just below the knee, and loose-fitting middy-collared jackets in denim.

Many Beauty Spots Abound

By MILDRED SWIFT

Edgar Allen Poe said:

"I feel that, in the Heavens above,
The angels, whispering one to another,
Can find, among their burning words of love,
None so devotional as that of of "Mother."

THANKS

It's nice of you to call in about your plants or those of your neighbors. Then we can call attention to these and many others can enjoy their beauty. Mrs. L. B. Hunt, 310 South College, Monroe, has a beautiful bed of peonies. Margueritte Vinson's rose bed planted completely with "Tiffany" is lovely. This grower highly recommends this variety and her plants are proof of their hardiness and beauty.

Those who are interested in African violets, call by 300 Stubbs Avenue, Margaret Vanderfords, and see her collection. She raises these in the basement and that must be an excellent place. She has over 100 varieties.

GARDEN JOB

Your remember in January we reminded you to put the potted poinsettias in a dark place and only water them enough to keep them alive. These plants are beginning to grow, now. Pinch back for more compact growth and for greater number of flowers.

Stake tall blooming plants such as tithonia (Mexican sun flower) and cosmas. These plants both produce such beautiful summer blooms, but a heavy rain or wind causes them to fall over in the beds.

In answer to many questions about tulip bulbs - they'll rarely ever come up the second year and it's not too successful digging and storing this bulb.

As Amaryllis finish blooming, fertilize them. A complete food such as 8-8-8 is excellent.

When cutting Easter lilies, leave as much stem as possible. The plant builds up the bulb for next year's bloom through the leaves and stems.

Plumbago can be planted now for summer bloom. The plants are in the nurseries. This plant produces masses of rather small white or blue flowers, depending on the type. They bloom a long time. The plant is hardy and almost free from disease and insect problems. Their color is cooling during the hot summer months. The bluish lavender bloom is an unusual and very beautiful color.

BEAUTIFUL

The watsonias are beautiful this year and most every year. These look so much like the gladiolus and are so easy to raise. They come back year after year. Nurseries seldom carry these bulbs so you'll have to ask your neighbor for a start. Plant them in the fall or winter or divide after the tops die. This is one bulb that likes to stay in the same place for years. The common one is a reddish purple. Mrs. Florence Filhoil, Logtown, has a beautiful pink and a white.

There's no common plant that can be used more in arrangements than sedum (hen and chickens). It's gray foliage blends nicely with other cut flowers - or just growing in the garden. This is a nice patio plant either in pots or planted in beds. Its main adantage is that it goes through dry spells so very well. Your neighbor will be glad to give you a start. It roots easily at any time of year.

TROUBLES

The most serious insect pest of azaleas is the mealy bug. The insect will probably not be noticed until a dark sooty mold fungus appears on the plants. The mealy bug itself appears as whitish masses on the stems. Unless controlled, the mealy bug will cause serious damage to plants. The best control measure for this mealy bug is to spray with malathion at the rate of 1½ teaspoons of 50 per cent material in a gallon of water. The best time to apply the spray is when the mealy bugs are in the crawler stage. This happens in May or June, September or October.

U.S. Seeks NATO Aid Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States as appealed to its NATO Allies to support and join in a policy of isolation toward pro-Communist Cuba.

The appeal was made, it was learned Saturday by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at the NATO foreign ministers conference in Oslo, Norway, this week. Rusk also told the European Allies that the West cannot afford any more setbacks in the conflict with the Communist bloc

Rusk warned also that the West may face a new Berlin crisis this year. In effect, he was telling U.S. Allies that there is just one, all-embracing cold war and they must recognize that Cuba is a part of it.

The line he took foreshadowed the tougher position he is now trying to develop at the 14-nation conference on Laos at Geneva.

Rusk, in fact, reflected deliberate decisions in the Kennedy administration that the time has come for the United States and its allies to develop much more resolute positions on such issues as Laos and Cuba.

Rusk in NATO thus warned the Europeans that if a cease-fire were firmly established in Laos and then violated by the Communist side the resulting emergency would require instant consideration not only in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization but also in the Middle Eastern Alliance and in NATO.

Reports reaching Washington after the NATO meeting say Rusk did a good job in presenting U.S. views in frank and emphatic terms and he was well received by allied colleagues. But it appears he failed to stir any marked enthusiasm for action.

Both in Europe and in the Western Hemisphere there is an obvious reluctance to meet a Communist challenge head-on where it can be avoided, to make military commitments to apply counterpressures.

The British and French strongly oppose U.S. intervention in Laos and their opposition together with resistance in Congress discouraged Kennedy from action. Despite public declarations, the United States watched the military situation in Laos go from bad to worse until Soviet agreement to a cease-fire this week transferred the struggle from Laos to Geneva.

In the case of Cuba the United States vitally needs support from the other nations in the Western Hemisphere if its present policy for isolating or quarantining the Communist-linked rule of Fidel Castro is to have any chance whatever.

Tech Musician Part Of Florida Summer Theater

RUSTON (Special) — Mrs. Mary Elaine Wallace, associate professor of music at Louisiana Tech, has been chosen as one of the 22 members of the Asolo Festival Company of Florida State University, a summer repertory theater.

The Festival Company begins in Tallahassee, Fla., with a four - week preparation period, after which the group moves to Sarasota for the remainder of the season.

With a playbill of five 17th and 18th century operas and plays, each will be performed at least six times at the Asolo Theater Theater during the five and half-week stay in Sarasota.

Constructed in the palace of Queen Catherine Cornaro in Asolo, Italy in 1798, the Asolo Theater was purchased by the State of Florida and moved to Ringling Museum in Sarasota in 1951. It is the only 18th century Venetian Theater in the United States.

Mrs. Wallace, who will be on leave from Tech for the summer, will join the company in Tallahassee on June 11, go to Sarasota on July 9, and return to Ruston late in August.

GIVES MUSIC VIEWS

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP)—Visiting conductor Leonard Bernstein doesn't frown on all rock 'n roll music. "There's good Bach and dull Bach, just as there's good rock 'n roll and bad rock 'n roll," he said.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Daylillies Conformists

By MARY JARDINE

Nobody can say that daylilies are nonconformists. They will fit into any garden situation and be right at home. You can grow them in a flower border with other perennials, or you can mass them alone in front of shrubs that border a lawn or enclose your backyard.

Try some of the miniatures as a border along paths and walks or as an edging for flowers beds. (You can run the lawnmower under the edge of their foliage, saving time and money you might otherwise spend in hand edging. They can be used in sandy locations where scant moisture is a problem.

MANY USES

Experienced gardeners will find countless other uses for them. Although it is easy to recognize the landscape value of daylilies, it is not quite so simple for the beginning gardener to select good varieties. The best method is to visit daylily gardens in your area while they are in bloom. The plants can be moved at any time except in freezing weather.

There are many colors, purple, pink gold, red, bronze yellow and artist's tints. Some are tall and some are short. Best varieties for the south are evergreen and many are re-bloomers, giving a continuous color picture from May until October. We are thrilled over the awards received from the American Hemerocallis Society by our North Louisiana Hybridizers. Honorable mention to Mrs. R. C. Pittard for "Golden Showpiece," and Mrs. Leona Murphrey, a junior citation for her "Gentle Breeze."

ARRANGEMENT

On display at the Garden Center was the beautiful period mass arrangement created by Dr. John A. Wright of Louisiana Tech for his television program. The container selected was a white classicurn of good proportions. Background vertical placements were of salmon pink gladiolus. The mass line was continued with groups of white penstemon, and marguerite daisies. Grouped low in the design were masses of roses shading from pink into salmon and deep red. Flaring out at the sides and adding width were branches of the new growth of Burford Holly. To give a third dimension quality tall branches of nandina flowers were placed behind the gladiolus. A beautiful arrangement and very inspiring for a church altar.

Another arrangement suitable for a communion table was the oval design in yellow and white. A large white oval container was used and the plant material masses of yellow daylilies and buds arranged in an oval pattern.

Lafayette Ruffin, a student of Dr. Wright's made a triangular design also suitable for church. The container was a round bowl with a rectangular self stand of white. Flame colored gladiolus were skillfully arranged in a formal triangle pattern. It was very effective, a design which could easily be seen from the back of the church.

HINTS

Two hints on church arrangements were pointed out by Dr. Wright. First, make your arrangements large enough to be seen from a distance. Select fairly large material. Gladiolus make nice bold line material.

Second, the color of your flowers is important. They should blend with their surroundings and also be easily seen from the back of the church. Light colored and white flowers seem best.

A timely arrival in our Garden Center library is a new book, "Floral Decorations For Your Church," by Fern Bowers Hunt. Designed for the use of flower committees, members of Altar Guilds, and clergymen, the book will be of great value to those who decorate in churches and church, meeting rooms.

EXTENSION NEWS

Important Day Is Here

By AUDREY DAWSON

Happy Mother's Day. Yours truely is indebeted to Mildred Chapman, member of Progressive Home Demonstration Club, for finding this lovely poem entitled, "Thought for Mothers Day," by Nadine Lybarger.

MOTHER'S DAY THOUGHT

We all remember mother on her special day.
We send her gifts and flowers and a card that say
How very much we thank her for the things that mothers do;
The sacrifices that they make, but when this day is through,
We're prone to take for granted her precious love and care
The fact that when we need her, mother's always there.
She will never mention it, nor ask for any praise,
The joy of doing things for us is her reward always,
But just the same, it would be nice, if we'd find time to say

GARDEN JOBS

Separate violet clumps into single stems after blooming period. They like rich, well drained soil plenty of water and sunshine.

Now that the lawns are being mowed often, remember to remove some of the clippings periodically or a thatch will build up in the lawn. Additional application of fertilizer can be made at monthly or six week intervals during the summer months to help the lawn stay green. Apply approximately 10 pounds of complete fertilizer as 8-8-8 per 1,000 square feet.

Garden chrysanthemums can still be planted for fall blooming. Remember if we have dry periods, they must be watered because they require a great deal of water. Chrysanthemums should be pinched three times during the growing season to produce a large number of blooms. These plants need feeding with a complete fertilizer about every two weeks.

Remember it's tre soil, not the variety that gives you blue hydrangea flowers. Acid soil makes aluminum available in the soil, which produces blue flowers. Four tablespoons of alum dissolved in one gallon of water will insure blue flowers.

DRESS REVUE

The annual parish - wide dress revue was a great success this year with 87 entries. Seven top winners were selected from the adult division. Mrs. Hebert Strozier from Drew Community placed 1st, Mrs. Charles Guready, member of Progressive Home Demonstration Club 2nd; Mrs. D. S. Sullivan, of McGuire 3rd; Mrs Frank Buce, Better Homemaker Club, 4th; Mrs. J. R. Lee, Bosco Club 5th, Mrs. Alice Sanford, Liberty Home Demonstration Club 6th, and Mrs. Mildred Chatmen of Progressive Club 7th.

NEW FINISH

"Germatize" is a liquid antibacterial finish that prevents growth of odor forming bacteria on apparel fabrics. The antibacterial effect is claimed to be durable for at least 50 launderings or 25 dry cleanings, and the finish is reported not affected by chlorine, heat, or alkalies.

EVENING WEAR

For the late day and evening wear this season the floating silhouette is interpreted in a variety of styles. Filmy chiffons and printed silks take naturally to draperies and full panels. The assymmetrical look is used again and again. One of the prettiest ways of achieving this is to leave one shoulder bare, mounting the other with a soft bow. No one silhouette is predominant for evening wear. Backs are bare in late day dresses. Generous scoops and deep cowl drapes create exciting fashions.

A THOUGHT

What's wrong with Mother's Day, I fear — is it's only a day instead of a year.

Courses Set At Tech For Handicapped

RUSTON (Special) — Two courses concerning handicapped children will be conducted in the air - conditioned special education center at Louisiana Tech this summer.

The teacher will be Stanley E. Fudell of Austin, Tex., who has been a special education teacher at Tech during the last two summers.

He has the B.S. degree from New York University and the M.A. degree from Southwestern State Teachers College. He is working on a doctor's dissertation at the University of Texas and is teaching a class of mentally retarded children in Austin.

The special education courses, designed primarily for in-service teachers and seniors majoring in education, will be taught from June 5 through July 14.

One of the classes is Methods and Teaching Crafts to Handicapped Children and the other is Education of Mentally Retarded Children.

The classes will meet five days a week, as will all other classes during the summer term at Tech.

The other classes, however, will be of nine-week duration, beginning on June 5 and ending on Aug. 4.

Military Stir In Dominican Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unusual activity by Dominican Republic military aircraft is being reported in and around Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the republic, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

They said such activity also confirmed a reported order to Dominican hospitals to be prepared to receive wounded or injured persons between May 13 and May 18.

The meaning of the activity is not immediately clear, the sources said. Military plane activity previously has been light in the Dominican Republic, they noted.

The sources speculated, however, that Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, ruler of the Dominican Republic for 31 years, could either be fearful of a revolutionary attempt, or perhaps plotting a "fake" revolution of his own.

His regime, the sources said, has been under steady pressure since it was condemned by the Organization of American States last year as a threat to the peace of the hemisphere due to an assassination attempt against President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela.

Other American nations have broken relations with the Dominican Republic and the OAS has ordered an embargo on oil, oil products, trucks and truck parts. The export of arms also is forbidden.

The OAS action reportedly has led to a bitter clampdown on possible anti-Trujillo elements within the Dominican Republic. Trujillo also is engaged in a feud with the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy.

The generalissimo, the sources said, conceivably could stage a "fake" revolution, with the idea of smoking out his opposition, and perhaps even installing a new government.

Such a government presumably could appeal for a lifting of the OAS ban. Tentative feelers in this direction are said to have already occurred.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Prepare Late Garden Plans

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to prepare for the late summer garden. Some time around July 15th, the beautiful pink spider lily (lycoris squamigera) delights everybody with its magic blossoms, and right after these beauties die down, there is a dead time in most southern gardens. It is this dead time that we need to prepare for right now by planting some of the flowers that will bloom between mid July and late August.

FORMOSA LILY

The bulbs of the Formosa lily can still be bought from bulb dealers. (Also, look in the bulb section of most seed catalogues)) Get some of the early flowering Price's variety and some of the regular Wilson's variety, and you will have flowers from one or the other over a long period in late summer and into the fall.

This lily is a stem rooter, so set the bulbs with six inches of garden soil over the top of the bulb. Even then, you may have to stake your plants because Wilson's variety often grows 12 feet tall. Keep the Formosa lily away from common old tiger lilies and spray any aphids which appear because the one weakness of the beauties from Formosa is that they get ily mosaic planting every year from new bulbs, however, so wonderful are the long white triumpets.

Aster frikarti, Wonder of Staffa, will keep right on blooming through July and August, because it makes no seeds. Plants can be bought from perennial dealers now. The new Japanese anamone varieties bloom lustily during August and on into September. They come in white and shades of pink and sort of delicate lavender pinks that are not magenta. These perennials are very permanent. They will want plenty of watering to bloom normally though they are quite drought resistant. Nothing is more surprising then to come upon a group of these flowers in hot old August.

STANDBY

Our old standby, Salvia Farlnacea in the ordinary light blue and white form will bloom in August heavily if cut back, watered and fertilized at the end of July. The deep blue form seems to have taken the place of the lighter and more effective one in perennial and seed catalogues. Another — and bluer — perennial is, of course, Veronica longifolia subsessilis, one of the finest of all blue or violet - blue perennials for the South. It is not too late to get plants now, and they will bloom from late summer until frost. If you have not succeeded with this one, then plant it in a semi - shaded location and keep it well watered. It is not quite the camel that some summer perennials are.

Author Airs Philosophy About Love

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The great French writer Colette devoted most of her life to writing about l'amour.

Her daughter hasn't set down on paper any of her thoughts on the subject. But, in an interview, she said she has a philosophy about love — "It is that you can't be objective about the subject until you're 100 and detached from it."

Colette de Jouvenal is the only child of the author of "Gigi" and "Cheri" and numerous other works. She is in the United States on business. It is her second visit to New York and her first to other parts of the country which will include stops in Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Mrs. de Jouvenal, a divorcee, is a pert - faced woman with merry brown eyes and an interest in a multitude of things.

She said that when she is at home she is busy scouting for furnishings for a "broken-down chateau." "France is full of broken-down chateaus" which she is refurbishing in the period of Louis XIV when it was built. The crumbling structure is at Herouville, about 20 miles from Paris.

She and her step - father (she is the child from the second of her mother's three marriages) also are editing Colette's voluminous correspondence and supervising theater and movie adaptations of her mother's works. And, on this trip, she is promoting the French perfume industry, in a trip sponsored by Harper's Bazaar and Air France Airlines.

"It would be rude of me to come to America and tell your women how to use perfume," she said. "But we French women do have a special way of using and choosing," according to the mood, the season, the clothes. Everything has to be improved in life, including our scents sense.

"I say, follow the advice of friends and husbands.

"And lovers . . ."

Cotton Is Most Versatile For Travel Costume

Cotton's taking a vacation this Summer, but not lying down! To the contrary, cotton sets a dizzying pace of color and free-swinging silhouettes whether you're going to the Alps, the tropics or staying in your own backyard.

High on the traveler's wardrobe agenda is the elegant, versatile travel costume in cotton pique, suiting or knit. Increasingly important in ensembles is the sleeveless, side slashed coat worn over an understated sheath, either slightly bloused or plumb-line straight. Ensembles are multi-purpose, on-the-go clothes that insure a busy traveler of a non-stop fashion throughout the day. Jackets ensembled with dresses are also ideal fashion traveling companions for they go from day jacket to transform the sleeveless dress into a perfectly geared date frock. Cotton knits come to the fore this season, being newly styled by fine designers into jacket and dress ensembles. Also important is the cotton tweed ensemble in red and white plaid shown in a sleeveless dress with interesting side belt treatment and worn with a jacket that faintly indicates a natural waistline.

Cotton's versatile two - time styling aids and abets the traveler to keep well within airline luggage requirements. In the sports picture, coordinates and separates lead double lives. Matching printed skirts and dressmaker suits allow for active beach hours as well as for pretty coverage during lunch and on sightseeing trips. "Cold shoulder" styling is new for swimsuits and the one shouldered suit in print looks great on the beach and doubles for a dress with matching skirt.

Cotton knit separates in prints, plains and brilliant stripes are featured in shorts, pants, overblouses and jackets. These mix and match to a traveler's delight. A minimum number of separates transform into a maximum number of outfits, making it easy to conform to weight requirements.

New Tack

A new thumb tack may provide the solution for handling balky drawers in cabinet and bureau. The tack is covered with a non-stick, self-lubricating resin, the drawers rest on the rails into which the tacks have been set. This allows for smoother operation.

Glamorized

The outdoor rural mailbox has been glamorized. It now comes in shades of pink, turquoise, blue, more conservative black and white. The material is zinc-coated steel and chrome plate. Keep the box clean with suds and a hot water rinse.

Lingerie Look

Embroidery is dressing up the traditional navy blue dress this spring. Pettiskirts of eyelet, eyelet blouses and Peter Pan collars and cuffs with a "lingerie" look all are important. White embroidery, usually in cross stitching and in broad bands, also decorates otherwise tailored dresses.

Many Beauty Spots Abound

By MILDRED SWIFT

Edgar Allen Poe said:

"I feel that, in the Heavens above,
The angels, whispering one to another,
Can find, among their burning words of love,
None so devotional as that of of "Mother."

THANKS

It's nice of you to call in about your plants or those of your neighbors. Then we can call attention to these and many others can enjoy their beauty. Mrs. L. B. Hunt, 310 South College, Monroe, has a beautiful bed of peonies. Marguerite Vinson's rose bed planted completely with "Tiffany" is lovely. This grower highly recommends this variety and her plants are proof of their hardiness and beauty.

Those who are interested in African violets, call by 300 Stubbs Avenue, Margaret Vanderfords, and see her collection. She raises these in the basement and that must be an excellent place. She has over 100 varieties.

GARDEN JOB

Your remember in January we reminded you to put the potted poinsettias in a dark place and only water them enough to keep them alive. These plants are beginning to grow, now. Pinch back for more compact growth and for greater number of flowers.

Stake fall blooming plants such as tithonia (Mexican sun flower) and cosmas. These plants both produce such beautiful summer blooms, but a heavy rain or wind causes them to fall over in the beds.

In answer to many questions about tulip bulbs - they'll rarely ever come up the second year and it's not too successful digging and storing this bulb.

As Amaryllis finish blooming, fertilize them. A complete food such as 8-8-8 is excellent.

When cutting Easter lilies, leave as much stem as possible. The plant builds up the bulb for next year's bloom through the leaves and stems.

Plumbago can be planted now for summer bloom. The plants are in the nurseries. This plant produces masses of rather small white or blue flowers, depending on the type. They bloom a long time. The plant is hardy and almost free from disease and insect problems. Their color is cooling during the hot summer months. The bluish lavender bloom is an unusual and very beautiful color.

BEAUTIFUL

The watsonias are beautiful this year and most every year. These look so much like the gladiolus and are so easy to raise. They come back year after year. Nurseries seldom carry these bulbs so you'll have to ask your neighbor for a start. Plant them in the fall or winter or divide after the tops die. This is one bulb that likes to stay in the same place for years. The common one is a reddish purple. Mrs. Florence Elliott, Logtown, has a beautiful pink and a white.

There's no common plant that can be used more in arrangements than sedum (hen and chickens). It's gray foliage blends nicely with other cut flowers - or just growing in the garden. This is a nice patio plant either in pots or planted in beds. Its main advantage is that it goes through dry spells so very well. Your neighbor will be glad to give you a start! It roots easily at any time of year.

TROUBLES

The most serious insect pest of azaleas is the mealy bug. The insect will probably not be noticed until a dark sooty mold fungus appears on the plants. The mealy bug itself appears as whitish masses on the stems. Unless controlled, the mealy bug will cause serious damage to plants. The best control measure for this mealy bug is to spray with malathion at the rate of 1½ teaspoons of 50 per cent material in a gallon of water. The best time to apply the spray is when the mealy bugs are in the crawler stage. This happens in May or June, September or October.

U.S. Seeks NATO Aid Against Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States as appealed to its NATO Allies to support and join in a policy of isolation toward pro-Communist Cuba.

The appeal was made, it was learned Saturday by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at the NATO foreign ministers conference in Oslo, Norway, this week. Rusk also told the European Allies that the West cannot afford any more setbacks in the conflict with the Communist bloc.

Rusk warned also that the West may face a new Berlin crisis this year. In effect, he was telling U.S. Allies that there is just one, all-embracing cold war and they must recognize that Cuba is a part of it.

The line he took foreshadowed the tougher position he is now trying to develop at the 14-nation conference on Laos at Geneva.

Rusk, in fact, reflected deliberate decisions in the Kennedy administration that the time has come for the United States and its allies to develop much more resolute positions on such issues as Laos and Cuba.

Rusk in NATO thus warned the Europeans that if a cease-fire were firmly established in Laos and then violated by the Communist side the resulting emergency would require instant consideration not only in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization but also in the Middle Eastern Alliance and in NATO.

Reports reaching Washington after the NATO meeting say Rusk did a good job in presenting U.S. views in frank and emphatic terms and he was well received by allied colleagues. But it appears he failed to stir any marked enthusiasm for action.

Both in Europe and in the Western Hemisphere there is an obvious reluctance to meet a Communist challenge head-on where it can be avoided, to make military commitments to apply counterpressures.

The British and French strongly oppose U.S. intervention in Laos and their opposition together with resistance in Congress discouraged Kennedy from action. Despite public declarations, the United States watched the military situation in Laos go from bad to worse until Soviet agreement to a cease-fire this week transferred the struggle from Laos to Geneva.

In the case of Cuba the United States vitally needs support from the other nations in the Western Hemisphere if its present policy for isolating or quarantining the Communist-linked rule of Fidel Castro is to have any chance whatever.

Tech Musician Part Of Florida Summer Theater

RUSTON (Special) — Mrs. Mary Elaine Wallace, associate professor of music at Louisiana Tech, has been chosen as one of the 22 members of the Asolo Festival Company of Florida State University, a summer repertory theater.

The Festival Company begins in Tallahassee, Fla., with a four - week preparation period, after which the group moves to Sarasota for the remainder of the season.

With a playbill of five 17th and 18th century operas and plays, each will be performed at least six times at the Asolo Theater Theater during the five and half-week stay in Sarasota.

Constructed in the palace of Queen Catherine Cornaro in Asolo, Italy in 1798, the Asolo Theater was purchased by the State of Florida and moved to Ringling Museum in Sarasota in 1951. It is the only 18th century Venetian Theater in the United States.

Mrs. Wallace, who will be on leave from Tech for the summer, will join the company in Tallahassee on June 11, go to Sarasota on July 9, and return to Ruston late in August.

GIVES MUSIC VIEWS

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Visiting conductor Leonard Bernstein doesn't frown on all rock 'n roll music. "There's good Bach and dull Bach, just as there's good rock 'n roll and bad rock 'n roll," he said.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MARY JARDINE

Nobody can say that daylilies are nonconformists. They will fit into any garden situation and be right at home. You can grow them in a flower border with other perennials, or you can mass them alone in front of shrubs that border a lawn or enclose your backyard.

Try some of the miniatures as a border along paths and walks or as an edging for flowers beds. You can run the lawnmower under the edge of their foliage, saving time and money you might otherwise spend in hand edging. They can be used in sandy locations where scant moisture is a problem.

MANY USES

Experienced gardeners will find countless other uses for them. Although it is easy to recognize the landscape value of daylilies, it is not quite so simple for the beginning gardener to select good varieties. The best method is to visit daylily gardens in your area while they are in bloom. The plants can be moved at any time except in freezing weather.

There are many colors, purple, pink gold, red, bronze yellow and artist's tints. Some are tall and some are short. Best varieties for the south are evergreen and many are re-bloomers, giving a continuous color picture from May until October. We are thrilled over the awards received from the American Hemerocallis Society by our North Louisiana Hybridizers. Honorable mention to Mrs. R. C. Pittard for "Golden Showpiece," and Mrs. Leona Murphrey, a junior citation for her "Gentle Breeze."

ARRANGEMENT

On display at the Garden Center was the beautiful period mass arrangement created by Dr. John A. Wright of Louisiana Tech for his television program. The container selected was a white classicurn of good proportions. Background vertical placements were of salmon pink gladiolus. The mass line was continued with groups of white penstemon, and marguerite daisies. Grouped low in the design were masses of roses shading from pink into salmon and deep red. Flaring out at the sides and adding width were branches of the new growth of Burford Holly. To give a third dimension quality tall branches of nandina flowers were placed behind the gladiolus. A beautiful arrangement and very inspiring for a church altar.

Another arrangement suitable for a communion table was the oval design in yellow and white. A large white oval container was used and the plant material masses of yellow daylilies and buds arranged in an oval pattern.

Lafayette Raffin, a student of Dr. Wright's made a triangular design also suitable for church. The container was a round bowl with a rectangular self stand of white. Flame colored gladiolus were skillfully arranged in a formal triangle pattern. It was very effective, a design which could easily be seen from the back of the church.

HINTS

Two hints on church arrangements were pointed out by Dr. Wright. First, make your arrangements large enough to be seen from a distance. Select fairly large material. Gladiolus make nice bold line material.

Second, the color of your flowers is important. They should blend with their surroundings and also be easily seen from the back of the church. Light colored and white flowers seem best.

A timely arrival in our Garden Center library is a new book, "Floral Decorations For Your Church," by Fern Bowers Hunt. Designed for the use of flower committees, members of Altar Guilds, and clergymen, the book will be of great value to those who decorate in churches and church meeting rooms.

EXTENSION NEWS

Important Day Is Here

By AUDREY DAWSON

Happy Mother's Day. Yours truely is indebted to Mildred Chapman, member of Progressive Home Demonstration Club, for finding this lovely poem entitled, "Thought for Mothers Day," by Nadine Lybarger.

MOTHER'S DAY THOUGHT

We all remember mother on her special day.
We send her gifts and flowers and a card that say
How very much we thank her for the things that mothers do.
The sacrifices that they make, but when this day is through.
We're prone to take for granted her precious love and care
The fact that when we need her, mother's always there.
She will never mention it, nor ask for any praise.
The joy of doing things for us is her reward always,
But just the same, it would be nice, if we'd find time to say

GARDEN JOBS

Separate violet clumps into single stems after blooming period. They like rich, well drained soil plenty of water and sunshine.

Now that the lawns are being mowed often remember to remove some of the clippings periodically or a thatch will build up in the lawn. Additional application of fertilizer can be made at monthly or six week intervals during the summer months to help the lawn stay green. Apply approximately 10 pounds of complete fertilizer as 8-8-8 per 1,000 square feet.

Garden chrysanthemums can still be planted for fall blooming. Remember if we have dry periods, they must be watered because they require a great deal of water. Chrysanthemums should be pinched three times during the growing season to produce a large number of blooms. These plants need feeding with a complete fertilizer about every two weeks.

Remember it's the soil, not the variety that gives you blue hydrangea flowers. Acid soil makes aluminum available in the soil, which produces blue flowers. Four tablespoons of alum dissolved in one gallon of water will insure blue flowers.

DRESS REVUE

The annual parish - wide dress revue was a great success this year with 37 entries. Seven ten winners were selected from the adult division. Mrs. Hebert Strozier from Drew Community placed 1st, Mrs. Charles Gueady, member of Progressive Home Demonstration Club 2nd; Mrs. D. S. Sullivan, of McGuire 3rd; Mrs. Frank Buce, Better Homemaker Club, 4th; Mrs. J. R. Lee, Bosco Club 5th, Mrs. Alice Sanford, Liberty Home Demonstration Club 6th, and Mrs. Mildred Chatmen of Progressive Club 7th.

NEW FINISH

"Germatize" is a liquid antibacterial finish that prevents growth of odor forming bacteria on apparel fabrics. The antibacterial effect is claimed to be durable for at least 50 launderings or 25 dry cleanings, and the finish is reported not affected by chlorine, heat, or alkalies.

EVENING WEAR

For the late day and evening wear this season the floating silhouette is interpreted in a variety of styles. Filmy chiffons and printed silks take naturally to draperies and full panels. The asymmetrical look is used again and again. One of the prettiest ways of achieving this is to leave one shoulder bare, mounting the other with a soft bow. No one silhouette is predominant for evening wear. Backs are bare in late day dresses. Generous scoops and deep cowl drapes create exciting fashions.

A THOUGHT

What's wrong with Mother's Day, I fear — is it's only a day instead of a year.

Grads To Hear Lyndon Johnson

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will be the speaker at graduation exercises of the U.S. Military Academy on June 7.

The class of 1961 will number 536, two of them foreign cadets who are not eligible for commission in the U.S. Armed Forces. Two other U.S. cadets were found ineligible for commissions.

Of the 532 receiving commissions as second lieutenants, 473 will enter the Army, 55 will join the Air Force and 4 will become Marines.

Courses Set At Tech For Handicapped

RUSTON (Special) — Two courses concerning handicapped children will be conducted in the air - conditioned special education center at Louisiana Tech this summer.

The teacher will be Stanley E. Fudell of Austin, Tex., who has been a special education teacher at Tech during the last two summers.

He has the B.S. degree from New York University and the M.A. degree from Southwestern State Teachers College. He is working on a doctor's dissertation at the University of Texas and is teaching a class of mentally retarded children in Austin.

The special education courses, designed primarily for in-service teachers and seniors majoring in education, will be taught from June 5 through July 14.

One of the classes is Methods and Teaching Crafts to Handicapped Children and the other is Education of Mentally Retarded Children.

The classes will meet five days a week, as will all other classes during the summer term at Tech.

The other classes, however, will be of nine-week duration, beginning on June 5 and ending on Aug. 4.

Military Stir In Dominican Is Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unusual activity by Dominican Republic military aircraft is being reported in and around Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the republic, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

They said such activity also confirmed a reported order to Dominican hospitals to be prepared to receive wounded or injured persons between May 13 and May 18.

The meaning of the activity is not immediately clear, the sources said. Military plane activity previously has been light in the Dominican Republic, they noted.

The sources speculated, however, that Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, ruler of the Dominican Republic for 31 years, could either be fearful of a revolutionary attempt, or perhaps plotting a "fake" revolution of his own.

His regime, the sources said, has been under steady pressure since it was condemned by the Organization of American States last year as a threat to the peace of the hemisphere due to an assassination attempt against President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela.

Other American nations have broken relations with the Dominican Republic and the OAS has ordered an embargo on oil, oil products, trucks and truck parts. The export of arms also is forbidden.

The OAS action reportedly has led to a bitter clampdown on possible anti-Trujillo elements within the Dominican Republic. Trujillo also is engaged in a feud with the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy.

The generalissimo, the sources said, conceivably could stage a "fake" revolution, with the idea of smoking out his opposition, and perhaps even installing a new government.

Such a government presumably could appeal for a lifting of the OAS ban. Tentative feelers in this direction are said to have already occurred.

Walters Named To Serve In Scout Training

L. M. Cooksey, president, Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, announces today that J. W. Walters, council leadership training chairman, has been selected to serve on Woodbadge Training Staff at Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, N. M., this summer.

Walters is principal of Ransom Elementary School and contributed much to the Council's Training Program for several years.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Prepare Late Garden Plans

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to prepare for the late summer garden. Some time around July 15th, the beautiful pink spider - lily (lycoris squamigera) delights everybody with its magic blossoms, and right after these beauties die down, there is a dead time in most southern gardens. It is this dead time that we need to prepare for right now by planting some of the flowers that will bloom between mid July and late August.

FORMOSA LILY

The bulbs of the Formosa lily can still be bought from bulb dealers. (Also, look in the bulb section of most seed catalogues!) Get some of the early flowering Price's variety and some of the regular Wilson's variety, and you will have flowers from one or the other over a long period in late summer and into the fall.

This lily is a stem rooter, so set the bulbs with six inches of garden soil over the top of the bulb. Even then, you may have to stake your plants because Wilson's variety often grows 12 feet tall. Keep the Formosa lily away from common old tiger lilies and spray any aphids which appear because the one weakness of the beauties from Formosa is that they get lily mosaic planting every year from new bulbs, however, so wonderful are the long white triumpets.

Aster frikarti, Wonder of Staffa, will keep right on blooming through July and August, because it makes no seeds. Plants can be bought from perennial dealers now. The new Japanese anamone varieties bloom lustily during August and on into September. They come in white and shades of pink and sort of delicate lavender pinks that are not magenta. These perennials are very permanent. They will want plenty of watering to bloom normally though they are quite drought resistant. Nothing is more surprising then to come upon a group of these flowers in hot old August.

STANDBY

Our old standby, Salvia Farinacea in the ordinary light blue and white form will bloom in August heavily if cut back, watered and fertilized at the end of July. The deep blue form seems to have taken the place of the lighter and more effective one in perennial and seed catalogues. Another — and bluer — perennial is, of course, Veronica longifolia subsessilis, one of the finest of all blue or violet - blue perennials for the South. It is not too late to get plants now, and they will bloom from late summer until frost. If you have not succeeded with this one, then plant it in a semi - shaded location and keep it well watered. It is not quite the camel that some summer perennials are.

Kennedys Draw More Visitors To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reported Saturday its popularity as a tourist attraction has bounced up sharply since the Kennedys moved in.

From February through April — President Kennedy moved in Jan. 20 — there was a 27.5 per cent increase in the number visiting the White House, compared with the 1960 figures.

There were 80,000 more visitors during the three months than during the same period last year.

For the regular tours, the total rose from 201,000 to 273,000, a 26.4 per cent jump over 1960. Regular tours are conducted Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

There was an even larger increase for the specil tours — 42.5 per cent. These are conducted on request from members of Congress, the Cabinet, or other executive offices.

Study Shows Dust Helps Create Stars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — An astronomer has found that giant red stars, burning themselves up in space, generate vast clouds of dust that ultimately help to create new stars.

Scientists have long known of great clouds of hydrogen gas in galaxies. They have detected, along with it, the dust of heavier elements. But the source of neither was known.

Dr. Armin J. Deutsch of Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories has discovered that the heavier elements come from red stars millions of miles in diameter.

Some of these stars continuously discharge matter at the almost unbelievable rate of a trillion tons per second. The matter sweeps like a great wind billions of miles through space. Sometimes, in processes not fully understood, it and the more plentiful hydrogen condense to form new stars. The source of the hydrogen is still a mystery.

Dr. Deutsch discovered the winds in studies of Alpha Herculis, a star 186 million miles in diameter. This is about the diameter of our earth's orbit around our own sun, which measures a mere 864,000 miles through the center.

Gases such as blow from Alpha Herculis also stream outward from our sun, but on a much smaller scale.

Man Discovers Officers Have Long Memory

WEST WARWICK, R.I. (AP)—The winner of $140,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes didn't think the police would remember something that happened more than a decade ago. But they did.

Albert Diorio, 47, a Long Beach, Calif., bus driver formerly of Providence, R.I., is being held on three 12-year-old indictments charging him with breaking into Rhode Island business establishments.

But first Diorio wanted to visit old friends and relatives in Rhode Island. While he was at it he dropped into the office of the Providence Bulletin. He volunteered the story of his winnings and said he was going to give $20,000 to charity.

The story appeared on page one. The police spotted it, remembered him, and picked him up Saturday at the home of a sister-in-law in Providence.

Buried Fortress Now Being Built

DENTON, Tex. (AP)—A vast underground fortress, capable of accommodating 500 persons on an emergency buttoned-up basis for 30 days, is being built near this north Texas college town. The fortress could serve as an alternate national capital in event of enemy attack.

The $2½ million subterranean structure will house the headquarters of Region 5 of the Office of Civil Defense and mobilization but in case of emergency would be the control center for all federal agencies in the Southwestern States and—if necessary—for the entire nation.

The buried fortress, the first to be built for a regional OCDM, is to serve as a model for similar ones which the federal government hopes to have at the other seven regional headquarters—Harvard, Mass.; Olney, Md.; Thomasville, Ga.; Battle Creek, Mich.; Denver, Colo.; Santa Rosa, Calif.; and Everett, Wash.

The fortress, due to be completed in June, 1962, will be under five feet of earth but will be topped by an attractive, modernistic building on a 20-acre site three miles east of Denton.

Above ground will be offices, a public reception center and a snack bar. Although a permanent building by all conventional standards, its being blasted away in event of atomic attack would not hamper the operation of the underground fortress.

The underground center will be able to withstand the blast of a 20-megaton H-bomb only three miles away. All equipment will be shock mounted and the entire structure will be able to move sideways ½ inch and vertically 1¾ inches without breaking up.

By comparison it was a 20-kiloton atomic bomb that hit Hiroshima.

With its own power plant, water well and other utilities, the two-story, 142-foot wide and 172-foot long center will be literally a self-sustaining buried city. In addition to accommodating 500 persons on a 30-day emergency basis, it could provide for 200 for a much extended period.

Fresh filtered air will be assured by air intake and exhaust valves that will operate manually, automatically or by remote-controlled censoring devices to prevent blast pressure from entering the center.

Fallout detection instruments on the outside will register the gamma radiation in the area to visual machines in the center. Decontamination rooms for those entering or leaving will prevent radiation contamination while sentry towers and its own specially-trained personnel will provide security against sabotage.

On the upper level will be the air filter and decontamination rooms, offices, the communications center, decoding room, computer room, damage assessment room and the message center.

Plaquemines Votes Out Police Jury

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Plaquemines Parish voters Saturday overwhelmingly approved a measure to abolish the police jury form of government and substitute a five-man commission council.

Early returns gave 2,836 for the proposal, 338 against. Returns were in from all but one of the parish's 15 precincts.

The commissioners, to have sweeping powers, will draw $9,600 a year. Police jurors now receive $1,500.

The new charter was drawn up by a commission named by the parish police jury. Chief architect was the parish's longtime political kingpin, Leander H. Perez Sr.

Three passengers in the Golden vehicle were injured. All were Rayville Negroes.

Injured were Sylvester Washington, 12, Joyce Golden, 10, and Rosalie Johnson, 28.

The Washington boy was the most seriously injured of the trio and he was taken to Confederate Memorial Hospital in Shreveport. The others were at Conway Memorial Hospital in Monroe last night.

Police Seeking Holdup Slayer At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Police Saturday sought the unidentified killer of Bob Mulcahy, 47-year-old liquor store employe and father of two.

An employe of the store for 10 years, Mulcahy was alone at the time of the shooting. An unidentified customer found the body about 15 minutes after the shooting.

Owner Gene Ricca said Mulcahy and other employes had been instructed not to resist during any holdup attempts. He said the store was robbed about a year ago while Mulcahy was on duty and at that time Mulcahy offered no resistence although he was struck by the robber.

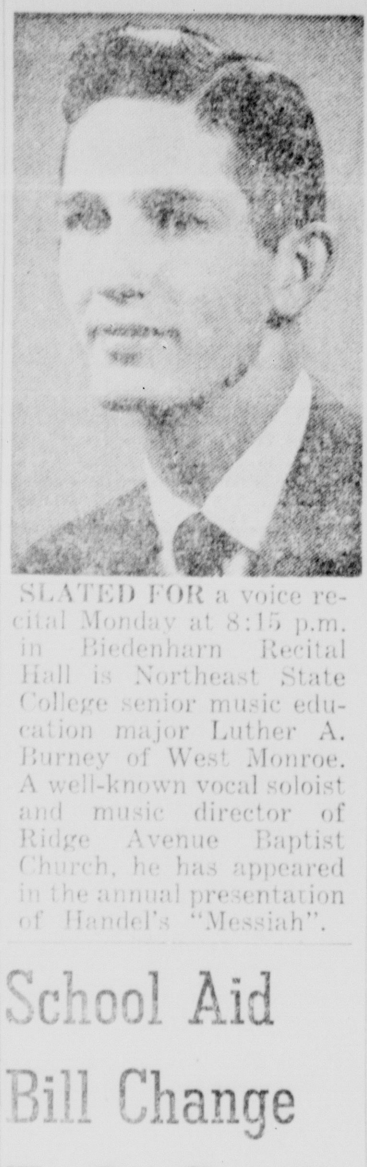
Snow Virtually Halts Travel In Two States

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A wind-driven May snowstorm virtually halted travel in the southeastern corner of Wyoming and the northern portion of Colorado Saturday.

Snow fell steadily for more than 12 hours over most of the two-state area and the Weather Bureau said little letup could be expected before Sunday morning. Most of the snow melted as it hit the ground. But several inches were on the ground by evening at Cheyenne and Laramie in Wyoming.

Winds of up to 40 miles an hour whipped up snow on highways in southeastern Wyoming. The highway patrol permitted travel only if essential on U.S. Highway 30 between Cheyenne and Laramie.

Two major highways were closed by blizzards and fog in northeastern Colorado—U.S. Highway 287 between Fort Collins and Laramie, Wyo., and U.S. 85-87 between Denver and Cheyenne.



SLATED FOR a voice recital Monday at 8:15 p.m. in Biedenharn Recital Hall is Northeast State College senior music education major Luther A. Burney of West Monroe. School Aid Bill Change To Be Sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D - Ga., will try to change the federal aid-to-education bill to make sure the government cannot cut off funds to segregated schools, it was learned Saturday.

He has drafted a 11 - word amendment to the $2.55 billion program of school construction and help for teachers' salaries. He plans to introduce it soon after the Senate takes up the measure Tuesday.

The bill, as drafted by the Senate Labor and Education Committee, provides that the government cannot exercise any control over the public school system during the three - year aid program. The Talmadge amendment adds the phrase "...or withhold any funds which would be provided under the act."

A subcommittee heard a Roman Catholic spokesman say that Congress should provide federal funds to help private schools buy laboratory equipment and teaching materials that are now provided for public schools.

Raymond F. McCoy, dean of the graduate school of Xavier University, Cincinnati, made the request as spokesman for the National Catholic Welfare Conference during a hearing on extension of the National Defense Education Act. It drew immediate opposition from Protestant spokesmen.

Officers stated that the hasp was pried off the back door of the business to gain entrance and an undetermined amount of merchandise was taken. It was not known if any cash was taken.

J. B. Grayson of 102 South Second St. reported that a tool box containing television tubes and wrenches was taken from his truck sometime during the night Friday. Officers are investigating the theft. Merchandise was valued at approximately $400.

The theft of a portable top to a small foreign - made sports car is also being investigated. Donald Pierce of 1503 Emerson St. told the police that the white top to his Triumph automobile was taken sometime Friday night while the car was parked. It is a snap-on top.

The theft of clothes from a clothesline at 1615 Cole Ave. is also being probed by Monroe officers. Walter Linstrom told police that three pair of blue jeans and three sets of pants stretchers were taken from their clothes line where the family wash was hanging. The theft took place between 6:30 and 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

3 On State Board Draw $18,000 Pay

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Shreveport Times, in its Sunday edition, said the State Employment Security Division paid its politically - appointed three-member board of review more than $18,000 between May 1960 and April 1961.

In a dispatch from Baton Rouge, the paper said a check of the division's records showed the money was paid to Leon Martin of Maringouin; Mrs. Blanche Long, widow of former Gov. Earl K. Long; and Kermit Williams, Baton Rouge real estate dealer.

It listed these total amounts: Martin $6,406, Mrs. Long $5,120, and Williams $6,120.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

Richard Clark, director, has announced that the opening date for the final production of the Monroe Little Theatre will be Thursday, June 1st.

The play is the 1956 Pulitzer Prize winning production, "The Diary of Anne Frank," a drama. It will run for five nights, including Sunday, and curtain time is 8:15 each night.

The properties mentioned in last week's column have still not been secured. Look around in your garage or attic and see if you can find an iron bedstead, an old sofa which makes into a bed by pulling out the bottom, a pipe frame wash stand, a two-burner gas hot plate and a chaise lounge.

USED

All the furniture should be thoroughly used. If you have any of these items or know where we can obtain same, please call Richard Clark at FAirfax 5-8710, or at the Theatre.

Word comes that Miss Gerry Kenney is currently appearing in Peter Ustinoff's "The Love of Four Colonels," as the "good fairy." The production is being presented by the Little Theatre group of Atlanta, Gesorgia.

HOME WEEK

Seems that it was old home week in New York for Jack Ansell last week when he happened to run into Margaret Gardner, Arthur McKnight, and Ivan Uttal, all in the same evening.

Mrs. E. B. Ellison, James R. Henry, Julius Cahn, Russell Kettenring, and Myrtle Carter. Congratulations. We know you will serve the Little Theatre of Monroe well, as you have its interest at heart. We appreciate each of you.

"Bye Bye Birdie" received the Toni award for distinguished achievement on the Broadway stage and for the outstanding musical. Gower Champion, the choreographer of "Bye Bye Birdie," received two awards, and Dick Van Dyke of "Birdie," received an award for supporting actor.

Remember to keep the date of June 1st in mind, and plan now to see this moving drama.

See you next week.

Fox Is Winner Of Seat On Bastrop Council

BASTROP (Special) — Incumbent Bastrop City Councilman Bill Blacat was unseated in his bid for re-election yesterday in a Democratic primary runoff here. Harry Fox, an International Paper Co. engineer, will take over the post.

He telephoned his appreciation to Bastrop after hearing the results of the election. Fox said, "I deeply appreciate the people of Bastrop's trust in me and would like to express appreciation to all my friends in Bastrop for their help."

The paraders were dispersed before police arrived to stop the fighting. SOLVES HOME PROBLEM

Mother Of 11 Will Join College Coeds

SILVERHILL, Ala. (AP)—Mrs. E.M. Lores wanted to attend Auburn University this summer. But she had a problem:

What to do with Skeets, 13, and Jonny, 12, while she was at school. And what to do with Beth and Jimmy, 10. And Vicki an Micky, 9. And Tim, 8. And David and Dwight, 7. And Elisa and Denise, 5.

Now the problem has been solved. Her older children will stay at home and help their father — who works at a shipyard in nearby Mobile — in running the family farm. Four will visit relatives and friends in Mississippi. And the two youngest will go with Mrs. Lores to Auburn, where she will live with relatives.

Why does a 32-year-old mother of 11 want to go to school? She said she will study for a degree in agriculture in order to learn how to better run the farm.

The older boys have a herd of beef cattle. Beef profits will be laid by for the children's education.

Beth and Jimmy, the oldest of the four sets of twins, do all the family ironing — Jimmy for the boys and Beth for the girls. Beth also does much of the sewing and Jimmy helps his older brothers some.

The farm provides 60 per cent of the family's food needs and also brings in money. The money crops this year will be pecans and soybeans.

Mothers Aged 70 To 94 Get Annual Tribute

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (AP) —Four hundred mothers ranging in age from 70 to 94 were honored Saturday at an annual tribute to motherhood.

The Lehighton American Legion post was the setting for the Mother's Day party given by Richard Edwards, local department store executive. Edwards began his parties in 1939 for mothers 70 years old or more. Each year he invites them to dinner and a day of fun and reminiscing.

Edwards, who will be 70 next Wednesday, noted: "I am officially attending my party for the first time."

Pair To Face Trial Monday For Murder

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—"We are going to face that jury together and take whatever they give us togethers."

Carolyn Ann Lima, 18, sat across from him and grinned.

Ashley and Miss Lima are scheduled to go on trial Monday for the Feb. 6 gun-torch murder of Fred Tones, 43, a real estate dealer whose nude body was set on fire in a drainage ditch.

Dist. Atty. Frank Brisco says he will ask the death penalty for the young couple when the joint trial opens. Jack Knight, who has said many details of the case will be unprintable, will defend the couple.

Ashley, a female impersonator, and Miss Lima were arrested by FBI agents in New York City after Tones' white sedan was found abandoned with a flat tire on a Manhattan street. They waived extradition and have been held without bond.

Police said Tones was struck by six bullets before his body was doused with gasoline and set afire.

After being returned here, Ashley and Miss Lima told police and reporters Ashley fired the first shot during a scuffle on Tones' office. They said Miss Lima then picked up a pistol and fired five shots.

"I never think about the outcome of the trial, especially the electric chair," Ashley said. "I just put it out of my head."

"I've thought about it plenty—too much in fact," said Carolyn, a hairdresser.

Carolyn said she is four months pregnant by Ashley.

"Would they let me have my baby before I go to prison, that is if I have to go, or before they put me in the electric chair?" she asked. "Surely they would."

Ashley said they plan to be married as soon as the trial is over. "Something about testifying against each other or something like that."

Negro Is Caught In Building; Booked By Police

Winfred Young of 1652 Poland St., Shreveport, was found in Ryan's Variety Store at 813 DeSiard St. about 1 a.m. after he had broken a front door glass to gain entrance.

A patrolman on duty noticed the broken glass and after radioing for help the arrest was made. The young Negro is wanted for parole violation in California, Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Warehouse Blaze Damages $250,000

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Fire destroyed a warehouse i na congested downtown area Saturday night, causing an estimated $250,000 damages.

5 Generals Arrested In Iran Cleanup

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's reform premier, Ali Amini, launched his promised drive against corruption with the arrest of five army generals Saturday night, a top government source announced.

Two of the generals listed by the informant were Cabinet ministers in the government of Sharif Emami which was toppled last week.

The generals were identified by the source as Haj Ali Kia, former chief of military intelligence; Alavi Moghaddam, former minister of interior; Ali Akbar Zargham, former finance minister; Ruhullan Novisi, former director of the Fishery Department, and Mohammed Daftari, former chief of army ammunition.

The government source said the arrest of the generals was only the beginning of the crackdown. He said that in the next few days "at least 100" civilians, including former Cabinet ministers, would be arrested on corruption charges for trial in civil courts.

A senior security authority emphasized that the five generals were arrested in connection with the government's anticorruption drive and not for political reasons.

He denied rumors that the officers were involved in planning an antigovernment coup.

The generals were arrested after receiving written orders to report to military police headquarters, the source said.

Kia has been in charge of a government department known as "J2" for five years. Department activities have been severely criticized by the press.

Zargham was in charge of the Finance Ministry from 1958 until a month ago.

Amini said in a radio speech when he took over the premiership that the country was broke and declared that government funds had been used for personal purposes.

The arrests came after Amini warned Tehran newspapers not to abuse the press freedom he granted them on taking office. The papers, enjoying the absence of censorship for the first time since 1950, had a field day publishing reports that up to 140 army generals, ministers and ex-officials would be arrested on corruption charges.

There have been rumors of mounting dissatisfaction in the army as a result of the newspaper stories.

An organization calling itself the Guardians of Freedom Saturday warned Amini against violating Iran's constitution by courtmartialing a Tehran University professor, Dr. Mozzafr Baghaei, 55.

Baghaei was arrested Jan. 31 on charges he encouraged security officers to disobey their superiors.

Negro Man Dies Of Injuries When Hit By Car

A Negro man died at a local hospital last night from injuries he received after he apparently walked into the path of a car on the Milhaven Road around 8 p.m.

Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John Burton said that Charlie Munson, age unknown, of route one, box 64, Monroe died from multiple compound fractures of the leg, pelvis and also head injuries.

Investigating state police said he was thrown 18 feet by a car driven by George McClendon, 23, of 1408 South 10th St., Monroe.

State police had made no charges against McClendon last night. He said that he saw the Negro only a split second before striking him.

Attlee Arrives For U.S. Visit, Gives Comments

NEW YORK (AP) — Former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee arrived Saturday night by plane from London and quickly offered these comments on world affairs:

Cuba — "They're a bit short of democracy in Cuba."

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro — "Not a democratic leader."

U.S. policy on Cuba — "I never criticize a country where I am a guest."

The former Labor party leader said he plans to confer in Washington with President Kennedy and also visit Dublin, N.H.; Chicago, and Ottawa on a 10-day visit.

Kennedys Draw More Visitors To White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reported Saturday its popularity as a tourist attraction has bounced up sharply since the Kennedys moved in.

From February through April — President Kennedy moved in Jan. 20 — there was a 27.5 per cent increase in the number visiting the White House, compared with the 1960 figures.

There were 50,000 more visitors during the three months than during the same period last year.

For the regular tours, the total rose from 201,000 to 273,000, a 26.4 per cent jump over 1960. Regular tours are conducted Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

There was an even larger increase for the special tours — 42.5 per cent. These are conducted on request from members of Congress, the Cabinet, or other executive offices.

Study Shows Dust Helps Create Stars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — An astronomer has found that giant red stars, burning themselves up in space, generate vast clouds of dust that ultimately help to create new stars.

Scientists have long known of great clouds of hydrogen gas in galaxies. They have detected, along with it, the dust of heavier elements. But the source of neither was known.

Dr. Armin J. Deutsch of Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories has discovered that the heavier elements come from red stars millions of miles in diameter.

Some of these stars continuously discharge matter at the almost unbelievable rate of a trillion tons per second. The matter sweeps like a great wind billions of miles through space. Sometimes, in processes not fully understood, it and the more plentiful hydrogen condense to form new stars. The source of the hydrogen is still a mystery.

Dr. Deutsch discovered the winds in studies of Alpha Herculis, a star 186 million miles in diameter. This is about the diameter of our earth's orbit around our own sun, which measures a mere 864,000 miles through the center.

Gases such as blow from Alpha Herculis also stream outward from our sun, but on a much smaller scale.

Man Discovers Officers Have Long Memory

WEST WARWICK, R.I. (AP)—The winner of $140,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes didn't think the police would remember something that happened more than a decade ago. But they did.

Albert Diorio, 47, a Long Beach, Calif., bus driver formerly of Providence, R.I., is being held on three 12-year-old indictments charging him with breaking into Rhode Island business establishments.

But first Diorio wanted to visit old friends and relatives in Rhode Island. While he was at it he dropped into the office of the Providence Bulletin. He volunteered the story of his winnings and said he was going to give $20,000 to charity.

The story appeared on page one. The police spotted it, remembered him, and picked him up Saturday at the home of a sister-in-law in Providence.

INTEREST, DIVIDENDS

JFK Tax Program May Nab Evaders

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If Congress goes along with President Kennedy's tax program, some Americans are going to be more than slightly embarrassed.

The embarrassment will come from the proposed withholding tax on interest and dividends.

For years the tax collector has regarded this as the biggest source of tax evasion.

Uncle Sam knows approximately how much interest is paid on savings accounts and how much is paid out in corporate dividends. And he knows he is not collecting taxes on a big chunk of it. Some, of course, goes to people who don't have to pay taxes — those who don't have enough income to report. These are mostly oldsters living on pensions or their past savings.

But if all the dividends and interest of all the oldsters were exempted from taxes, there would still be a big hole in the amount being reported to the Treasury for tax purposes.

The government is out to fill that hole. Kennedy has proposed the withholding feature. In other words, before the bank or the savings and loan institution or the building loan corporation paid interest to you, it would deduct the government's tax share — 20 per cent.

You would get a note from your bank or corporation saying the 20 per cent cut had already been sent to the Treasury. And when the time came to make your tax report, there would be a special place where you would list all dividends and interest and then also list the 20 per cent tax the government already had collected.

Since there has been widespread evasion, some persons would be filing dividend and interest taxes for the first time. Suppose you showed up with a $1,000 interest which you never reported before.

Normal procedure covering this would be for you to get a polite but firm request to show the revenue service when you opened the savings account or bought the dividend-paying stock.

If you have been collecting this interest or dividends for years, you would have been evading your share of the national tax bill. And you might get a much firmer request to pay up—or else.

You of course could skip reporting such income and keep violating the law. But some day Uncle Sam will catch up—probably through a dual reporting system whereby the government as well as you gets notified of the withholding.

Women Voters Ask Division Of Precincts

A spokesman for the Voters Service Department of the League of Women Voters has called for the division of at least three Ouachita parish voting precincts because there are "entirely too many voters registered there to properly handle them on election days.'

These voting places were identified as the Fairgrounds precinct in West Monroe, Matlock's grocery and Lee Junior High School in Monroe.

The League spokesman was Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, who released this recommendation to the Morning World in a communication Saturday from Jackson, Tenn. where she is recovering from an illness at the home of her son.

"We believe the Police Jury will soon agree to some divisions" in overcrowded precincts, Mrs. Manhain said.

Nothing should be allowed to discourage our voters from going to the polls and casting ballots on all election days, she declared. "There is entirely too much negligence on the part of our voters, both men and women, when it comes to voting.

"The League of Women Voters is making every effort to encourage new voters and to teach them how to vote intelligently," Mrs. Manhein said.

She also pointed out that the League will conduct classes Wednesday, May 17th at the student center at Northeast State College where young voters will b taught the proper manner in which to cast their ballots. Voting machines and instructors will be on hand from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to instruct anyone interested in learning more details about the mechanics of casting a ballot.

"We call this our 21 years birthday party," Mrs. Manhein declared. She explained that persons becoming 21 years of age also become voting age.

Solon Says Loose Talk Aids Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said Saturday loose-tongued Americans do Soviet spies' work for them when they leak defense secrets.

Cannon said, "Time and time again I have been amazed to discover the wealth of invaluable information about our weapons systems and defense facilities" that becomes public.

Cannon's remarks were in a speech prepared for the District of Columbia Reserve Officers Association. He is an Air Force Reserve Brigadier General.

He appeared to be striking at Defense Department leaks, at talkative members of Congress and at weapons makers who like to praise their own products.

Cannon said the Soviet Embassy on 16th Street houses 350 employes "dedicated to espionage. We are doing the work of the spies for them."

"We are needlessly, an to our everlasting discredit, providing a type of information for a potential and dedicated enemy who would shoot their own citizens if they ever provided our government with similar data," he said.

The senator said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had made a "healthy start" toward closing leaks. Cannon said he hoped it will lead to a balance between "information that can serve our enemy and knowledge of our defense posture which the public is entitled to have and should have."

"We can pick up magazines and even newspapers on any news stand and find there specifications for secret systems of defense, exact locations, number of men and full inventory of hardware for virtually every base that America has throughout the world," Cannon said.

Six In Family Found Dead

LOCKPORT, Ill. (AP)—A mother and father and four of their children were found dead Saturday in their homes near this northern Illinois town. Authorities termed the deaths murder and suicide.

Lee Ruphard, chief deputy sheriff, said Charles Pitelka, 34, apparently killed his wife, Vivian, 33, by shooting or beating, then took his own life and those of four of their five children by asphyxiation. The deaths of the children could have been accidental.

Later, however, Coroner Willard Blood said there were indications the children may have been poisoned, as they appeared to have had convulsions. He ordered an autopsy.

One of the children, Francine, 10 months old, was still alive when sheriffs deputies reached the home in a rural area after neighbors became alarmed. She was taken to Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet.

Ruphard said Pitelka apparently killed his wife and then climbed into his car in a garage adjoining the home and turned on the engine.

The chief deputy said carbon monoxide fumes from the engine seeped into the home through an open door leading from the garage and asphyxiated four of the children as they slept.

4 Union Parish Residents Hurt In 2-Car Crash

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Four persons were injured, apparently none seriously, in a two-car collision about four miles east of here on the Marion road late yesterday.

Injured were Mrs. Kay W. Holstead and her daughter Tina Bowen, both of Marion, and Mrs. Charles Kennedy and her small daughter. The Kennedys live about 6 miles from Farmerville on the Marion road.

Sources said that Mrs. Holstead was traveling toward Marion when her car collided with the other car driven by Mrs. Kennedy.

The Kennedys were taken to a clinic here by a passing motorist. Mrs. Kennedy suffered bruises and a fractured knee and the child was bruised.

Mrs. Holstead was carried by Kilpatrick ambulance to the Marion clinic. She suffered a fractured knee and bruises and her daughter had facial lacerations and bruises.

PAR CLAIMS

State Could Save By Tightening Up

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Suggestions for tightening state operations to save estimated millions of dollars were offered today by the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) in its Legislative Bulletin.

Summarizing some of its research of recent months and years, PAR offered these items:

1. Investmesnt of the state's idle cash — estimated to yield revenue at a potential of $2 million a year, or more, based on operations of the past fiscal year.

2. Changing the formula for allotting teachers to local school systems to place this on a parish-wide basis instead of a school-by-school basis. "Millions could be saved by this approach," PAR said, "and consolidation of small, inadequate schools would be hastened, thereby upgrading the educational program of the state."

3. Restricting school bus service to children living more than a mile from a school — as prescribed by present law — which could mean "substantial savings."

4. Tighter control of state funds within agency budgets to prevent transfers of funds from one category to another and to hold spending within the total authorized amount, even though income from special sources may produce more revenue than estimated. Some agencies operating out of dedicated funds, in particular, have hiked spending above amounts originally appropriated.

RIGID CONTROL

5. More rigid control of personnel to restrict employment to positions approved in the budget. If personnel had been held within budgeted amounts in the last fiscal year, for example, and the amounts not spent for other purposes, the saving would have been $2.5 million.

6. Limiting the initiation or expansion of programs by requiring legislative approval before putting them into effect. In February 1960, for example, the welfare board approved an increase in welfare grants, without legislative approval, which cost the state $9 million a year.

In listing these items, PAR noted the legislature would be confronted with some difficulties in balancing the state budget for the coming fiscal year and avoiding tax increases in the future. In recent years, budgets have been supported in part by accumulated surpluses which have now been nearly exhausted.

PAR recently published a study on investment of the state's idle funds which showed the state could have earned about $12.8 million in the past five and a half years by investing idle cash balances in the treasury, welfare, and highway departments. Louisiana is one of three states which do not now have investment programs.

In reference to the procedure for allotting teachers under the state's equalization formula, PAR said the allotment on a school-by-school basis "favors parishes with small, inadequate schools over the parishes that have larger, consolidated schools."

If teachers were approved on the total number of pupils in the public schools of each parish, it would result in "substantial savings to the state."

Present spending for school transportation by the state amounts to $18 million a year, PAR reported. According to a study of school transportation made several years ago by school superintendents, and cited by PAR, many parishes transport children living within a mile of schools they attend, which is contrary to state law. A recent study placed this cost of illegal bus operations at $28,000 for East Baton Rouge Parish. The state reimburses schools for transportation costs.

Referring to possibilities in tighter control of state agency spending, PAR made these points:

1. Present law limiting transfers of funds within agency budgets to emergency situations "should be more stringently enforced." Many agencies ended the fiscal year 1958-59 with zero balances which was possible only through transfer of their funds. They would have had more money to return to the state general fund if the transfers had been held down more rigidly.

2. During the fiscal year 1959-60, some 80 budget units spent $6.5 million more than was appropriated, because of special revenue sources. If spending had been held to the budgeted figure, some part of the $6.5 million could have been returned to the state.

3. A reduction in the rate of growth of state employment could be achieved if the number of positions filled were limited to the number authorized in the budget of each agency. If personnel had been held to the number authorized in 1959-60 budget, the saving that year to the state would have been $2.5 million.

Reporting on employee growth trends, as shown by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, PAR said there was a growth of two per cent in the year ending October 1, 1960 and 3.6 per cent in the prior year.

Growth in the classified state service since June 30, 1960 has been about three per cent resulting in the addition of 874 employees in nine months. Data on all employees of the state is not available from any central source in Louisiana.

3 On State Board Draw $18,000 Pay

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Shreveport Times, in its Sunday edition, said the State Employment Security Division paid its politically - appointed three-member board of review more than $18,000 between May 1960 and April 1961.

In a dispatch from Baton Rouge, the paper said a check of the division's records showed the money was paid to Leon Martin of Maringouin; Mrs. Blanche Long, widow of former Gov. Earl K. Long; and Kermit Williams, Baton Rouge real estate dealer.

Martin was replaced in April on the board by W. B. Parish, business agent for the building trade council.

The Times said most of the money was paid in per diem for board meetings at the rate of $40 per session.

It listed these total amounts: Martin $6,406, Mrs. Long $5,120, and Williams $6,120.

The board hears appeals from persons filing unemployment claims with the employment security division.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

[illegible] Clark, director, has announced that the opening date for the final production of the Monroe Little Theatre will be Thursday, June 1st.

The play is the 1956 Pulitzer Prize winning production, "The Diary of Anne Frank," a drama. It will run for five nights, including Sunday, and curtain time is 8:15 each night.

The properties mentioned in last week's column have still not been secured. Look around in your garage or attic and see if you can find an iron bedstead, an old sofa which makes into a bed by pulling out the bottom, a pipe frame wash stand, a two-burner gas hot plate and a chaise lounge.

USED

All the furniture should be thoroughly used. If you have any of these items or know where we can obtain same, please call Richard Clark at FAirfax 5-8710, or at the Theatre.

Word comes that Mrs. Gerry Kennedy is currently appearing in Peter Ustinoff's "The Love of Four Colonels," as the "good fairy." The production is being presented by the Little Theatre group of Atlanta, Georgia.

HOME WEEK

Seems that it was old home week in New York for Jack Anthony last week when he happened to run into Margaret Gardner, Arthur McKnight, and Ivan Utley, all in the same evening.

The following board members were elected at the annual meeting:

Mrs. E. B. Ellison, James R. Hervey, Julius Cahn, Russell Kettering, and Myrtle Carter. Congratulations. We know you will serve the Little Theatre of Monroe well, as you have its interest at heart. We appreciate each of you.

"Bye Bye Birdie" received the Tony award for distinguished achievement on the Broadway stage and for the outstanding musical. Gower Champion, the choreographer of "Bye Bye Birdie," received two awards, and Dick Van Dyke of "Birdie," received an award for supporting role.

Remember to keep the date of June 1st in mind, and plan now to see this moving drama.

See you next week.

He telephoned his appreciation to Bastrop after hearing the results of the election, Fox said, "I deeply appreciate the people of Bastrop's trust in me and would like to express appreciation to all my friends in Bastrop for their help."

SOLVES HOME PROBLEM

Mother Of 11 Will Join College Coeds

SILVERHILL, Ala. (AP)—Mrs. E. M. Lores wanted to attend Auburn University this summer. But she had a problem:

What to do with Skeets, 13, and Jonny, 12, while she was at school. And what to do with Beth and Jimmy, 10. And Vicki an Micky, 9 And Tim, 8. And David and Dwight, 7. And Elisa and Denise, 5.

Now the problem has been solved. Her older children will stay at home and help their father — who works at a shipyard in nearby Mobile — in running the family farm. Four will visit relatives and friends in Mississippi. And the two youngest will go with Mrs. Lores to Auburn, where she will live with relatives.

Why does a 32-year-old mother of 11 want to go to school? She said she will study for a degree in agriculture in order to learn how to better run the farm.

The older boys have a herd of beef cattle. Beef profits will be laid by for the children's education.

When Skeets and Jonny get home from school each day they tend the cattle, plow fields and handle other jobs.

Beth and Jimmy, the oldest of the four sets of twins, do all the family ironing — Jimmy for the boys and Beth for the girls. Beth also does much of the sewing and Jimmy helps his older brothers some.

Vicki, Micky and Tim clean the dishes and tend the yards and the house.

David and Dwight help in the garden and have their chores. The 5-year-olds, Elisa and Denise, empty trash baskets, sweep floors and try to keep from messing up too many things.

The farm provides 60 per cent of the family's food needs and also brings in money. The money crops this year will be pecans and soybeans.

After her summer at Auburn, Mrs. Lores plans to attend the University of Alabama center at Mobile for other courses toward degree.

Mothers Aged 70 To 94 Get Annual Tribute

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (AP) —Four hundred mothers ranging in age from 70 to 94 were honored Saturday at an annual tribute to motherhood.

The Lehighton American Legion post was the setting for the Mother's Day party given by Richard Edwards, local department store executive. Edwards began his parties in 1939 for mothers 70 years old or more. Each year he invites them to dinner and a day of fun and reminiscing.

Edwards, who will be 70 next Wednesday, noted: "I am officially attending my party for the first time."

Pair To Face Trial Monday For Murder

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—"We are going to face that jury together and take whatever they give us togethers."

Carolyn Ann Lima, 18, sat across from him and grinned.

Ashley and Miss Lima are scheduled to go on trial Monday for the Feb. 6 gun-torch murder of Fred Tones, 43, a real estate dealer whose nude body was set on fire in a drainage ditch.

Dist. Atty. Frank Brisco says he will ask the death penalty for the young couple when the joint trial opens. Jack Knight, who has said many details of the case will be unprintable, will defend the couple.

Ashley, a female impersonator, and Miss Lima were arrested by FBI agents in New York City after Tones' white sedan was found abandoned with a flat tire on a Manhattan street. They waived extradition and have been held without bond.

Police said Tones was struck by six bullets before his body was doused with gasoline and set afire.

After being returned here, Ashley and Miss Lima told police and reporters Ashley fired the first shot during a scuffle on Tones' office. They said Miss Lima then picked up a pistol and fired five shots.

"I never think about the outcome of the trial, especially the electric chair," Ashley said. "I just put it out of my head."

"I've thought about it plenty—too much in fact," said Carolyn, a hairdresser.

Carolyn said she is four months pregnant by Ashley.

"Would they let me" have my baby before I go to prison, that is if I have to go, or before they put me in the electric chair?" she asked. "Surely they would."

Ashley said they plan to be married as soon as the trial is over. "Something about testifying against each other or something like that."

Negro Is Caught In Building; Booked By Police

Winfred Young of 1652 Poland St., Shreveport, was found in Ryan's Variety Store at 813 DeSiard St. about 1 a.m. after he had broken a front door glass to gain entrance.

A patrolman on duty noticed the broken glass and after radioing for help the arrest was made. The young Negro is wanted for parole violation in California, Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Warehouse Blaze Damages $250,000

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Fire destroyed a warehouse i na congested downtown area Saturday night, causing an estimated $250,000 damages.

About 150 persons were temporarily evacuated from a nearby theater, an apartment house and several smaller dwellings.

5 Generals Arrested In Iran Cleanup

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's reform premier, Ali Amini, launched his promised drive against corruption with the arrest of five army generals Saturday night, a top government source announced.

Two of the generals listed by the informant were Cabinet ministers in the government of Sharif Emami which was toppled last week.

The generals were identified by the source as Haj Ali Kia, former chief of military intelligence; Alavi Moghaddam, former minister of interior; Ali Akbar Zargham, former finance minister; Ruhullan Novisi, former director of the Fishery Department, and Mohammed Daftari, former chief of army ammunition.

The government source said the arrest of the generals was only the beginning of the crackdown. He said that in the next few days "at least 100" civilians, including former Cabinet ministers, would be arrested on corruption charges for trial in civil courts.

A senior security authority emphasized that the five generals were arrested in connection with the government's anticorruption drive and not for political reasons.

He denied rumors that the officers were involved in planning an antigovernment coup.

The generals were arrested after receiving written orders to report to military police headquarters, the source said.

Kia has been in charge of a government department known as "J2" for five years. Department activities have been severely criticized by the press.

Moghaddam, also a former chief of police, had come under press fire for alleged rigging of the Majlis — parliamentary — elections.

Zargham was in charge of the Finance Ministry from 1958 until a month ago.

Amini said in a radio speech when he took over the premiership that the country was broke and declared that government funds had been used for personal purposes.

The arrests came after Amini warned Tehran newspapers not to abuse the press freedom he granted them on taking office. The papers, enjoying the absence of censorship for the first time since 1950, had a field day publishing reports that up to 140 army generals, ministers and ex-officials would be arrested on corruption charges.

There have been rumors of mounting dissatisfaction in the army as a result of the newspaper stories.

An organization calling itself the Guardians of Freedom Saturday warned Amini against violating Iran's constitution by courtmartialing a Tehran University professor, Dr. Mozzafr Baghaei, 55.

Baghaei was arrested Jan. 31 on charges he encouraged security officers to disobey their superiors.

Negro Man Dies Of Injuries When Hit By Car

A Negro man died at a local hospital last night from injuries he received after he apparently walked into the path of a car on the Milhaven Road around 8 p.m.

Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John Burton said that Charlie Munson, age unknown, of route one, box 64, Monroe died from multiple compound fractures of the leg, pelvis and also head injuries.

Investigating state police said he was thrown 18 feet by a car driven by George McClendon, 23, of 1408 South 10th St., Monroe.

McClendon was traveling east on the Milhaven Road. Troopers said that Munson crossed the highway from the north to the south side, and walked right into the left front fender of McClendon's automobile.

The accident occurred eight-tenths of a mile east of Monroe city limits on Louisiana Highway 594, known locally as the Milhaven Road.

State police had made no charges against McClendon last night. He said that he saw the Negro only a split second before striking him.

Attlee Arrives For U.S. Visit, Gives Comments

NEW YORK (AP) — Former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee arrived Saturday night by plane from London and quickly offered these comments on world affairs:

Cuba — "They're a bit short of democracy in Cuba."

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro — "Not a democratic leader."

Over-all world situation — "Might be better — a few sore spots."

U.S. policy on Cuba — "I never criticize a country where I am a guest."

The former Labor party leader said he plans to confer in Washington with President Kennedy and also visit Dublin, N.H.; Chicago, and Ottawa on a 10-day visit.

INTEREST, DIVIDENDS

JFK Tax Program May Nab Evaders

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If Congress goes along with President Kennedy's tax program, some Americans are going to be more than slightly embarrassed.

The embarrassment will come from the proposed withholding tax on interest and dividends.

For years the tax collector has regarded this as the biggest source of tax evasion.

Uncle Sam knows approximately how much interest is paid on savings accounts and how much is paid out in corporate dividends. And he knows he is not collecting taxes on a big chunk of it. Some, of course, goes to people who don't have to pay taxes — those who don't have enough income to report. These are mostly oldsters living on pensions or their past savings.

But if all the dividends and interest of all the oldsters were exempted from taxes, there would still be a big hole in the amount being reported to the Treasury for tax purposes.

The government is out to fill that hole. Kennedy has proposed the withholding feature. In other words, before the bank or the savings and loan institution or the building loan corporation paid interest to you, it would deduct the government's tax share — 20 per cent.

The same would go for dividends paid by corporations and for bonds you cashed at the bank.

You would get a note from your bank or corporation saying the 20 per cent cut had already been sent to the Treasury. And when the time came to make your tax report, there would be a special place where you would list all dividends and interest and then also list the 20 per cent tax the government already had collected.

The taxes you owe would be reduced by the amount already deducted.

Where would the embarrassment come in?

Since there has been widespread evasion, some persons would be filing dividend and interest taxes for the first time. Suppose you showed up with a $1,000 interest which you never reported before.

Normal procedure covering this would be for you to get a polite but firm request to show the revenue service when you opened the savings account or bought the dividend-paying stock.

If you have been collecting this interest or dividends for years, you would have been evading your share of the national tax bill. And you might get a much firmer request to pay up—or else.

You of course could skip reporting such income and keep violating the law. But some day Uncle Sam will catch up—probably through a dual reporting system whereby the government as well as you gets notified of the withholding.

If that happens, evaders won't have a chance.

Women Voters Ask Division Of Precincts

A spokesman for the Voters Service Department of the League of Women Voters has called for the division of at least three Ouachita parish voting precincts because there are "entirely too many voters registered there to properly handle them on election days.'

These voting places were identified as the Fairgrounds precinct in West Monroe, Matlock's grocery and Lee Junior High School in Monroe.

The League spokesman was Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, who released this recommendation to the Morning World in a communication Saturday from Jackson, Tenn. where she is recovering from an illness at the home of her son.

"We believe the Police Jury will soon agree to some divisions" in overcrowded precincts, Mrs. Manhain said.

Nothing should be allowed to discourage our voters from going to the polls and casting ballots on all election days, she declared. "There is entirely too much negligence on the part of our voters, both men and women, when it comes to voting.

"The League of Women Voters is making every effort to encourage new voters and to teach them how to vote intelligently." Mrs. Manhein said.

She also pointed out that the League will conduct classes Wednesday, May 17th at the student center at Northeast State College where young voters will b taught the proper manner in which to cast their ballots. Voting machines and instructors will be on hand from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to instruct anyone interested in learning more details about the mechanics of casting a ballot.

"We call this our 21 years birthday party." Mrs. Manhein declared. She explained that persons becoming 21 years of age also become voting age.

Solon Says Loose Talk Aids Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said Saturday loose-tongued Americans do Soviet spies' work for them when they leak defense secrets.

Cannon said, "Time and time again I have been amazed to discover the wealth of invaluable information about our weapons systems and defense facilities" that becomes public.

Cannon's remarks were in a speech prepared for the District of Columbia Reserve Officers Association. He is an Air Force Reserve Brigadier General.

He appeared to be striking at Defense Department leaks, at talkative members of Congress and at weapons makers who like to praise their own products.

Cannon said the Soviet Embassy on 16th Street houses 350 employes "dedicated to espionage. We are doing the work of the spies for them."

"We are needlessly, an to our everlasting discredit, providing a type of information for a potential and dedicated enemy who would shoot their own citizens if they ever provided our government with similar data," he said.

The senator said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had made a "healthy start" toward closing leaks. Cannon said he hoped it will lead to a balance between "information that can serve our enemy and knowledge of our defense posture which the public is entitled to have and should have."

"We can pick up magazines and even newspapers on any news stand and find there specifications for secret systems of defense, exact locations, number of men and full inventory of hardware for virtually every base that America has throughout the world," Cannon said.

Six In Family Found Dead

LOCKPORT, Ill. (AP)—A mother and father and four of their children were found dead Saturday in their homes near this northern Illinois town. Authorities termed the deaths murder and suicide.

Lee Ruphard, chief deputy sheriff, said Charles Pitelka, 34, apparently killed his wife, Vivian, 33, by shooting or beating, then took his own life and those of four of their five children by asphyxiation. The deaths of the children could have been accidental.

Later, however, Coroner Willard Blood said there were indications the children may have been poisoned, as they appeared to have had convulsions. He ordered an autopsy.

One of the children, Francine, 10 months old, was still alive when sheriffs deputies reached the home in a rural area after neighbors became alarmed. She was taken to Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet.

Authorities identified the dead children as Charlene, 10, Edward, 8, John, 6, and Thomas, 5.

Ruphard said Pitelka apparently killed his wife and then climbed into his car in a garage adjoining the home and turned on the engine.

The chief deputy said carbon monoxide fumes from the engine seeped into the home through an open door leading from the garage and asphyxiated four of the children as they slept.

4 Union Parish Residents Hurt In 2-Car Crash

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Four persons were injured, apparently none seriously, in a two-car collision about four miles east of here on the Marion road late yesterday.

Injured were Mrs. Kay W. Holstead and her daughter Tina Bowen, both of Marion, and Mrs. Charles Kennedy and her small daughter. The Kennedys live about 6 miles from Farmerville on the Marion road.

Sources said that Mrs. Holstead was traveling toward Marion when her car collided with the other car driven by Mrs. Kennedy.

The Kennedys were taken to a clinic here by a passing motorist. Mrs. Kennedy suffered bruises and a fractured knee and the child was bruised.

Mrs. Holstead was carried by Kilpatrick ambulance to the Marion clinic. She suffered a fractured knee and bruises and her daughter had facial lacerations and bruises.

PAR CLAIMS

State Could Save By Tightening Up

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Suggestions for tightening state operations to save estimated millions of dollars were offered today by the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) in its Legislative Bulletin.

Summarizing some of its research of recent months and years, PAR offered these items:

1. Investmesnt of the state's idle cash — estimated to yield revenue at a potential of $2 million a year, or more, based on operations of the past fiscal year.

2. Changing the formula for allotting teachers to local school systems to place this on a parish-wide basis instead of a school-by-school basis. "Millions could be saved by this approach," PAR said, "and consolidation of small, inadequate schools would be hastened, thereby upgrading the educational program of the state."

3. Restricting school bus service to children living more than a mile from a school — as prescribed by present law — which could mean "substantial savings."

4. Tighter control of state funds within agency budgets to prevent transfers of funds from one category to another and to hold spending within the total authorized amount, even though income from special sources may produce more revenue than estimated. Some agencies operating out of dedicated funds, in particular, have hiked spending above amounts originally appropriated.

RIGID CONTROL

5. More rigid control of personnel to restrict employment to positions approved in the budget. If personnel had been held within budgeted amounts in the last fiscal year, for example, and the amounts not spent for other purposes, the saving would have been $2.5 million.

6. Limiting the initiation or expansion of programs by requiring legislative approval before putting them into effect. In February 1960, for example, the welfare board approved an increase in welfare grants, without legislative approval, which cost the state $9 million a year.

In listing these items, PAR noted the legislature would be confronted with some difficulties in balancing the state budget for the coming fiscal year and avoiding tax increases in the future. In recent years, budgets have been supported in part by accumulated surpluses which have now been nearly exhausted.

PAR recently published a study on investment of the state's idle funds which showed the state could have earned about $12.8 million in the past five and a half years by investing idle cash balances in the treasury, welfare, and highway departments. Louisiana is one of three states which do not now have investment programs.

In reference to the procedure for allotting teachers under the state's equalization formula, PAR said the allotment on a school-by-school basis "favors parishes with small, inadequate schools over the parishes that have larger, consolidated schools."

If teachers were approved on the total number of pupils in the public schools of each parish, it would result in "substantial savings to the state."

Present spending for school transportation by the state amounts to $18 million a year, PAR reported. According to a study of school transportation made several years ago by school superintendents, and cited by PAR, many parishes transport children living within a mile of schools they attend, which is contrary to state law. A recent study placed this cost of illegal bus operations at $28,000 for East Baton Rouge Parish. The state reimburses schools for transportation costs.

Referring to possibilities in tighter control of state agency spending, PAR made these points:

1. Present law limiting transfers of funds within agency budgets to emergency situations "should be more stringently enforced." Many agencies ended the fiscal year 1958-59 with zero balances which was possible only through transfer of their funds. They would have had more money to return to the state general fund if the transfers had been held down more rigidly.

2. During the fiscal year 1959-60, some 80 budget units spent $6.5 million more than was appropriated, because of special revenue sources. If spending had been held to the budgeted figure, some part of the $6.5 million could have been returned to the state.

3. A reduction in the rate of growth of state employment could be achieved if the number of positions filled were limited to the number authorized in the budget of each agency. If personnel had been held to the number authorized in 1959-60 budget, the saving that year to the state would have been $2.5 million.

Reporting on employee growth trends, as shown by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, PAR said there was a growth of two per cent in the year ending October 1, 1960 and 3.6 per cent in the prior year.

Growth in the classified state service since June 30, 1960 has been about three per cent resulting in the addition of 874 employees in nine months. Data on all employees of the state is not available from any central source in Louisiana.
